AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Prayers for the Dead at St. Mary's Cemetery Said Yesterday.

FATHER BOGAN'S ADDRESS.

Men of Two Parishes March to the Catholic Grave Yard for Annual Service.

It has been customary for some years for the Catholics of St. Mary's parish and nearby Catholic parishes to assemble at St. Mary's cemetery on the Sunday nearest to All Souls' Day to join in religious ceremony of prayers for the dead. The favorable weather yesterday brought out more than a thousand members of the various parishes to take part in this striking ceremony.

The men assembled at half-past one o'clock at St. Mary's church and others at St. Joseph's church, where, after a short prayer they formed in line and proceeded to the cemetery on Buchanan street. There, the altar boys, forty in number, in scarlet, purple, black cassacks, gathered at the upper part of the cemetery.

Precisely at 2:15 the procession of men headed by Cross-bearers and two acolytes and thurifer began the march of prayer around the cemetery, reciting the Rosary and prayers for the dead. At the central mound, known as the "Priests' Plot," the procession halted and the double quartet of men from St. Mary's choir sang the Benedictus. The prayers of the dead were recited and the responses made by the assembled multitude.

The address was in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion, Father Bogan taking for his text, words from the Second Book of Macabees, chapter XII: "It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins." His words were in part as follows:

"In accordance with a time-honored custom, you have assembled this afternoon in this spot hallowed by sacred memories, to kneel about your dear ones' graves and pray that God will end their temporal punishment and bring their immortal souls to the bliss of His home in heaven. To the teaching of our holy religion we owe the significance of this ceremony, for it is our belief that sin deserves punishment, and that punishment is measured by the degree of sin's malevolence. The soul stained with grievous sin, unrepentant and defiant, is banished from the sight of God to suffer the endless pains of hell. The soul whose spiritual beauty has been blurred by slight, yet deliberate transgressions against God's known law, is not banished forever from the sight of God, but enters, at death, an existence where the sentence of Divine Justice is fulfilled in pain that shall certainly end when God in His inscrutable will shall se decree.

"Sin being a deliberate offence, an insult to the LordGod Almighty, none but God Himself can condone. Hence, our belief that God alone can forgive sin. Through the redeeming act of Jesus Christ on Calvary the sins of Pope and peasant alike find atonement. Yet it is, and always has been, the belief and teaching of the Catholic church that the application of the atonement comes to us through a divinely appointed medium —the Sacrament of Penance, wherein the self-imposed humiliation of the pentitent is supplemented by divine grace, the friendship of God restored and the claims of eternal punishment rescinded. Though sin and the eternal punishment it deserves, are remitted in the Sacrament of Penance, there remains a punishment to be endured here in earthly time or during the time of purgatorial suffering. That prayers for the dead are effectual and accepted in the stead of purgatorial suffering is the teaching of our holy religion, and, in a word, is the reason for our gathering here today. That the consolation of this doctrine finds acknowledgment in other than Catholic hearts, the words of the late English Poet Laureate, Lord Tennyson, attest: "I have lived my life and that which I have done may He within Himself make pure! But thou, if thou shouldst never see my face again, pray for my soul. More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life within the brain, if, knowing God, they lift not hand of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friends? For so the whole round earth is every way bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

The ceremony concluded with the invocation: "May the souls of those whose bodies lie beneath this consecrated sod awaiting the final summons, and the souls of all the faithful departed rest in peace. Amen."

DEDICATED MEMORIALS

Impressive Service at Grace Church, When Windows are Unveiled.

BISHOP SCARBOROUGH PRESENT

Two Beautiful Works in Stained Glass Unveiled—Rev. Dr. Douglass Preaches the Sermon.

With the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, D. D. L. L. D., bishop of New Jersey, and prominent Episcopal clergyman present, the dedication of the All Saints' memorial and the Van Buren memorial rose windows took place yesterday morning at Grace church. The congregation was so large that every available seat was occupied and many communicants were obliged to remain standing during the service.

The dedicatory sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. George William Douglass, for many years rector of Trinity church, New Haven, and now canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, of New York. Dr. Douglass' theme was "The Mind of Christ." Dr. Douglass held up the life of the Saviour to the congregation as the one great example to follow. Other visiting clergymen on the platform included Rev. Dr. Aspinwall, pastor emeritus, of St. Thomas church, Washington.

While the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, directed the service, Bishop Scarborough was in charge of the celebration. The bishop celebrated the Holy Communion and also delivered a brief congratulatory address. The music was appropriate to the celebration, the choir rendering Old Saints' hymns. The Complete program and a description of the windows were published on Saturday. The organ recital at 4 o'clock was also largely attended.

FOR REPUBLICANS!

Just a word to show you how and why it is important that every Republican vote should be polled at the election tomorrow.

It is true that there is little opposition to your local ticket, but do not allow a statement of that fact in any way to deceive you and do not, because it is so, fail to vote tomorrow.

1. The moral influence of every man counts. Encourage your friends and neighbors to do their duty by performing yours. Neglect of duty discourages the faithful and further demoralizes the careless.

2. Your vote counts not only for your local ticket, but for each and every candidate on the county ticket, viz.: for Register, County Clerk, three Assemblymen and a Coroner. They are your candidates. You naturally desire that they shall be elected by good majorities. If you stay away from the polls because you are confident of the success of your local ticket, you cut down their vote in the county and jeopardize their election.

To the Voters of the City of Plainfield:

Most everybody I meet wants to know what I stand for as a candidate for Council-at-large.

If I am elected I shall stand for every man, woman and child in this city. I say let the city rule and the people of this city and not outsiders. If elected I will fight for the taxpayers of this city.

Yours respectfully,
ANDREW F. MARSH.

DEATH OF M. C. DOBBINS

Highly Respected Citizen Passes Away in His Seventy-Third Year.

AFTER THREE WEEKS' ILLNESS.

Veteran Tobacconist a Man of Sterling Christian Character—Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon.

Matthias Clark Dobbins, for over forty years a well known tobacconist and prominent resident of this city, died yesterday morning in his seventy-third year, of septic pneumonia. Mr. Dobbins was born at Caldwell and was in the employ of the Campbell-Lane Tobacco Company, of Caldwell, where he learned the trade of cigar maker which he followed the rest of his life.

Mr. Dobbins was a man of splendid Christian character and was beloved by all who knew him. He was a man of integrity and was an example to the young. He had a sunny disposition and had always a kind word for everybody.

When the Civil War broke out Mr. Dobbins orgaized Co D., of the Twenty-sixth New Jersey Volunteers, of which he was elected captain. They were mustered in at Camp Frelinghuysen, in Newark, and Mr. Dobbins served one year when he was invalided home. He was an Internal Revenue collector under George Halsey, of Newark, under the Republican administration in that city. He came to Plainfield in 1879 and opened a cigar store in the old building which was torn down later to be replaced by the Plainfield Trust Company's present structure. He then had another store on the same block, afterward moved to the store on North avenue, where he continued the business of making and selling cigars.

Mr. Dobbins married Miss Anne Elizabeth Storms, of Caldwell, February 16, 1859, and celebrated their golden wedding on February 16, of this year. Five children blessed the union of which only one son survives, Walter C. Dobbins, a reporter for this paper. A widow also survives him. He was a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M., New York Commandery of the Loyal Legion and Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R. He was for many years a member of the First Baptist church, and served as a deacon for two years.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at his late residence, 117 Elmwood place, at 2 o'clock. Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will conduct the services, and the interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

FATHER BERNARD M. BOGAN BESTOWS PAPAL BLESSING.

Large congregations marked the attendance at the masses in St. Mary's church yesterday morning, the marked feature of which was the bestowal of the Papal blessing by the rector, Rev. Bernard M. Bogan. The ceremony was brief and impressive and was conducted at the close of each celebration.

Father Bogan was enabled to impart the special blessings to local Catholics as a result of his visit to Pope Pius X at Rome last summer when the local priest received the high dispensation. The service was not marked by any special features owing to the solemn purpose of the service.

Church Celebrates.

Yesterday was the fortieth anniversary of Trinity Reformed church, of Newark. Elder Robert Clark, Jr., of Trinity Reformed of this city, one of the oldest Sunday-school superintendents of the Reformed church, delivered an address at the Newark church yesterday and today George L. VanEmburgh, one of the first elders of the church, is to address a meeting of the old church in Newark. The entire week will be given over to a celebration of the anniversary.

BALKED AT PROPOSING

So Papa Green Had Carrona Haled to Court Alleging Assault.

SHAVES AND BEER STOPPED.

Disillusionment of Scotch Plains Barber Who Even Chopped Wood.

Frank Carrono, an Italian barber, of Scotch Plains, was discharged in the city court this morning by Judge William Runyon because a complaint against him, made by Lawrence Green, of 36 West Second street, was not proved.

Green said that Carrono had attempted to assault him, but it was proved by witnesses that the boot was on the other leg and that Carrono was the aggrieved party. The complaint was dismissed.

According to the story of Carrono he was a constant visitor at the home of Green who has two attractive daughters, but when Green asked Carrono if he was going to marry one of them he balked at the question, telling Green that his matrimonial projects were a matter of his own personal convenience and he did not care to have his personal business interfered with by any one.

During his many visits to the home of the Misses Green, Carrono, so he asserted, had provided the old man with beer, tobacco, etc., but when he ceased to supply these necessary adjuncts to sociability his presence became obnoxious to the whole family. Carrono said that he even went so far as to chop wood for the family stove, even though he is a barber, besides shaving the father of the family and contributing an occasional haircut.

Judge Runyon believed Carrono and his witnesses regarding the story of the alleged attempted assault after hearing "Jim" Groiletto and William Stansbury, who were present when the trouble occurred.

ADVOCATES ELECTION OF WM. W. SMALLEY

J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, advocated the re-election of Assemblyman W. W. Smalley at the Grace M. E. church last night before an appreciative audience. Mr. Burke commended Assemblyman Smalley's legislative record on local option, and declared he was a proper candidate for re-election entitled to the suffrage of all church members.

Mr. Burke, in his remarks, also reviewed the progress of the Anti-Saloon movement in State and nation. He declared that the league in this State has met with encouragement all along the line. The speaker also referred to the advance of the prohibition and local option cause in the southern States.

RANDOLPH DRAKE DIES IN HIS EIGHTIETH YEAR

Randolph Drake, one of the oldest and best known residents of Scotch Plains, died at his home on Bartle avenue Saturday afternoon, aged seventy-nine years. He had been ill for several months and while his death was a shock to his many friends, was not unexpected as his condition had been critical for several weeks.

Mr. Drake was a life long Republican and until a few years ago always took an active interest in the work of the party in Fanwood township, he was also an exempt firemen, having joined Excelsior H. & L. Co. at the time it was organized. He is survived by a sister, Miss Louisa Barr, his wife and daughter dying nearly twenty-five years ago. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, interment being made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

Borough Police Court.

Aaron Reed and Samuel Moran were arrested in the borough on Saturday night for disorderly conduct by Chief Weiss. Reed was let off with a suspended sentence of ninety days hanging over his head and ordered to report to Chief Weiss every Saturday night for the period of one year. Sentence was also suspended in Moran's case.

Fires in the Trolley.

The Public Service Corporation started fires in its trolley cars on Saturday for the first. Although it is possible to get along without the heat sometimes during the day, it is necessary at this time of the year to have it during the evening.

MRS. A. H. LEWIS DEAD

Widow of Well Known Minister Succumbs After Long Illness.

IN HER SEVENTY-THIRD YEAR.

Though An Invalid She Was in Fine Spirits Only a Few Hours Before Summoned.

Mrs. Augusta M. Lewis, widow of the late Rev. Dr. Abraham H. Lewis, died this morning at an early hour at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. J. Kimball, 633 West Seventh street. Mrs. Lewis had been an invalid for many years and the end came without warning.

Mrs. Lewis was Miss Augusta M. Johnson and was born at Berlin, Wisconsin, and was married to Dr. Lewis in 1855 in that city. Six children survive her. They are Professor Edwin Herbert Lewis, of Oak Park, Ills., Mrs. W. L. Russell, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Mrs. James H. Parsons, of Austin, Ill.; Mrs. F. B. Langworthy, of River Forest, Ill.; Mrs. B. W. Spencer, of Delaware, Wis., and Mrs. J. E. Kimball, of this city. Upon the arrival of the relatives from out of town, final arrangements will be made for the funeral.

Mrs. Lewis seemed to be in fine spirits last night when she apparently enjoyed the pranks of the children gathered at Mrs. Kimball's to celebrate Hallowe'en. In fact she seemed to be very cheerful and entered heartily into the enjoyment of the occasion and when she retired was happy. Mrs. Lewis was in her seventy-third year and only survived her husband for a little less than a year.

Rev. Dr. Lewis died at Westerly, R. I., November 4, 1908, of pneumonia. He was at the time of his death the dean of the clergy of this city. He was pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church from 1880 to 1896, when he retired to enter the service of the American Sabbath Tract Society as its corresponding secretary. He was editor of the Sabbath Recorder for fourteen years. The handsome Seventh Day Baptist edifice was erected under his direction.

GOOD RECORD MADE BY HERBERT BUXTON

Herbert Buxton, who is a candidate for re-election to the Councilmanic body as a representative of the Fourth ward, will undoubtedly receive a flattering vote tomorrow when he is returned. As viewed by his friends, his career as a city father reflects great credit on himself and has won the encomiums of his constituents who are working to get for him biggest vote to be accorded a city candidate.

Mr. Buxton's course in the Common Council bespeaks for him the vote of every fair-minded voter who has the interests of the city at heart. At the present time he holds the highest position, next to the presidency, in that body, being chairman of the finance committee. He has advocated and voted for the consummation of many public improvements and has done more than his share in the interests of his own ward. A vote for him is a civic duty. ***

Men's Work in Churches.

The Rev. William F. Whitaker, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, will address an open meeting of the Men's Club of Hope chapel tomorrow night at Hope chapel. Mr. Whitaker's subject will be "Men's Work in the Churches." He is a man exceptionally qualified to speak on this subject being pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in Elizabeth. All men and boys of seventeen years and over are cordially invited.

BOROUGH G.O.P. RALLY

Newton B. Smalley Makes Ringing Speech at Enthusiastic Meeting.

FRELINGHUYSEN MAKES HIT.

W. W. Smalley Also Comes in For Applause—Robert Clark, Jr., Acts as Chairman.

Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, who is again the Republican candidate for chief magistrate of the borough, after two years of retirement, was assured of united support at the polls tomorrow at the Republican rally held in Saengerbund Hall on Saturday night. There have been bigger turnouts at past political meetings, but the enthusiasm exhibited last night bore evidence that Smalley is just as popular with the masses now as he was a dozen of years ago when he entered the political arena.

The chief address of the evening was delivered by the former mayor. Smalley declared himself in plain and convincing language relative to needed public improvements. He declared there was no cause for the general apathy that is prevailing in the borough as the result of tomorrow's struggle is of vital importance to the taxpayers.

Smalley made several pledges which he said he would carry out if elected. In relation to street affairs, Smalley said he stands prepared to widen Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnson drive, and to open Watchung avenue from Codington avenue to Johnson's drive. Smalley also declared that he would exert every meas to secure sewerage for the borough.

Referring to the increased tax rate he said that in his opinion the education of the school children in the borough is costing too much. In closing, the former mayor stated that if elected, he would be willing to meet men of all parties, when occasion required, to exchange opinions on affairs of public moment. That Smalley is still a favorite son of the borough was manifested by the enthusiasm that greeted him as he concluded his address.

State Senator Frelinghuysen, also gave a clear-cut talk. His remarks were directed mainly to the candidacy of W. W. Smalley for the Assembly. Fhelinghuysen reviewed the record of Assemblyman Smalley, and complimented the latter on his splendid work in the Assembly and advocated his re-electeion. He declared that Smalley was considered one of the most valuable men in the lower house on committee work and said he should be returned by a handsome majority.

Former Mayor B. A. Hegeman called the meeting to order and introduced former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., as permanent chairman of the assemblage. Mr. Clark spoke briefly on local issues and urged all Republican voters to come out and vote on election day.

Other short addresses were made by Assemblyman Smalley, and Judge Wall, of Bound Brook. The latter paid a high tribute to the former's record in the Legislature and urged his re-election.

Hallowe'en Pranks Too Naughty.

Forty-eight colored boys and two whites were up before City Judge Runyon this morning for destroying property on Saturday in celebrating Hallowe'en, they took a wagon belonging to W. Sternberg, a grocer of 401 Plainfield avenue and dumped it in the brook at Washington street bridge. Another of their pranks was to take a wagon from the premises of George Zepp, a blacksmith, at 421 West Second street, and dump it at Seventh street near Liberty. They also ran away with a grocery wagon belonging to J. S Dasker, doing considerable damage to the wagon. The boys will be given a hearing by City Judge Runyon on Saturday morning.

Bishop Scarborough Coming.

RESENT MOON CIRCULAR

Jr. O. U. A. M. Members Oppose to Place the Order in Politics.

IGNORED ADVICE GIVEN HIM.

State Council Secretary Miers Warned Him—Stir Caused by Unusual Political Document.

The letter signed and spread broadcast by Joseph D. Moon, of North Plainfield, using his official capacity as president of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics for the purpose, has caused no little resentment on the part of the high officials and prominent members of the order in Union county. The letter in question is generally viewed more as a campaign document sprung at the eleventh hour, rather than a statement for the benefits of those affiliated with the society, took to task the Republican Assembly candidates, Pierce, Schwartz and Thompson. It practically asserted that Mr. Pierce and Mrs. Schwartz would vote at the next session of the Legislature to divert the moneys for public education should the opportunity offer. Learning of Mr. Moon's purpose State Council Secretary William H. Miers quickly notified the latter that, "a great injustice would be done," should such a document be circulated by him. Writing from the State headquarters at Trenton under the date of October 28, the State Council secretary says incidentally in vindication of the candidates (Messrs. Pierce and Schwartz) who already served a term at Trenton. "Permit me to say that both Messrs. Pierce and Schwartz were members of the Assembly last year, and they opposed all changes in the present school law." In concluding his letter to Mr. Moon the State Council Secretary says: "I take the liberty to say that in my opinion your association would do a great injustice to these gentlemen by sending your circular dated October 30."

Mr. Moon, however, sent this circular notwithstanding the State Council Secretary's advice. When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press he stated that he did not have any such letter from Mr. Miers. Mr. Albert Tranchard, a friend of Mr. Moon's when asked about the letter in question declined to admit Mr. Moon's assertion that he had the letter in question. Mr. Moon declined to say why the State Council secretary's advice was ignored, giving as his excuse for not allowing the letter to be seen or any explanations be made that it was not the public's business.

Many of the prominent members throughout Union county are much incensed over Mr. Moon's peculiar action, and it is known that they have freely expressed their opinions at meetings of the various councils throughout the county during the last few days. They frankly declare that the action of Mr. Moon will have no weight with them and that they will vote as they choose on Tuesday.

Concerning Mr. Thompson, the third candidate on the Republican committee, Mr. Moon's communication charged that no answer was received, but Mr. Thompson declares that an answer was sent which has already appeared in public prints.

It is known to many members of the Order that Mr. Miers did write such a letter to Mr. Moon, and the fact that Mr. Moon refuses to recall his circular or make any statement concerning it, is viewed by them as unfair, and shows that he has some ulterior motives than one for the best interests of the order.

Mr. Moon subsequently wrote Mr. Thompson that he would tell the members of the order that Mr. Thompson's position had been made clear, and was satisfactory. So far as known Mr. Moon has failed to do this and is allowing the original mis-impression to remain.

Jas. E. Warner, of Cranford, has published a circular in which he says, "I am much incensed at this attempt to use our order for political ends. More particularly as the statements in the Moon circular are absolutely misleading and unjust to Mssrs. Pierce, Schwartz and Thompson."

Equal Suffrage League Debate.

The next meeting of the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield will be held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Huntington, 324 Franklin place, Monday night, November 22, when there will be a debate on the question, "Resolved, That the suffrage should be granted to women on the same terms on which it is granted to men." Miss Crystal Eastman, of New York, will take the affirmative and Mrs. Hugh Fox the negative side of the question.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Politicians will be up with the birds tomorrow morning. There is little interest being displayed in the township election but in the borough the fight on local issues is sure to furnish a redhot struggle. The mayorality fight between Starker and Sandford is going to be close, as also the race for the collectorship between Isaac P. Stites, the present incumbent, and Herbert Wyckoff, the Democratic nominee.

Lakeside Council will have a social session on Thursday night, when the members of Pioneer Council, of Bound Brook, will be the guests of honor.

Miss Edna Burdick has returned to her studies at Montclair Normal school after a visit home.

Mrs. Charles Thornton entertained friends from Jersey City over Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Pierce have been entertaining friends from Long Island.

John Haynes has accepted a clerical position in Voorhees' market.

Miss Mary Grint has recovered from a tedious illness.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Tomorrow is election day and from the way the leaders of both parties have been working for several days past the vote should be pretty well gathered in. The local ticket will practically have but two contests, J. E. Clark, who is candidate for constable, on the Republican ticket, being opposed by Jacob Shackleton on the Democratic ticket, both are out to win and are working hard for election. George H. Johnston, Republican candidate for assessor, will have his old opponent, Charles H. French pitted against him on the Democratic ticket. Although his name does not appear on the ballot, John Z. Hatfield, who has served the township so well as collector, does not have to worry as his name appears on both tickets. From present indications the Republican ticket should win out by 60 or 65 majority.

The hour for the Sunday afternoon vesper service at the Baptist church has been changed from 4:30 to 4 o'clock. The service yesterday afternoon which was in charge of Captain and Mrs. S. A. Hewitt, of the Plainfield barracks, Salvation Army, was devoted to "a Harvest Festival of Song." The meeting was well attended and Capt. and Mrs. Hewitt's remarks were helpful to all.

Miss Evelyn Southard entertained a number of her friends at a Hallowe'en party, at her home on Cook avenue, Saturday night. The evening was spent playing Hallowe'en games and enjoying music, both vocal and instrumental. Refreshments were served.

Hollowe'en passed without any serious damage or loss of property. The residents in general were wise enough to remove their gates and other movable property. So the small boy had to be satisfied with throwing flour and confetti

The Fanwood Field Club football eleven, proved to be easy for the Westfield High School eleven in the game played at Westfield Saturday afternoon. The school team winning by a score of 35 to 0.

The memorial service for the dead held yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield, was attended by many from here.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held yesterday afternoon at 3:30 in the parlors of the church.

Sacrifice Sale of Women's Dresses

Our Entire Stock of Handsome New Winter Dresses at Wholesale Cost and Less.

We have decided to close out our entire stock of splendid stylish dresses at once. We wish to do it now while they are desirable in every way, rather than wait to the end of the season.

To accomplish this we have hammered the price down to the actual manufacturer's price, not a one of these beautiful new dresses has escaped the furious onslaughter of the price cutter.

$8.98 Dresses of All Wool Serge for 5.98

$15.00 and $16.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 10,00

$25.00, $27.50 and $30.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 18.00

Never has any store offered such phenomenal values right at the beginning of the season. Only the fact that we are closing out the entire line could cause us to indulge in such a remarkable, unprecedented underpricing of fine garments.

Don't miss this great opportunity, be an early comer and share in the surpassing savings which this Sale offers. The prices asked would hardly pay for material alone.

Come to Tepper's for Your Millinery

We carry the biggest stocks—show the newest ideas in hats and trimmings—and our prices are at least 25 per cent. lower than elsewhere; our saleladies are experienced in this line, and always ready to assist you in selecting a becoming Hat, and our Milliner sees to it that the Hat is right, before it leaves the workroom—incidently we might add—we trim everything we sell, no factory trimmed stuff enters this house.

Beaver Hats have been scarce all this season, but our patrons have little to complain of, as with the few exceptions of a day or two in one stretch, we have shown a liberal supply of good Beavers in the newest shapes, at lower prices than some shops ask for the inferior qualities.

USE PRESS WANT ADS

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., November 1, 1909.

WHAT HE LEFT UNSAID.

For the benefit of those who could not understand the attack made by LeRoy J. Ellis on the local press at the Woodrow Wilson meeting on Friday night, it is only fair to let our readers into his secret. We doubt if anyone in his intelligent audience took his badly memorized remarks any more seriously than we do, for they were inclined to be just as charitable, probably because they realized surely that his residence among us has been short and at any rate it appeared like a maiden speech, and he was trying to do his best.

But Mr. Ellis did not tell the facts and it remains for us to do it. A day or so before the meeting in question, he sought an explanation because a campaign circular attacking the local administration had not been given free advertisement in the news columns. Among the things Mr. Ellis does not know it seems, may be counted the operation of a newspaper. Almost anyone in his audience could have told him that political advertisements, such as campaign dodgers, circulars and appeals are classified as advertisements. It could not be otherwise, for to inflict them indiscriminately on the public as news would be impossible. If Mr. Ellis himself will look over the pages of a New York daily today he will see many columns of just such advertisements placed where they rightly belong, that is in the advertising columns. It is the same everywhere. Any intelligent man can readily see the reason for it.

Mr. Ellis was told, moreover, that an article of the sort he wished to have gratuitously published was couched in a tone that would prohibit its use. It was pointed out to him that to accept it would be to let down the bars, and to establish an unwise and dangerous precedent. Discretion is and must be exercised by editors in accepting communications. Every day, these denunciatory letters are received and they invariably find their way into the waste paper basket. This is particularly so when the writer has not the courage or honesty to sign his name to the document. In this instance, the campaign dodger was spread broadcast in the name of an organization, which is a very different thing because it is almost as bad as a straight out anonymous attack.

Mr. Ellis did not see fit to pay for the publication of the circular as an advertisement. Instead, he decided to tell his troubles to an audience that had assembled to hear an address by Dr. Woodrow Wilson. The audience was very patient, very charitable towards him when he told or rather only half told, his tale of woe. They didn't even laugh. For that he owes his hearers a debt of gratitude. Mr. Ellis is a well meaning man, but we must be pardoned for not taking him seriously when he tires an audience with "foolish talk."

Newest Corset Models

The charm and style of the present models in Women's Dress are dependent, to an amazing extent, upon the careful choice of the corset over which they are to be worn. Many a beautiful gown will show a disappointing look of grace if the selection of the corset best adapted to the particular figure has been carelessly made. We are showing all the newest models in the following well known makes. Thompson's Glove Fitting, W. B. Reduso, Redfern Whalebone, Royal Worcester Adjusto, R. & G. The La Reine, Warner's Rust Proof, W. B. Bon Ton, Reges and W. T. Reduc-u, also a complete assortment of Ferris Waists and Brassine Bust Supporters.

There are so many charming models that it is merely a question of a woman's being shown how to pick out the particular one that will bring out the lines of her figure to the best advantage.. Miss Carney will be delighted to assist you in the selection.

HIS FAREWELL SERMON

Rev. Wm. Remsen Mulford Says Good-Bye to All Saints' Church.

HE GOES TO BOLTON, N. Y.

The Clergyman Has Done a Great Work in the Parish He Reluctantly Leaves.

Rev. William Remsen Mulford ended his active work as rector of All Saints Episcopal church, of Scotch Plains, when he bid good bye to his people at the afternoon service yesterday. In his removal to Bolton, N. Y., the parish he has vacated has met with a severe loss. Ten years ago he took up the work of the parish and during his rectorate the church has been cleared of debt, the Sunday school has flourished and every department of parish work kept alive and healthy, so that today the church is in a better condition in every way than ever before in its history.

Mr. Mulford is an M. A. of Bellevue College, University of Omaha, and is a man of culture and scholarly tastes. His well known popular lectures on "The Pilgrims and Plymouth," "Fenimore Cooper," "Washington Irving," and "Oliver Wendell Holmes" display great research, analytical skill and refined taste, and are a treat to hear. He is also an antiquarian of some note and has been secretary of the U. U. Genealogical and Biographical Society, and has contributed to the New England Historical Genealogical Register of Boston. He is also a strong and attractive preacher, a faithful and sympathetic pastor, and a staunch and loyal friend.

The Mulford family settled in Long Island in 1640 and have been prominent in social, intellectual and commercial life ever since. Mr. Mulford's grandfather was a merchant in New York before the Civil War, and he is related to the Rev. E. D Mulford, LL.D., the celebrated author of "The Republic of God." His going from All Saints church to St. Sacrament leaves a blank hard indeed to fill, and his sympathetic presence in the homes of the sick and suffering will be much missed. But all denominations unite in bidding him God-speed as he was greatly beloved by all.

Covers were laid for fifteen. Those present: Miss Mildred Berry, Miss Ruth Van Vleet, Miss Helen Moody, Miss Mai Faber, Miss Helen Cutler, Francis Anderson and Von Anderson, of Passaic; G. Sterling Karck, of New York; Ensign Ralph Needhan, of U. S. Battleship Connecticut; Gurth Williams, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Berry, Charles Faber and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Faber.

Miss Ida Mae Clark a Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Clark, of Orchard place, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ida Mae Clark, to George R. Oakes, of Newark. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans, of the Presbyterian church, Westfield, at his home, Friday night, October 22. The bride held a position at the Misses Gorsline's store on Park avenue, and did not want to announce the marriage until she left there, which was Saturday night. Mr. and Mrs. Oakes will reside in Bound Brook, where the groom is engaged in business.

SUPERINTENDENT HALL GIVEN WARM WELCOME

George E. Hall, superintendent of the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday school, was given an enthusiastic "welcome home" by members of the school and church yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hall, with his wife, were absent for the past two months, traveling through the States of Washington, Colorado, California and Nebraska. The regular lesson was omitted and a program of unusual interest rendered by members of the school.

Mr. Hall entertained the school with a short account of his trip, describing vividly the magnificent scenery, the grand old mountains, the interesting people, etc At some time in the near future Mr. Hall will undoubtedly give another chapter on his delightful trip.

Several of Mr. Hall's personal friends were present, including Walter M. Irving, of Westfield, chairman of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Sunday School Association. Mr. Irving's talk was very pleasing, and referred to the Sunday school work of our county and State, but more especially to that of the Park Avenue Baptist school, and the happy relations that exist between the school and its superintendent.

Another speaker on the program was Mr. Hall's associate in business, George Krause, of Cranford, who referred most beautifully to the friendly relations which they enjoy in their business life. Both Mr. Irving and Mr. Krause are close, personal friends of Mr. Hall, and both speakers dwelt on the splendid service Mr. Hall is rendering the Union County Sunday School Union, also the State Sunday School Association as its president.

A pleasing feature of the program was furnished by the primary department, when fifty little ones, at a given signal, marched downstairs into the Sunday school room and up to the desk, to the accompaniment of "Onward Christian Soldiers" by the orchestra, and there stood facing Mr. Hall while they sang a welcome song in honor of his return.

Miss Elmira Runyon, superintendent of the primary department, then told Mr. Hall that they had been waiting for his return to the school in order that he might present the diplomas to the children who had been promoted into higher grades.

Splendid work was done by the Sunday school orchestra, which included the following selections: "Church Rallying Song;" "Autumn Breezes;" "Home Sweet Home," and "Our Ancestors.' The members of the orchestra are: Arthur S. Mosher, Miss Arline Brown, Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Mary E. Clark, Whitney Frazee and Elmer P. Wheeler.

The room was made especially attractive by the use of a number of large American flags. The floral decorations were tastefully arranged by Mrs. Charles VanWinkle and consisted of hydrangeas, roses and chrysanthemums.

As a souvenir of his trip, as well as of the session that had been planned in honor of his home coming, Mr. Hall presented every one present with a handsome view of some place of interest in the far West.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

In the enactment of the natural tragedy of life in the Golden West, Chas. H. Wurz's' latest melodramatic success, "Deadwood Dick's Last Shot," which will be seen at the Plainfield Theatre tomorrow afternoon and night is certainly in the van. This up-to-date thriller is not a succession of stale situations, tried and time worn sensations or artificial comedy and pathos. It is a play that will make its appeal to all playgoers on the ground of its originality, spirited action and dramatic value. Dick is a noble character and his adventures are exciting and interesting because they are plausible. He suffers a number of severe hardships and trials because of his love for a sweet Eastern girl who comes West to seek information regarding a valuable silver mine left her by her father. Dick is always on the job and he leads his enemies a merry pace from start to finish. The new play, which is by Owen Davis, is in four acts and eight scenes. It is capitally cast and staged and from a scenic viewpoint all that could be desired.

Carbide Tank Explodes.

An explosion of a carbide tank on Alden Ten Eyck's automobile caused a lot of excitement and incidentally brought the fire department to the Ten Eyck home on Union street Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck had returned from a ride and as the latter alighted from the car the tank exploded and burst into flames. A 'phone call brought the fire department on the scene and Chief Doane brought the excitement to an end by the use of an extinguisher. The damage to the machine was slight.

STATE C. E. UNION OFFICERS TO MEET.

The State Executive Committee of the New Jersey Christian Endeavor Union will meet Monday afternoon, November 8, at the Y. M. C. A., Newark. The meeting will be particularly important to the interests of Christian Endeavor in the State, as plans for the forward campaign will be formally launched.

The presidents of the county unions will be present as members of the committee, having been admitted to a membership through a resolution passed at the recent State convention in Plainfield, whereby they will constitute a committee on extension.

In order that the plan of the Rev. Dr. Francis Clark, for 1,000,000 new members and 10,000 new societies before the 1911 convention in Atlantic City, may receive the co-operation of New Jersey workers, a definite plan has been devised by State President John T. Sproull, of Arlington. Mr. Sproull has communicated with the county presidents, and details will be considered at the Newark meeting.

Appointments to the several departments will be made, the question of prison work will probably be taken up, and there will be other important business transacted.

FOURTH TYPHOID CASE AT STATE REFORMATORY.

The general health of the inmates of Rahway Reformatory is not good, according to Superintendent Frank Moore, Saturday, who said that there is typhoid fever in the institution, the last case developing Wednesday, and the source of the disease is yet undetermined. There have been four cases of typhoid within six months, he said, and Dr. A. C. Hunt, secretary of the State Board of Health, had been notified.

In a communication to Dr. Hunt, Dr. Moore said he thought an investigation should be made to ascertain the exact cause of the disease.

"I don't want to take the responsibility of one case every two months or so," wrote Dr. Moore, "which it seems to me, is altogether too much to continue in a State Institution."

The State board will meet there next Wednesday, at which time, it is believed, a number of improvements will be authorized, which may remove the source of the disease.

PRISONER FREED; WANTED OVERCOAT.

Trenton, Nov. 1.—George Stevenson, sixty-eight years old, was released from State prison Saturday morning, after serving a three-year term to which he was sentenced from Hudson county, for larceny. Stevenson, who has spent twenty-eight years of his life behind the bars, complained bitterly of the cold and the fact that he was set adrift without an overcoat. He made his way from the prison to the State house and called upon Governor Fort, who promised to take up his case with the prison authorities.

The rules of the institution only provide for giving discharged prisoners overcoats after November 1, and from this regulation no exceptions are made.

BOTH COUNTY CHAIRMEN EXPRESS SATISACTION.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith declared Saturday when asked as to what he thought of the chances of the Republican party carrying Union county, that it was simply a question of getting out the full Republican vote. "If we get out the full vote, and I don't see why we should not," he declared, "we will pile up our usual majority of 2,500.

Chairman of the County Democratic Committee W. E. Tuttle when asked the same question said: "Our chances were never better. The voters are dissatisfied with the records of Assemblymen Schwartz and Pierce and I don't see why we should not win. Everything looks rosy."

Rev. Sydney Goodman's Plans.

Atlantic City, Nov. 1.—Hampered in his work for men by protests from fashionable members of the exclusive Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension who objected to smoking and vaudeville in his "Men's Church," Rev. Sydney Goodman, head of the men's movement, has resigned as assistant rector of the church. He expects to take up his chosen work as head of the new "Sunday Gatherings," under which the Men's church will now be known in its new quarters on Ohio avenue. Rev. Mr. Goodman hopes to be able to carry out his ideas, which resulted in attracting hundreds of men. Business and professional men of the city, headed by Colonel John A. Mann, have turned in for him, and, through their efforts the new church building was secured. Meetings will be started during the coming month. Arrangements have also been made to extend the work into other cities.

Paterson's Bad Boys.

Paterson, Nov. 1.—Armed with a loaded revolver, Alfred and Percy Vreeland, aged fourteen and sixteen years respectively, started out Thursday on a gas-meter robbing campaign. When discovered, one of them pointed a gun at a woman, and, after firing several shots to frighten pursuers, made their escape, only to get into a quarrel on Grand street, in which Alfred fired a bullet into the leg of his brother. Both boys have been in trouble on numerous occasions.

Colonel John Sneed's Conversations on Domestic Problems

Copyright, 1909, by C. S. Yost.

III.—How to Keep Young.

YOUNG Mrs. Rollins was dressed for the opera when Colonel Sneed, her father, entered. The old gentleman threw up his hands in mock astonishment and chuckled with delight.

"My, my, my, child," he exclaimed, "you look as fine as the queen of Sheba! And I'll bet," he added, "you're a doggone sight prettier. Turn around, honey, and let me get a sort of panoramic view of you."

With an indulgent smile Mrs. Rollins revolved.

"The more I look the better I like it," said the colonel. "But the wrappin' isn't any too good for what's inside of it. And that reminds me that I haven't kissed you yet. You dazzled me so I plum forgot. Kind of turn your cheek up to one side so I won't muss anything. There, now. But—but"—

The colonel was running the end of his tongue over his lips, and there was a puzzled expression on his face.

"What's the matter, papa?" asked Mrs. Rollins, with twinkling eyes.

"The brand don't seem quite familiar," he answered. "What is it, honey?"

"DON'T SEEM QUITE FAMILIAR."

"Oh, it's just a little touch of rouge, daddy; that's all."

"Huh!" grunted the colonel. "I thought so. Beginnin' to paint the lily already, are you? Well, I don't take much stock in artificial colors, but I reckon the principle's all right. You see—but, by the way, where's William? Dressin', eh? Just got home? I'm afraid that boy is workin' too hard. Think I'll sit down and chat with you anyhow until he comes down.

"As I was goin' to remark, little girl," resumed the colonel after he had arranged himself comfortably in the big armchair, "I've got some rather peculiar notions about keepin' young. I'm a long ways from being an old man yet, but I've been around here a considerable time, and maybe I can give you some pointers on what every woman wants to know.

"I reckon you've heard that old song about a woman bein' as old as she looks, while a man's just as old as he feels. Well, there's some truth in the distinction, for looks have a whole lot more to do with a woman than a man; but, all the same, it's the feelin' that counts in the long run, and it counts just as much for one sex as it does for the other. You're goin' to be young, honey, just as long as you feel young, and if you feel young the looks will take care of themselves. Now, there's a good deal more in that statement than I can work out for you while William's gettin' into his dress shirt, but it all simmers down to this—that the way to keep young is to quit growin' old. That's what they call a paradox, ain't it? Huh! Well, I don't care what you label it, it's the right formula.

"Of course you understand I'm not talkin' about years; I'm talkin' about looks and feelin's. I've got to admit that time has some influence, but it's only relative. I know a fellow downtown who's thirty-five years old and he acts like he was about ten. There's such a thing as keepin' too doggone young, you know. I've seen women that way too. Then there's another fellow I know who ain't over forty and he's dyin' of old age right now. So you see, honey, the calendar don't count in the game as much as people imagine. It's the looks and feelin's, but principally the feelin's, that make you old or keep you young.

"And you need just two things, little girl, to keep you feelin' young. I've been keepin' them a secret, savin' them for you. One of them is what is called a stiff upper lip; the other's a straight back. One is a mental attitude toward life; the other's a physical condition. A man or a woman with a stiff upper lip don't get discouraged, don't get the blues, don't worry about trifles. When a black cloud comes along she grabs it and turns it around so the silver linin' will show; she finds out what her duty is and does it without kickin' up any fuss about it; she don't make mountains out of molehills nor cross bridges until she gets to them, and if there's any fun goin' on in her neighborhood she's goin' to have her share of it without makin' a fool of herself.

"Now, did you ever see anybody with a straight back who was really old—I mean old in heart and mind? No, siree, you never did. Keep your backbone straight, honey, whatever you do. The minute it begins to sag or bend that very minute old age starts down the road to meet you. It's easy enough to keep it straight now, while your years are few, but after awhile you'll begin to feel like lettin' your shoulders droop, and if you let them do it, why, pretty soon your chest will go in, and your stomach will push out, and the wrinkles 'll begin to multiply. You'll look old, and, what's more, honey, you'll feel old. The backbone was made to support your head, and when the support begins to get wabbly you can't brace up the superstructure with toilet creams.

"Not that I'm against toilet creams; bless your life, no. I believe in a woman lookin' as handsome as she can as long as she can, and when I see one of sixty, as I do every day or so over home, massagin' her neck and rubbin' goose grease, or whatever it is, into her cheeks, why, I glory in her spunk. But—and I want you to get this straight in your mind, honey—if she didn't have a straight back and a stiff upper lip she wouldn't be doin' that sort of thing. When your spinal column begins to droop you begin to quit carin' much about your looks. If you haven't got enough ambition to hold your shoulders back you're not goin' to have enough to rub the crow's feet from the corners of your eyes, and the only thing you can do is to get some red and white paint and cover up the cracks. But paint, my dear, won't keep you young. It's all right in an emergency. I believe every woman ought to have a little paint on her toilet table for use when there are dark circles around her eyes and no color in her cheeks and she's compelled to go out in company—when she's sick, in fact, and don't want to show it; then I think it's all right to put up a good straight bluff. But, honey, don't you get the notion in your head that you've got to swab around with a paint brush every time you go out. No man ever put a color in a jar that was anywhere near as fine as the tints that nature puts in a woman's face, and if she don't keep 'em buried under artificial pigments they'll stay with her as long as she holds herself erect with face to the front and gets all the joy she can out of life. A straight back and a stiff upper lip, little girl, beat all the cosmetics on earth."

"I GLORY IN HER SPUNK."

Going to Church.

There's a million excuses for sleepin' late on Sunday mornin', and none of them's any account. It's just laziness—pure unadulterated laziness. That's what it is. We're all of us lazy, more or less, mostly more, and it's a powerful temptation to loaf in bed until the church bells quit ringin'; but, all the same, children, it's a bad habit to get into.

I ain't a pillar of the church, and I reckon if they was to send out a search party after new deacons I'd be about the last man they'd pick, but I come to the conclusion a long time ago that the church is a mighty good thing to hitch on to, whether you're figurin' on happiness in this world or the next. I don't mean to say that the church 'll carry a man into heaven. Not by a long jump. Anybody can join the church, but gettin' through the pearly gates is a different proposition. Some of the meanest, no 'countest people I ever had any dealin's with belong to the church, and if I thought they had through tickets to the green fields of Eden I'd want to go the other way. But I know they haven't. I know they'll all be brushed off when they try to come under the wire at the finish, and so the things they do and the things they say don't bother me a little bit.

On the other hand, I believe a man or a woman, if they've got the right kind of a disposition and the necessary stiffness of backbone, can worry along through life and get satisfactorily settled in the hereafter without any help from the church. But—and I can't make that "but" too strong—it's only one in a thousand who can do that. The other 999 need some help to keep 'em from wanderin' off the straight-away track that leads to happiness and peace and everything else that's worth having.—Colonel John Sneed.

NEW BRUNSWICK HIGH NO MATCH FOR N.P.H.S.

North Plainfield High's football eleven added another victory to its string on Saturday when the borough gridiron warriors triumphed over New Brunswick High by a 30 to 0 score. The boroughites excelled the Middlesex team in every department. They found little trouble in ploughing through a weak line for gains on every attempt while the New Brunswick boys were unable to advance through the N. P. H. S. defense.

Scott and Percy Bailey executed some clever forward passing and Conroy and Stine made some creditable runs around the end. Smith also did some classy work at fullback. North Plainfield took the lead in the first half by scoring 10 points and twenty more in the final round. The line-up:

N. P. H. S.	New Brunswick.
Smith	Griddle

DUNELLEN'S ELEVEN MAKES POOR SHOWING

The Acorn A. C., of Brooklyn, played the Dunellen F. C., a fast and exciting game of football at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, winning by a score of 16 to 0. They outweighed Dunellen and were stronger in all departments of the game, although the locals put up a plucky fight.

Two touchdowns were made in the first half and one in the second. Orr kicked a goal. There were two twenty minute halves. The lineup:

Birthday Surprise.

A birthday surprise was tendered Miss Tina Voehl at her home on Grove street, Saturday evening. Hallowe'en games and dancing were the features. Supper was served, each guest receiving an apple jack-o-lantern with a fortune concealed inside, which were read aloud, causing much merriment. The other decorations were pumpkin jack-o-lanterns. Miss Voehl was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Miss Edna Sebring arranged the affair. Those present were the Misses Della and Tina Voehl, Florence Nichols, Edith Mager, Irene Voehl, Edna Sebring, Ada Van Horne, Mr. and Mrs. William Cochran, Frances Merritt, Ben Schuck, Raymond Miller, Elliott Taylor, John Lamberton, Bud Howard and David Smalley.

Thirty Days Apiece for Three.

Judge Runyon sent three men to the county jail this morning for being drunk and disorderly on Saturday. All three had been in the city court before on similar charges and probably deserved the punishment meted out to them. They were John Geiselhardt, John Callahan and William Molleson. Each received a sentence of thirty days.

The Misses Pierson Entertained.

The Misses Edith, Florence and Mabel Pierson, of East Front street, gave a masked Hallowe'en party to a number of friends on Saturday night. The usual Hallowe'en pranks were played. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Politicians in Warren township are having a difficult task in trying to pick a winner in the three-cornered fight for the office of freeholder, which will be decided tomorrow. Active canvasses are being made by the trio of candidates, Joel Codington, the present incumbent, who is running as an independent, Robert Zergibel, the Democratic nominee, and Jacob Schomp, the Republican candidate.

The Republican leaders are confident that Schomp will beat out his opponents owing to the split in the ranks of the Democracy. Zergibel defeated Codington in the primary fight by a margin of six votes, but the latter refused to abide by that decision, and decided to conduct an independent campaign for re-election.

Republicans figure that Schomp holds a big advantage owing to the factional fight. The normal Democratic majority of the township is thirty, and although Codington and Zergibel have many Republican friends who will vote for them, the G. O. P. leaders believe the defection will not be sufficient to defeat Schomp.

HERE AND THERE.

Former Sheriff Edward Cooper, of Warren township, dropped in the editorial sanctum of The Daily Press Saturday and discussed farming conditions in general. Since his retirement from office Mr. Cooper has been giving close attention to his 170-acre farm near Stirling. Before leaving, he predicted that this section will have a fall of snow before the middle of next month and declared we would have lots of the "beautiful white" before the robins come again.

KUTCHERS ALL IN LAW'S GRIP.

Perth Amboy, Nov. 1.—With his wife in State prison, two of his daughters in the State Home for Girls at Trenton and his youngest child and only son in the Perth Amboy Poorhouse, Philip Kutcher was last night sent to the county jail for ninety days on a charge of disorderly conduct. Kutcher was released two days ago after serving a similar sentence.

He was in the county jail when Judge Adrian Lyon sent Mrs. Kutcher to State prison for keeping a disorderly house. Kutcher went before Recorder H. E. Pickersgill the day of his return from jail and pledged himself to abstain from intoxicating liquor. In less than twenty-four hours Kutcher was in jail, drunk. Herbert Dayton, a local contractor, who gave Kutcher work in an effort to reform him, made the charge upon which the magistrate imposed the second sentence.

Doctors Sue Each Other.

Vineland, Nov. 1.—A sensation was occasioned Thursday by the announcement that Dr. C. P. Jones and Dr. L. F. Hatch, two local physicians, had sued each other for damages. The suits grew out of an agreement made by the doctors to the effect that one was to do the surgical work and the other the ordinary practise work. Dr. Jones sued for $6,000 and Dr. Hatch for $10,000 damages, resulting, it is alleged, by breaking the agreement.

New Borough Fireman.

Otto Ruppert began his duties today as fireman at the borough firehouse, succeeding Ed Terry, resigned.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

Plainfield, N. J., Oct. 30, 1909.
To members of Councils of the Jr. O. U. A. M., of Union county, residing in the borough of North Plainfield, N. J.:

I have been informed that the letter addressed to Mr. Chas. A. Moran, candidate for Assembly on the Democratic ticket in Somerset county, was misdirected. In justice to Mr. Moran let it be stated that he is heartily in favor of the Perkins law as it stands and against any law that may be proposed to divert any portion of the school funds derived from said law. This places him in the same position with Mr. W. W. Smalley, candidate for Assembly on the Democratic ticket.

Respectfully,
J. D. MOON,
President of Union Co. Asso.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

Editor, The Daily Press:

May I ask your indulgence for a little space in your paper, growing out of the controversy over the action of the Union County Medical Society, refusing to support Mr. Carlton B. Pierce for the Assembly.

The writer has been chairman of the committee on legislation of the Medical Society of New Jersey, for the past ten years, and it is but a fair statement to make that during that time there has been no body of men, in the State more loyal to the interests of the public, for the protection of the public from quack and imposters, for the enactment of laws which would add power to the State Board of Health, for the prevention of infectious and contagious diseases and the passage of better sanitary laws, than the Union County Medical Society.

They have regularly sent representatives every winter to Trenton during the session of the Legislature, always at a sacrifice of time and money, and this expense has been invariably born by individual members of the Society.

They have jealously guarded the interests of the State and at no time could any one impugn their motives as selfish.

If there has been one man more prominent than another from Union county, Dr. Norton L. Wilson is the one. He always ready to make personal sacrifices to go to Trenton and assist the committee on legislation in bringing matters to the attention of the Legislature which are vital for the protection of the citizens of the State.

As an example of the unselfish devotion of the physicians of this State, for the public welfare, I would call your attention to the Board of Health of New Jersey, the present crusade against tuberculosis, the State Board of Medical examiners, the laws for the control of infectious and contagious diseases, the prevention of pollution of our streams and water supplies, the inspection of dairies, the modified milk societies doing so much good work all over the country, which had their inception in the mind of a New Jersey physician and the many other sanitary laws on the statute books of this State are the result of the careful, earnest and systematic work of the medical men of New Jersey. We have gone to Trenton year after year with but one motive: to reduce the death rate, to improve the sanitary conditions, and to show the members of the Legislature that the medical men of New Jersey are well to the front in the great movement which is sweeping the scientific medical world and which is to be the key-note of the medicine of the future, that is preventive medicine.

The physicians of New Jersey irrespective of schools have no fight against the osteopaths. If they have developed a system which will alleviate and relieve suffering, we are willing to meet them half way, but we do insist that for the protection of the health and lives of the people of this commonwealth that they should show themselves competent to treat all diseased conditions.

The bill as introduced last winter was based on the present New York law, which is considered a fair and just one. It licensed osteopaths to practice their art, but when they want to treat all diseased conditions, acute and chronic infectious diseases and to have all the rights and privileges of physicians, we contend that they should stand the same fundamental tests, to which all other physicians are subjected. This bill was thoroughly explained last winter to Mr. Pierce by Doctor Wilson, and I am assuming that he, being a man of ordinary intelligence, must see we were only trying to place all the safeguards possible around the lives and health of the people of New Jersey.

We have been accused time and again, at Trenton, of wanting to form a doctors trust and that we would not allow any body to come before the medical board unless they held credentials from certain schools. In our bill we opened a way by which any man could take the examination provided he had the academic training and was a graduate of a school giving a prescribed course of a certain number of years.

There never has been but one aim on the part of the medical men of the State of New Jersey, that is, to protect the lives of its citizens and to make our medical and sanitary laws equal to the best in the world.

The members of the Union county Medical Society, and especially Dr. Norton L. Wilson, have always been ready and willing to do their share in this work. They should receive your unstinted praise and I am sure I am voicing the opinion of the medical men of New Jersey when I say that their only aim has been the protection of the lives and health of the people of your county. The physicians of this State are alive and propose to take a more active interest in affairs in the future than in the past. If members of the Legislature continue to turn us down or treat us with indifference, they should be taught a lesson which would demonstrate conclusively that if they are indifferent as to well known facts in preventive medicine that we do not propose they shall continually legislate for us and thereby endanger the lives and health of our citizens.

This statement is made by me to place before the people of Union county a few facts, to correct erroneous statements and to place Dr. Wilson and members of the Union County Medical Society in proper light before the people, and is entirely unsolicitated.

L. M. HALSEY,
Chairman Committee on Legislation, Medical Society of New Jersey.
Williamstown, N. J., Oct. 30, 1909.

Chalmers-Detroit Stock Car "30" Wins Massapequa Cup in the Vanderbilt Cup Race.

This car driven by Matson, covered the 126 miles of the race in 129 minutes, an average speed of 59.7 miles per hour. This establishes a new world's record for light cars.

The previous record was 55.5 miles per hour, made by another Chalmers "30" driven by Bert Dingley.

Saturday's great performance is further evidence and support of the claim that the Chalmers Detroit "30" is the best car in the world at the price—$1,500. The "30" took the lead in the first lap and was never headed. It lapped every other competitor.

In two seasons the "30" has been entered in seven road contests of National and International repute, it has scored two thirds, one second and five firsts.

There is no other car at any price with such a record for consistency.

THE CHALMERS-DETROIT "40"

In the race for the Vanderbilt cup had a lead of nearly a full lap at the end of the twentieth lap, with only two laps to go to finish. For fourteen laps out of twenty this car was leader by a safe margin—the car doing the circuit with the regularity of a clock. After four hours of better than a mile a minute, racing against many of the fastest and highest priced foreign, and American cars, the medium priced "40" was well in the lead.

William Knipper, who handled the car so brilliantly, had never been in it until he took it to the starting line Saturday. He was assigned to drive it at the last minute, after Dingley's turn over on Thursday put him out of the race.

Knipper and his mechanic were both strange on the car and this caused them the race.

They failed to replenish oil at the proper time, and as a result a crank shaft bearing became overheated from friction and put them out of the race, just when victory seemed certain.

But to lead a big field of the best cars made for 240 miles of the 278 mile race proves the high quality of the car which did it.

The Chalmers Detroit "40" has again demonstrated that it is supreme in its class.

It sells for $2,750, and it is the utmost value at the price.

LIGHT VOTE CAST HERE

Republicans Make a Clean Sweep at Quietest Election in Many Years.

BUXTON IS BADLY CUT.

As was generally expected there was little interest taken in this city at the general election yesterday. Only about forty per cent. of the total vote was cast and as usual the Republicans had an easy thing of it.

On the city ticket, William R. Townsend, for tax collector, was again high man among the Republicans. Herbert Buxton, nominee for ward councilman in the Fourth, was badly cut but this was no great surprice for it was known that there was an axe out for him.

Frank W. Smith, for county register, made a remarkable run here, his total vote being equal to that of the candidate of coroner, which is an unusual thing. Despite the efforts to defeat Pierce, for assembly, the Cranford man ran but seventy-two votes behind Thompson, who was high man on the assembly ticket. The vote cast in Plainfield follows:

SMALLEY EASY WINNER

Republican Mayoralty Candidate Has Walk-Over in the Borough.

G. O. P. VICTORY IS COMPLETE.

As expected Newton B. Smalley had a walkover in the North Plainfield mayorality race in which his opponent was William Lunger, the nominee of the Prohibition party. Just about half the registered vote was polled and little interest was manifested in the election. Smalley was victorious over the cold water candidate by a majority of 465 votes, the former mayor receiving a total of 582 votes in the three districts to 117 received by Lunger. Former Coroner Henry De Mott, by the way, received one vote for mayor in the Third district.

As a rule elections in the borough have been very hot affairs but yesterday's election can be recorded as the mildest event in the borough's political history. The apathetic spirit did not only extend to the ranks of the voters but also to the workers. It was a foregone conclusion that Smalley would be elected and the lack of aggressiveness among the Democrats was responsible in a large measure to the inactivity of the G. O. P. workers.

In the Councilmanic race M. C. Van Arsdale and Barzilla B. Waldron were re-elected by majorities of 442 and 441 respectively over William J. Trembath and George W. Winans, the Prohibition candidates. Trembath proved a popular candidate and he was responsible in cutting into Van Arsdale's vote considerably.

Interest was also at a low ebb in the Assembly race as the vote shows, but W. W. Smalley, the present incumbent, received a plurality of 289 votes over Charles A. Moran and George H. Murphy, the Democratic and Prohibition nominees. The total vote follows:

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE

The Republicans Will Have Thirty-One Majority on a Joint Ballot.

CONTROL BOTH BRANCHES.

The Republicans won both houses of the New Jersey Legislature yesterday, the Assembly standing 41 Republicans to 19 Democrats, a loss of one over last year, while the Senate showed a gain of two Republicans, now standing: Republicans, 15; Democrats, 6.

Little interest was shown by the voters in the election, as outside of the sixty Assemblymen, only eight Senators were chosen. Six of the latter, who were elected for full terms, will have a vote for a successor to United States Senator John Kean in 1911. The Legislature chosen yesterday will, in joint session, select a State Treasurer, to succeed Daniel S. Voorhees, a Republican.

HOT FIGHT IN DUNELLEN

Republicans Elect Sanford Mayor Over Starker by Majority of 17 Votes.

HAD BIG ROW AT THE POLLS.

Dunellen had a redhot election, and when the votes were counted last night it was discovered that Republicans and Democrats had fought a drawn battle and divided the spoils on an even basis. The borough placed itself in the Democratic column by giving George Silzer, Democratic candidate for re-election, a majority of four votes over Judge Hicks, the Republican nominee.

In the mayorality contest, William A. Sanford, Republican, triumphed over Charles F. Starker, Democrat, by a majority of 17. The Republicans also captured the collectorship by re-electing Isaac J. Stites. On the other hand the Democrats re-elected Assessor Peters by a handsome majority and also elected two councilmen, Rebort F. Bogardus and Chas. E. Richards.

The election was a great "carving contest." Out of the 644 ballots cast only 216 were straight, while 428 were cut.

With the exception of one incident the election passed off without a ruffle. At 10 o'clock in the morning excitement reigned for a short period when John Y. Wilson, a Democratic worker complained to special election deputy that the Republican headquarters was inside of the 100 feet limit of the polls. Wilson and George Huff engaged in a wordy wrangle on the sidewalk opposite borough hall for half an hour on the subject. The deputy declared that half of the building was inside of the 100 feet and designated his measurement with a chalk part in the middle of the sidewalk in front of the G. O. P. rooms.

Huff, however, refused to accept the measurement and went to his home for a tape rule. In company with Wilson he measured the distance and found the headquarters to be 125 feet distant from the polling place. Wilson accepted Huff's measurement and apologized to Huff for his part in the argument. After this dispute everything was plain sailing.

Interest centered in the election of Mayor and tax collector and candidates of both parties had a small army of electioneers who remained on duty from the opening to the close of the polls. There were scores of small bets placed during the day, the largest wager being made by Fred Vail, who bet $20 with Goldson Smalley, that Starker, the Democratic candidate would defeat Sandford, the Republican nominee.

Those who took an active part in booming the G. O. P. ticket were Henry S. Garretson, Albert N. Randolph, George Huff, Lewis Churchill and Abner Coriell, while John A. Logan, former Mayor William Wyckoff, candidate for collector, Owen Mohan and J. Y. Wilson did missionary work for the Democratic cause.

Republican headquarters, in the Kratsel building were open all day and were in charge of county committeeman Wilson Fredericks. The Democrats had no headquarters and were obliged to do all their work on the sidewalk.

For Mayor—Sandford, R., 216; Starker, D., 199.

For Council—Bogardus, D., 246; Richards, D., 214; Todd, R., 189; Campbell, R., 187.

For Assessor—Peters, D., 232; Runyon, R., 180.

For Collector—Stites, R., 226; shown as to yesterday's general election. But as usual, the Republicans won handily, making a clean sweep for their county officers.

Although organized efforts were made by the medical profession and by some members of a fraternal organization to defeat him, Carlton B. Pierce ran but 426 votes behind his highest colleague on the Assembly ticket in the whole county. Thompson was high man with 11,775 votes. Pierce defeated his own opponent, Hague, by 2,231.

For county clerk, Calvert, R., received 12,326 votes; 4,281 majority and 4,245 plurality. His chief opponent was John Kenah, Democrat. For register, Frank H. Smith made a fine showing, his majority being 3,996 and his plurality about the same. He polled 12,124 votes.

This is the successful ticket: Pierce, Schwartz and Thompson, for assembly; Smith, for register; Calvert, for county clerk, and Dr. Holmes, for coroner.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Hollowe'en pranks were continued by borough boys on Monday night; and one arrest resulted. Henry Wilson, a celebrant from Greenbrook, was taken into custody for destroying a fence on the property of J Newton Apgar. The lad when brought before Recorder Campbell promised to stand for the damage and on the understanding he was released. A number of the small boys amused themselves by climbing through the windows of the Methodist church and ringing the bell. At 10 o'clock Isaac Stites went to the church and put things in order and bolted doors and windows, but the youngsters gained admittance again at midnight and resumed the bell ringing. Although the celebrants made plenty of noise no damage was inflicted to the edifice.

Owing to lack of support and injuries to players Manager Jess Ayres of the Dunellen football eleven, announced the disbandment of the eleven yesterday. The locals had a game scheduled with the Union Field club of Lyndhurst for yesterday morning, but the contest was cancelled for these reasons. Injuries to Canfield, Dealaman and Nonemaker crippled the team considerably. Several of the old favorites will find places on Plainfield elevens. The team during the present season won three and lost two games. Its victories were over the Jamaica Field Club, 21 to 0; Acorn A. A., 6 to 0; Caldwell F. C., 21 to 0. The defeats were sustained in games with the Orange Y. M. C. A., 12 to 0, and the Acorn A. A., 23 to 0.

George Apgar, while standing alongside of the house of Charles Corriell which is in the course of construction on Columbia street, yesterday was rendered unconscious by being hit on the head by a hammer which dropped from the hands of a workman on the roof. Sacrifice Sale of Women's Dresses

Our Entire Stock of Handsome New Winter Dresses at Wholesale Cost and Less.

We have decided to close out our entire stock of splendid stylish dresses at once. We wish to do it now while they are desirable in every way, rather than wait to the end of the season.

To accomplish this we have hammered the price down to the actual manufacturer's price, not a one of these beautiful new dresses has escaped the furious onslaughter of the price cutter.

$8.98 Dresses of All Wool Serge for 5.98

$15.00 and $16.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 10,00

$25.00, $27.50 and $30.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 18.00

Never has any store offered such phenomenal values right at the beginning of the season. Only the fact that we are closing out the entire line could cause us to indulge in such a remarkable, unprecedented underpricing of fine garments.

Don't miss this great opportunity, be an early comer and share in the surpassing savings which this Sale offers. The prices asked would hardly pay for material alone.

Come to Tepper's for Your Millinery

We carry the biggest stocks—show the newest ideas in hats and trimmings—and our prices are at least 25 per cent. lower than elsewhere; our salesladies are experienced in this line, and always ready to assist you in selecting a becoming Hat, and our Milliner sees to it that the Hat is right, before it leaves the workroom—incidently we might add—we trim everything we sell, no factory trimmed stuff enters this house.

Beaver Hats have been scarce all this season, but our patrons have little to complain of, as with the few exceptions of a day or two in one stretch, we have shown a liberal supply of good Beavers in the newest shapes, at lower prices than some shops ask for the inferior qualities.

CARL LEHMANN IS COMING TO NEW JERSEY

The interstate field secretary for Christian Endeavor, Karl Lehmann, will visit New Jersey in December. Under the auspices of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union he will speak at three meetings in Rahway on Friday, December 3—an afternoon meeting with Junior boys and girls and their superintendents, a supper conference on committee work, and an evening rally with an address on "Individual Work for Individuals." Details of the meeting will be arranged shortly by the county union officers and the district secretary for the county.

On Monday, December 6, Mr. Lehmann will address the Paterson C. E. Union at Paterson and on the seventh will speak in Hackensack before the local union there.

The interstate field secretary is one of the best-informed workers in Christian Endeavor ranks. For four years he has given excellent service in his own State, Colorado, as field secretary, and in consequence Colorado is one of the leading States in the Union as regards young people's work in the churches, ranking close to Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

At present Mr. Lehmann is doing field work for the New York State Union, having begun on September 18 a series of remarkable meetings there. The energetic committee of the State union planned for him a campaign that for the ten weeks closing December 1 includes visits to fifty-two centres with three meetings in each place. Much success is attending the effort.

The visit to New Jersey comes between Mr. Lehmann's New York engagements and his work in Tennessee, which will begin December 8. All of his time until June is engaged, and the New Jersey Endeavorers are fortunate in being able to secure his services during what was intended to be his vacation week, December 1-8. He is a young man, of keen, quick mind and strong executive ability. During the recent State convention at Plainfield he gave valuable help to the delegates and also in the district secretaries' conferences. It is expected that the meetings in Rahway will prove an impetus to the work of the county union in that section, for which Frederick L. Mintel, of Rahway, is the efficient vice-president.

RAILROAD BOARD'S PAY.

What a Jersey Commission Does for $3,000 a Month in Salaries.

Trenton, Nov. 3.—Further information concerning the workings of the commission of three men to make a physical revaluation of the railroads of New Jersey, the members of which, by orders of Gov. Fort, receive salaries at $1,000 a month each, shows that the monthly bills have been about $3,375. This left less than $400 a month for the pay of field assistants, office assistants, and office expenses.

The Governor announced last week that the commission had not as yet completed the revaluation of the Pennsylvania Railroad system. Although working independent, he said they were of the State Board of Assessors, it is known that the first thing the Commissioners in Hudson County did was to get the records of the State Board of Assessors and then go to the county Board of Taxation and get their figures on second-class railroad property revaluation.

An effort is being made to show that the work so far done was in the interest of getting data on floating equipment of the roads, but the courts have already said that the taxation now on this class of property cannot be increased.

It is considered unlikely that the next Legislature will allow another appropriation for doing this revaluing work unless the items of expense are specified. The news that Wisconsin spent $160,000 on such an investigation has hurt the cause in this State.

ASKED $1 FOR $1,500 JEWEL.

Negro Found Mrs. Train's Lost Brooch in Gutter.

Atlantic City, Nov. 3.—The $1,500 brooch lost by Mrs. C. R. Train, wife of Lieut. Train of the navy, was recovered Monday, when Wilmer Jones, a negro, tried to dispose of it to Detective Robert Miller. Supposing it to be a cheap piece of jewelry, Jones offered to take a dollar for it.

Miller took the negro to police headquarters, where he declared he had found it in the gutter in front of the Train cottage in Chelsea. Mrs. Train was overjoyed at recovering her brooch. She rewarded Jones and insisted that he be relieved of the charge of undertaking to dispose of the jewel before seeking its owner.

CITY WILL IMPROVE FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

The firealarm system is to be changed in this city so that it will be on a par with the systems in vogue in all the big cities of the country. A resolution was introduced by Councilman Taylor at the meeting of the Common Council Monday night, which authorizes the city to install at fire headquarters a six-circuit system of alarms which will be an adequate protection and will cost but little money.

The resolution provides for the installation of a six-circuit switchboard with automatic controlling batteries; a six-circuit, automatic fire alarm repeater and the necessary batteries, back supports and wiring, all of which is to cost $2,735.

Under the present system a crossed wire could put the system out of order so that signals could not be received at headquarters with any degree of accuracy. The Gamewell system is the recognized standard of the world and it will be an economy in the end to have this sextuple system installed in the city. Underground conduits laid wherever possible, aids materially in the work of a perfect system of calls and obviates the danger of crossed wires which so often cause serious interference with signals.

A resolution, also introduced by Mr. Taylor, and which was adopted, was the installation of a fire signal in the home of Adolph Kahrman, on Jackson avenue.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MISS BETTIE SMITH.

The funeral of Mrs. Bettie Smith, who died on October 27, at her late home, 169 East Front street, was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends at Bethel mission on Sunday afternoon. Rev. F. D. Tilden, the pastor, officiated. He spoke very beautifully of the deceased, dwelling at length on the patience and endurance of Mrs. Smith during her long siege of suffering, which lasted for three years.

The choir rendered beautiful selections aprpopriate to the occasion. Mr. Elmer Runyon, who had charge of the burial sang by request. Many floral tributes were received among them a pillow from the employees of the Woodhull-Martin Co., "At Rest." A set piece of roses from Messrs. Woodhull and Martin. A set from Miss M. J. Runyon and Miss M. Campbell. A piece by Mrs. Garrigen, Miss Day and Miss Squires.

The pall bearers were from Josephus Lodge, K. of P., and included James Bolling, Syrus Hughes, Henry Wortham, Charles H. Webb, George Johnson, E. L. Mitchell.

GOVERNOR REFUSES TO GIVE UP HIS SHIRT.

Trenton, Nov. 3.—Governor Fort has received from the National Association of Laundrymen in convention in Richmond a request for a shirt he had actually worn to be added to their collection of such things.

Despite the fact that the State house employes suggested that if Fort and President Taft each contributed a shirt the conferees would have enough material to make a tent for convention purposes, the chief executive decided that he did not have more shirts than he needed and accordingly declined to exhibit his shirt this way.

CANCER SHOWS GAINS.

Disease Claims 147 Out of 2,894 Deaths.

Trenton, Nov. 3.—David S. South, State Registrar of Vital Statistics, has completed the tabulation of deaths in New Jersey for the month ending October 15, and he finds that in the month there were 2,894 in the State, the mortality from communicable diseases continuing low, while a slight increase is shown in deaths from cancer and suicide.

There were 41 suicides in October, as against an average of 35 for the preceding twelve months. Cancer took off 147, as against an average of 137 for the last twelve months, and diseases of the nervous system killed 347, as against 343 for the average of the preceding twelve months.

In the list of communicable diseases given as the causes of death for October it is noticed that only 10 deaths resulted from measles, as against 20 for an average of the last year, while whooping cough took off 11, as against a 29 average for the year.

The report shows that of the 2,894 deaths 744 were of infants 1 year old and under.

Mrs. Anna Walker.

In Newark, last Tuesday Mrs. Anna Walker after a long illness entered into rest. She was the mother of D. F. Godown, of North Plainfield, and of Mrs. Caleb Dickinson, a former resident of this city. There is also a grandson now living in New York, and two great-grandchildren, Hazel and Isabel Godown, of West Second street. Mrs. Walker was about eighty years old.

Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Merkel, of 1245 George street, are the happy parents of a baby daughter, born on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Powers, of East Second street, are the proud and happy parents of a baby daughter, born yesterday afternoon.

CAFE CHANTANTE NETS $300 FOR A CHARITY

The Cafe Chantante given at the Park club yesterday afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, was a great success. It is expected that fully $300, including a donation of $100, will be realized as profit for the work of the Circle.

The clubhouse was decorated with French colored bunting, red lights, palms, vines and French posters. The entertainment consisted of solo dances by Miss Marion Hall; pianologues by Kenneth Clark, of New York; a parasol dance by the Misses Hooley, Katherine McCutcheon, Marion Hall, Margaret VanDeventer, Mrs. L. A. Williams and Brown Rowlston; original monologues by Miss Louise Saunders and the dance of the French waiters, John Myers, Hugh Jarvis, William Baker, A. M. Abbott and H. L. McGee.

The heads of the various committees were Mrs. DeWitt Hubbell, decorations; Mrs. Alexander Milne, refreshments; Mrs. W. R. Faber, candy; Mrs. F. E. DuBois, tables. The general committee comprised Mrs. H. L. McGee, Mrs. L. A. Williams and Mrs. A. M. Abbott.

PROCTOR'S CROWDED AT ALL ITS PERFORMANCES.

All Plainfield must have visited Proctor's theatre yesterday, for the crowd was the greatest in the history of that popular house, and with good reason, the show is the best seen there this season. The Imperial Music Trio is alone worth the price of admission, while Gracie and Burnette create much laughter and applause. The comedy acrobats, Larkin & Burns, do some amazing stunts which they expose to the extent of causing uproarious laughter. Dr. Will Davis is clever in his monologue and entertains in acceptable style. The beautiful scenery, elegant dresses and splendid instruments of the Imperial Music Trio are alone a revelation in high class vaudeville.

Newest Corset Models

The charm and style of the present models in Women's Dress are dependent, to an amazing extent, upon the careful choice of the corset over which they are to be worn. Many a beautiful gown will show a disappointing look of grace if the selection of the corset best adapted to the particular figure has been carelessly made. We are showing all the newest models in the following well known makes. Thompson's Glove Fitting, W. B. Reduso, Redfern Whalebone, Royal Worcester Adjusto, R. & G., The La Reine, Warner's Rust Proof, W. B. Bon Ton, Reges and W. T. Regness, also a complete assortment of Ferris Waists and Brassine Bust Supporters.

There are so many charming models that it is merely a question of a woman's being shown how to pick out the particular one that will bring out the lines of her figure to the best advantage.. Miss Carney will be delighted to assist you in the selection.

"I really feel highly gratified over my election. I take it as an evidence that the citizens of the borough have confidence in me and that the result is a commendation on my record during the years I served as the borough's chief magistrate. I have always aimed to do what I thought was for the best interests of the municipality and will continue the same policy. I am in favor of a sewerage system, as everybody knows, and I will lend my support to secure this needed improvement. I intend to carry out all the pledges made at Saturday night's mass meeting in Saengerbund Hall in relation to street improvements, etc."

ST. MARY'S CHOIR HAS A MASQUERADE DANCE.

The annual masquerade Hallowe'en dance of the choir of St. Mary's church was held last night in the assembly hall of the Parochial School. The hall was decorated with Japanese lanterns and large American flags, making a fine decorative effect. Over sixty couples were on the floor. Charles M. Suhr's Imperial orchestra furnished the music. Many of costumes worn were extremely original and unique and caused much favorable comment. A collation was served during the intermission at midnight.

The committee consisted of Theodore J. Shirley, chairman; Miss Mary A. Smith, Miss Elizabeth O'Keefe and E. A. Carty.

Miss Sarah L. Huff, of Franklin place, left for Washington this week, where she will make an extended visit with Miss Kate R. Pike, of R street, Northwest.

M. C. DOBBINS FUNERAL

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss Pronounces a Splendid Eulogy at the Service.

INTERMENT IS AT HILLSIDE.

The funeral of Matthias C. Dobbins was held yesterday afternoon from his late home on Elmwood place and was attended by representatives from all the organizations of which Mr. Dobbins had been a member, as well as many friends of the man who was known as the quiet Christian. Many beautiful floral pieces were presented by friends and relatives. Rev. Dr. John A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, assisted by Rev. M. W. Vaughan, pastor of Mt. Olive Baptist church, conducted the services.

Dr. Chambliss spoke briefly of Mr. Dobbins' life, dwelling much on the high Christian character of the man and his way of always keeping Christ before him as an example to copy. Dr. Chambliss said that some men's lives are on a large scale, but the men of great importance are those of lowly heart who live the life of purity and gentleness. Others, though they seem great, fail to reach the great white light.

His friends recognized in Mr. Dobbins a friend who was true in even the smallest of life's duties and his unquestioned work for the church of which he was a member. Mr. Dobbins was for thirteen years superintendent of the Sunday school of Mt. Olive church and a communication from the Sunday school of that church was read by Dr Chambliss. The letter was a set of resolutions conveying the sympathy of the members to the bereaved family and their sense of personal loss.

The interment was in Hillside cemetery. Following were the pall bearers: E. S. Bonney, George Batchellor, F. S. Thompson, Thos. Aldrich, Robert Barnes, Reuben Knox, L. W. Randolph and Frank Jones

WHY NOT STOP THAT ITCH?

Druggist L. W. Randolph Assures Relief with Every 25 Cent Bottle.

Druggist L.W. Randolph, of this town, says that he has found indisputable proof that eczema can be cured—not in one or two cases, but in scores of cases which he has studied.

He would, of course, not think of making such a recommendation to his neighbors and patrons, were it not that his years and years of success with D. D. D. Prescription enables him to speak of this remedy with confidence. It is a gentle, soothing wash with the mild oil of wintergreen as a base. All the cures seem to be permanent, at any rate, a trial bottle at 25 cents will take away the itch at once—instantly. We are sure of this.

MOVE FOR SEWAGE PLANT

Joint Sewer for North Plainfield and Dunellen is Proposed.

TOTAL COST TO BE $270,000.

The Sewage Commission Makes Report With Recommendations to the Borough Council.

A sewerage system, entailing an aggregate cost of $270,000, is the recommendation submitted to the Mayor and Council of the borough, by the sewerage commission of that municipality, at a special meeting of the borough fathers on Monday night. This outlay, assuming that the borough can sell its bonds on a 4¼ basis is equivalent to .32 increase in the tax rate. Two sites are considered by the commission, both being in North Plainfield, in the vicinity of Sebring's Mills. The commission, in its report, suggests that negotiations be entered into with the borough of Dunellen so that some understanding may be arrived at for the joint use of the system.

After the report was unanimously accepted and placed on file, Councilman Woolston declared that he believed the situation was ripe for immediate action. "The borough has expended a lot of money for engineering fees during the past ten years and has got nothing to show for it. It is now time to get busy and I am in favor of getting the matter in shape so that it can be submitted to the voters at the earliest possible date."

Mr. Buttfield, chairman of the commission, who presented the report suggested that the initial steps would be to secure a permit from the State Board of Health and also from North Plainfield township. Councilman Van Arsdale's resolution that the commission be continued and that two new names be added was adopted. Two new members will be appointed at the regular meeting of the Council on Friday night. The commission's report in full follows:

October 26, 1909.

The Hon. Mayor and Council of the Borough of No. Plainfield.

Gentlemen—In submitting this report it might be well to revise the steps taken during the past three years to secure a system of sanitary sewerage for our borough.

Under date of July 24, 1907, a sewage commission, theretofore appointed, rendered a report recommending the consummation of a tentative agreement reached with the city authorities, whereby the city undertook to dispose of the borough sewage for a term of years at a rate of $25 per million gallons, with the sole proviso that the borough's collecting system should be installed with due safeguards against admittance of ground water.

The report of said commission was accepted, its recommendations approved and its work completed.

Unfortunately no active steps were taken by the borough Council to formally conclude the contract with the city, until November, 1907, at which time owing to the nearness of the new year it was deemed proper by the city that the final agreement should be left with the incoming Council and committees.

During January, 1908, the matter was taken up afresh. In February, 1908, the personnel of the city's committee was again changed necessitating negotiations entirely de novo which resulted in a proposition in terms entirely prohibitive.

At this juncture the Hon. Mayor Fisk proposed to the various municipalities along the Greenbrook valley and the Raritan river that they should each appoint a committee to confer with one from Plainfield to consider the feasibility of a joint district sewer and disposal works to serve all of such communities. In accordance with this suggestion the undersigned were requested by your honorable mayor to act in conjunction with other committees similarly appointed.

Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Dunellen, Bound Brook and East Bound Brook joined with Plainfield and North Plainfield in securing the services of Mssrs. Hering and Fuller to make preliminary surveys, plans and estimates.

On January 25, 1909, Messrs. Hering and Fuller's report was received and it was at once realized that the project was impracticable both on account of its heavy first cost and by reason of its excessive maintenance expense due to the necessity of pumping.

Your committee at once took steps to evolve some alternative to include Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen alone and on April 13, 1909, there was obtained from the same engineers a report outlining the plan which in respect of first cost and maintenance, appeared entirely reasonable. The estimated cost of disposal works at Sebring's Mills and trunk line thereto to accommodate the needs of the three committees named the price at $284,000.

Negotiations were at once entered into with the township of North Plainfield, and at a public meeting of those most interested in the township a resolution was adopted favoring a conditional permit to the location of disposal works within the township's borders, west of Sebring's mills.

It was necessary to await the outcome of certain bills (effecting the question at issue) before the Legislature. Upon their passage the services of Sherrerd Depue, Esq., were retained to advise our borough as to legal steps necessary. Some considerable delay was occasioned by the absence of the city's corporation counsel, but in September last an understanding was reached with the city's committee under which it was agreed that Plainfield and North Plainfield should jointly construct the proposed disposal works near Sebring's Mills and trunk line thereto, the first cost of same being divided in the ratio of Plainfield 75 per cent and North Plainfield twenty-five per cent. It was further agreed that the maintenance expense should be pro rated according to the volume of sewage delivered by each. Predicated upon Dunellen joining in this plan, we estimate that the borough's share of the first costs of the works and trunk line from Rock avenue to disposal site would have approximated $70,000 and our share of maintenance about $800 per annum.

The terms thus agreed upon were submitted to the legal advisors of the city and the borough with the result that Craig A. Marsh, Esq., informed the city that a joint ownership was inexpedient under existing legislation and suggested that the city should itself construct the improvements and contract with the borough for the disposal of its sewage.

Your committee believing that concerted action between Plainfield and North Plainfield is most desirable for both communities aquicesed in this suggestion and proposed that North Plainfield should pay to the city a yearly rental based upon interest, sinking fund and maintenance incurred and volume of sewage delivered by each. We further suggested that, if such terms were not acceptable the city and the borough acting in concert should construct separate but contigious outfall sewers and disposal works.

Without further conference in the matter the city's authorities decided last week to abandon the project and continue the use of their present disposal works.

Until last week your committee had, during the past twelve months, received repeated assurance from both the city's counsel and its sewer committee of their desire and intention to co-operate with the borough in this much needed improvement. While we cannot but believe that the city will in the near future realize the necessity or wisdom of removing its disposal works from the midst of a thickly populated district, its decision does not admit of further negotiations, and—assuming that the borough's needs for a sewage system is imperatively urgent—we are forced to the conclusion that steps should now be taken to install such with the co-operation of Dunellen alone.

From an engineering and economic standpoint a site about 3,500 feet west of the Warrenville road would be suitable for disposal works, but the township has evinced a strong objection to the location of such anywhere east of Sebring's Mills.

The cost of disposal works erected west of Sebring's Mills and outfall sewer west of Rock avenue of sufficient capacity for the borough's own needs is estimated at $95,000 and the estiamted cost of a collecting system (including 1,200 house connections from street sewer to curb line) and outfall sewer east of Rock avenue is placed at $175,000; making an aggreggate cost to the borough of $270,000.

Of this amount there might properly be assessed against property owners $70,000 leaving $200,000 to be raised by an issuance of bonds.

Assuming that the borough can sell its bonds on a 4¼ per cent. basis, the estimated annual charge for interest, sinking fund and maintenance will be $13,786 (equivalent to .32 advance in the tax rate) as follows:

Interest 4¼% on $200.-
Interest 4¼% on $200,000	$ 8,500
Sinking fund to retire bonds in 40 years	2,366
Sewer attendant for collecting system	720
Extras including water for flushing	700
Cost operating disposal works	1,500

It will be seen that—apart from any help that may be secured from Dunellen—the extra cost to the borough over that which would have to be in curred with Plainfield's co-operation is approximately $25,000 for first cost and $700 per annum for maintenance.

We have received assurance from Dunellen of its willingness to join with North Plainfield in the establishment of disposal works at the westerly end of said township, but no terms have yet been considered.

We recommend that an application be made at once to said township for permission to locate disposal works at either of the two sites contemplated and to this end we submit herewith necessary form of resolution and application prepared by our counsel Sherrerd Depue, Esq.

The expenditure of the large sum required for this public improvement should be undertaken only the most stringent safeguard of the borough's interests. A large amount of detail and painstaking work must be assumed by some person, or persons, and it seems to us, that this could best be accomplished by the appointment of a special sewerage committee whose recommendations, step by step, would be subject to the approval of the Mayor and Council of the borough. There would thus be always a double check before final action.

We recommend—That a system of sewerage with disposal works at some point west of the Warrenville road be constructed by the borough in accordance with the plans and estimates of Messrs. Hering and Fuller.

That requisite steps be taken to secure the consent of the township and State Board of Health as to location of disposal works at one or the other sites considered.

That negotiations be entered into with Dunellen to arrive at some understanding as to its joint use of the outfall sewer and disposal works.

That there now be appointed a special committee to formulate the various steps incidental to the completion and financing of this proposed improvement and from time to time to make its recommendations to the borough Council.

Respectfully submitted.

"KNOCK IT OFF, PARTNER."

Cry Familiar in Ocean Game Echoes on Hotel Roof.

"Four to them—now knock off."

Ocean travelers are familiar with this cry. It goes on all day long, with intermissions for meals, on the decks of ocean greyhounds. There are various names for it, but "deck billiards" is the most popular. It is one of the best games ever invented for dispelling ennui from the lives of travelers by sea. But as a land amusement it has had no place until some recently returned tourists called upon the management of a popular hotel in Philadelphia for the material for a game of "deck billiards."

The employee who responded to the call that resulted in the singular request for a "deck billiard" outfit did not know what was meant, but in a modern hostelry any novelty that the guests really decire can be obtained sooner or later. A sporting goods house was requisitioned for the simple outfit required to play this travelers' game and a course was marked off on the roof of the hotel.

The game became popular at once not only with those who had played it at sea, but with those who had never seen it played at all, and now the "cues" are in demand all day long and at night the game is played by electric light. As it is exceedingly simple to learn, and the outfit can be made by any one with the least handiness with tools, there is no reason why the prediction that "deck billiards" will be a popular fad this winter should not come true.

The length of the course is regulated by the space available. On board ship the deck does not always permit of a long course, so a space about thirty feet from end to end is used. At either end there are chalked squares, each of which is numbered. The cues are forked sticks that fit the rounded sides of disks that are smooth enough to slide a long way when they receive an impetus from the cue. The trick is to place the cue against the disk (it is not permissible to jerk the disk—it must be pushed) and slide it down the line until it rests on one of the numbered squares—the highest number, of course, preferred.

On board ship all the greater skill is required to do this, because an allowance must be made for the rolling of the ship, which sometimes sends a well-calculated shot wide of the mark by tilting the disk into the scuppers. On the roof of a hotel, or on a homemade course, it is easier to acquire skill, because the course does not wabble at the precise moment when it is expected to be stable.

It will be found at first trial that it is by no means easy to plant the disk on the right spot. It will be pushed too far and overshoot the mark, or insufficient motive power will be used and the disk will stop short of the goal. The players, two or more at each end, take turns at shooting. Partners play on opposing sides of the course, so if the first player places his disk on a high figure the remark quoted at the head of this column will be heard:

"Four to them—knock it off."

Then the player who follows will try to so place his disk that he will not only knock the first man's disk out of the figure space altogether, but that in doing so he will insure his own disk remaining on one of the figure spaces. It is this uncertainty in scoring and the possibility of wresting victory from the other players' hands that lend zest to the game.—New York Tribune.

NEW THINGS.

"Made in Germany" is the familiar inscription to be read on the knife-blades. But the many people who have hurt their fingers and broken their nails in trying to pull out the stubborn and immovable blades of some knives will surely take off their hats and give all honor to the clever German who originated the idea.

So simple that one wonders why it wasn't thought of long ago, this new penknife is made in the usual way. It has a handle of horn, shell or some other substance, with the usual nickel or metal caps at the end. There are, however, but two blades.

From each end, at the metal or nickel tip, dangles a little nickel ring, possibly half the size of a dime. Shese rings are attached to little knots or rivets, and each rivet goes through the end of the knife blade.

By simply turning the ring the knife blade is opened out, and another turn, in the opposite direction, of course, shuts it up again. Simple enough, isn't it?

RIBBONS GAIN FAVOR.

Ribbons play a large part in the small things of dress. They are woven and interwoven in all of the neck-pieces of maline, chiffon, net and marabout, and tie in front with huge bows and long ends. Ribbon is used to connect the largest of the jabots, and there is usually a bow set at the top.

Large bows of maline at the throat are again in vogue. Ornamental bands to wear around the neck with dangling ends down the front of the blouse and finished with tassels or large pieces of jet are the fad in Paris. Many of these bands come in antique silver effect.

A Small Man.

"You're going to marry the baron? Why he's up to his ears in debt."

"That doesn't matter. He's not very tall."

PLAINFIELD LIBRARY NOTES

Books Recently Added to the Plainfield Public Library.

Ayres, Leonard P., Laggards in Our Schools. A study of retardation and elimination in city school sytems.

Brown, J. F., The American High School.

Conger, Sarah Pike, Letters from China; with particular reference to the empress dowager and the women of China. "Fully as valuable as Mrs. Fraser's 'Letters from Japan are Mrs. Conger's 'Letters from China.' Her richly illustrated and well indexed book is vivid and fascinating, and as a whole is likely to hold its own as a permanent contribution to our knowledge, not only of China, but of the less known half of it, the Chiense woman."

Dinsmore, John Wirt, Teaching a District School; a book for young teachers.

Drummond, Wm. Henry, The Great Fight; poems and sketches with a biographical sketch, by May Harvey Drummond. Illustrations by Frederick Simpson Coburn.

Dutton, Samuel Train, the Administration of Public Education in the United States.

Galton, Francis, Memories of My Life.

Gillette, Halbert P., Concrete Construction, Methods and Cost.

Devine, Edward T., Misery and its Causes. "A sociological study based upon a twelve year's survey of misery among the New ork poor. Contents: Poverty and maladjustment; out of health; out of friends; the adverse conditions in dependent families; the justice and prosperity of the future."

Kuropatkin, General. Russian Army and the Japanese War. "It is a matter of singular interest, to note that Kuropatkin has not made his memoirs the vehicle for a protest against his government for the latter's cavalier treatment of hiim during the course of the war. The book is thus not, as might have been expected, a sort of 'apologia,' but it is a straight, impersonal handling of a great historical theme. It brings nearer to a realization of her future ambitions in the Far East."

MacKaye, Percy, The Play House and the Play. "There is a great deal of earnest thought and a sincere devotion to the drama to be found in Mr. MacKaye's book. But it leaves the reader cold, for many of the reforms urged are purely Utopian."

Munsterberg, Hugo, Psychotherapy. "Takes up the phenomena blindly used as blindly misused in the various systems of 'mental healing' and 'faith cure,' frees them from mysticism, fanaticism, and fraud, and presents them as they are, with their possibilities and limitations definitely formulated and in some measure explained."

Pratt, James B., What is Pragmatism. "This critique, lucid, keen, kindly, and ingratiating itself by its bright and genial style, deserves to be read as widely as the three or four volumes by distinguished but discordant pragmatists which thus far have exclusively occupied whatever of public attention has been attracted to their showy philosophy."

Rorer, Mrs. Sarah T., Vegetable Cookery and Meat Substitutes. "Practical manual of cookery showing the possibilities of vegetables as meat substitutes. Gives recipes combining the vegetables having different hygienic values."

Winter, William, Old Friends. "The reminiscences of Mr. Winter are literary; the number of 'friends' is remarkable not only for their size in certain numerals, but also for their fame."

Dawson, W. H., Evolution of Modern Germany. "His book is a valuable granary of fact for every student who would understand political and economic Germany."—Dial.

THE ARABIAN BURNOUS.

"Dressed in white with a burnous," says one writer, describing a sojourner in the desert. His text suggests some glorified vision, but to us in everyday America the burnous is an evening wrap to be worn over a party frock or theatre gown.

It is capelike in its final effect, but has not been made on the ordinary cape lines, nor is it circular.

The shape of the burnous, as we see it now, proclaims its original, an extra long shawl, which was pinned into a hodlike loop at the back, then thrown over the shoulders and caught together in front, probably with a metal clasp, its lower edges hanging where they would, but not sloped off in an even line.

The burnous we wear has still this hooded piece on the back, and is made of an oblong satin. Its front opening alone does duty as sleve slots and its edges preserve their old unevenness.

It is one of the most graceful wraps we have and almost warranted not to go out of style.

Personal Prejudice.

"What part of a railroad train do you regard as the most dangerous?" inquired the nervous man.

"The dining car," answered the dyspeptic.—Washington Star.

What's in a Name?

"Why did your firm back out of that deal?"

"Well, the silent partner made an awful roar about it, and we had to."—Cleveland Leader.

PLAINFIELDER WON GAME FOR HIS TEAM

William Crawford Douglass, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Douglass, of West Eighth street, has made the 'Varsity football team at the Colorado School of Mines. Last week Douglass, in football togs, was on the side lines watching a game between his school and the University of Colorado, when he was called upon to play fullback in the last five minutes of play with the score 5 to 5. Interest was running high. In one of the scrimmages the ball was fumbled and Douglass, on the alert, caught it and made a sensational 40 yard run and won the game for his team. Time was called one minute after the touchdown. Douglass is playing fullback permanently. He is popular with the student body.

AMATEUR THEATRICALS OF HOLY CROSS CLASSES

Rev. George Warner, rector of Holy Cross church, and Miss Iola Moore, teacher of the young women's Bible class, gave a reception to the combined Bible classes at the parish house of Holy Cross on Monday evening, when Hallowe'en was celebrated in the good old fashioned way. Games appropriate to the occasion were played and dancing enjoyed until a late hour. Some very fine vocal music was rendered by Frank Fuller, and John Scanlon, of New York city, former choir boys at Holy Cross.

The Bible classes are preparing to give a series of amateur theatricals this winter and among the plays they will present are D. Dean Howell's "Mouse-trap" and "Evening Dress" and John Kendrick Bangs' "The Real Thing" and "The Private Secretary." The proceeds from these entertainments will be devoted to diocesan and other missionary projects.

Tomorrow the local clergy will meet and Bishop Scarborough will be present at the annual missionary services. From seventy-five to a hundred delegates will be present from various parts of the State. In the morning the regular morning service will be read and at 1 o'clock a luncheon will be served in the parish house. The afternoon session will begin at 2:30.

LECTURE ON SOCIALISM

Rev. Alexander Irvine Addresses the Monday Afternoon Club.

SOCIALISM'S SPIRITUAL CONTEST

The third lecture of the course on socialism given before the Monday Afternoon Club this week, drew as large an audience as the preceding two lectures. The Rev. Alexander Irvine, lecturer at the Church of the Ascension, New York, gave an impassioned talk on "The Spiritual Content of Socialism."

Rev. Mr. Irvine opened his lecture with the appeal of the prophet Micah to his age, quoting "will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousand rivers of oil?" and giving the Lord's requirement, "To do justly, to love mercy and walk humbly with God." He said Micah was regarded as a nondescript, whom the rulers hated. This appeal of the Old Testament, he said was peculiarly social and limited to the Jewish nation. The spiritual contents of the appeal of the New Testament voiced by Christ and His disciples, Mr. Irvine said, had in it the same ideas of faith, justice and brotherhood, the three key words of the spiritual content of socialism today.

The lecturer asked the church to make real the dreams they had dreamed of God and God's Christ. He deprecated the modern warfare between labor and capital as barbaric, and believed satisfactory results could be achieved peacefully by co-operation of labor and capital. He gave the socialist motto: "Every man according to his ability to every man in his need."

Rev. Mr. Irvine gave a rap to the Plainfield commuters who earned their wages in New York and left behind them all responsibility, for the iniquity, wrongs and injustices of that great city. He defined his platform as standing for re-generated society in which should be recognized the right of every child on the globe and the right to make a living.

In the discussion that followed when earnest questions were put regarding this social regeneration, the lecturer showed himself powerless to solve the problems of existing evils, with new methods and, after the manner of iconoclasts, gave proscription instead of prescription.

JOHN RAFFERTY DEAD; HIGHLY RESPECTED MAN

John Rafferty, one of the best known saloon keepers in this city, died Monday evening from a complication of diseases, at his home on Sandford avenue. Mr. Rafferty is survived by a wife and ten children, eight girls and two boys. Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at St. Mary's church at 10 o'clock when a solemn requim mass will be said for the repose of his soul. The funeral will leave the house at 9 o'clock. The interment will be in St Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Rafferty had lived in Plainfield for more than fifty years, and had been in the liquor business for upward of thirty years. His first business here was the sinking of wells and one of the notable wells he sunk was that of the Netherwood hotel, which led to the discovery of the water supply for this city. He was a man of excellent character and was highly respected in the community.

During the hour of the funeral tomorrow all the bars and saloons in this city will be closed as a mark of respect to the man.

ALUMNI DEFEATED HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN

The Plainfield High School alumni defeated the school team at Hope Common, yesterday, in an exciting game of football, by the score of 16 to 0. The school team was composed of nearly all "subs" and the alumni had the advantage in weight. Murphy, Fenno and Taylor played the fastest game for the alumni team and Ricketts and Phillips did the best work for the school eleven.

During the game there were a number of sensational runs of forty and sixty yards and although the alumni outweighed its opponents, the school boys held their own in remarkable fashion during a greater part of the game. The halves were twenty-five and twenty minutes. Phillips was the umpire; Doane, referee and Woodhull was timer.

Balk at Professionals.

The Leal School football eleven went to Fanwood yesterday morning to play the local team, but when it became known that several professionals were in the lineup of the Fanwood team, the Plainfielders justly refused to play the game. Colonel John Sneed's Conversations on Domestic Problems

Copyright, 1909, by C. S. Yost.

IV.—Making a Man of the Boy

COLONEL SNEED watched with sparkling eyes and swelling chest the efforts of his infant grandson to swallow a very small but very chubby foot.

"There is no use a-talkin', honey," he observed to his daughter, Mrs. William Rollins—"there's no use a-talkin', but that's a remarkable child, a most remarkable child. He knows what he wants and he's goin' to get it or break his neck a-tryin'. Just notice how he hangs on to that foot. He's got a grip like a country politician, and he's as dead set as Jim Robinson's old mule. Did I ever tell you about that mule, honey?"

"No, papa, but all babies suck their toes if they're given a chance."

"Huh! Maybe they do, maybe they do, but they don't all do it the same way. Every human walks on two legs, yet it's easy to tell a man from a mollycoddle by the way he steps. When it comes to readin' character there ain't many can get ahead of your old daddy, and I don't need a telescope to see that this young un is an extraordinary child. He's got the makin' of a man in him, and he'll make one, too, if you don't let tom-foolishness head him off."

"THE MAKIN' OF A MAN."

"Why, papa, what on earth do you mean?"

"Just what I say, honey. There's a whole lot of people in trousers loafin' around this town who'd 'a' been real men perhaps if their mothers had let 'em alone. The main point in raisin' boys is in knowin' where to stop. There's too many mothers—and they're good mothers, too; I ain't sayin' anything against their intentions, but there's too many of them—that's got the idea that they ain't doin' their whole duty unless they make little angels out of their boys. Some of them succeed, too, but the product don't stay on earth very long. Little angels are all right in heaven, no doubt, but they don't seem to fit into the plan of things down here. As old Bill Swift's always sayin', they're kind of de trop. What we need in this vale of tears is men, just plain men, and the sooner you get that fixed in your noggin, honey, the better it'll be for William Matrimitoe there. Just look at the little rascal kick. I never saw such an extraordinary child. Honest, I never did.

"But, as I was sayin', honey, the main thing in raisin' boys is knowin' when to let 'em alone. And boys, I want to tell you, can stand a whole lot of lettin' alone and be all the better for it. If you let that youngster get the notion that he's boss of the shop, and I see signs of it already; if you jump and run every time he hollers and fetch and carry whenever he commands; if, when he gets old enough to understand, you talk about how sweet he is and how smart he is right before his face; if you pet him and coddle him all the time and feed him things he's got no business to eat just because he wants them, he's pretty certain to turn out a prig that'll have as many friends as a sheep stealin' cur and be about as much use to society. Maybe you've wondered why the woods are full of just such people. Well, that's the reason. If I had a chance to be born again and was given my choice between that kind of a mother and no mother at all I'd say, give me an orphan asylum. Yet some of the sweetest and best women God ever made make that very mistake, and the funny part about it is that they don't know it and their boys don't know it. But everybody else does.

"DON'TS SHOT AT HIM."

"There's another way of not lettin' 'em alone, and that's hoppin' around all the time, like a hen on a hot griddle, hollerin' 'don't.' That's the mother with the overheated conscience who's got a stern duty to perform and raises her boys with a plumb line and a hammer. She believes, like the poet, in hewin' to the line no matter where the chips fall, but the trouble is that most of the chips hit the boy. She's got her eagle eye fixed on him every minute of the day, and every time he turns round there's a 'don't' shot at him until he's afraid to do anything at all, and the chances are that he never will do anything worth mentionin', for if a habit once gets fixed it's pretty apt to stay through life. I know lots of men who don't amount to a row of pins because they're afraid of makin' a mistake, and I'll bet a whole lot that most of them owe their dispositions to the way their mothers trained them.

"No, little girl, if you want to make a man of that boy give him a fightin' chance to develop accordin' to nature's plans and specifications. You've heard the old sayin' that the Lord takes care of drunken men and little children. I have my doubts about the drunken men; I think it's another party that looks after them. But there's no mistake about the children, and if I was goin' to write a prescription for the makin' of a man I'd put down twenty parts good example, ten parts good advice, twenty parts love and fifty parts trust in Providence. If you're ridin' a thoroughbred horse you don't want to use spurs or whip, and you don't need to touch the rein except to guide him. It's the same way with that youngster there. He's got good blood in him, and all you've got to do is to keep him in the middle of the road, and nature 'll do the rest. You and William have got first to set the right kind of an example. You can't be much of a guide unless you know the route; you can't expect him to be truthful if you tell fibs; you can't expect him to be honest if you look out the car window when the conductor comes by; you can't expect him to be honorable unless you are honorable, not only in your dealin's with him, but with others. It takes a mighty little preachin', but a whole lot of practicin', to raise a boy right.

IN THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD.

"You'll have to remember, honey, that the boy don't know the road. Once in awhile you'll have to give the rein a little pull to the right or the left to keep him from strayin' off at the forks, and now and then you'll need to check him up from goin' into mudholes or stumblin' on rocks, but that's about all. You're his guide, you must understand, not his driver. About every so often he'll come to a fork where the left hand road 'll look to him lots more attractive than the right hand one, and then you'll have to explain the difference. You'll have to show him that the main thing to know about a road is where it's goin' to wind up. Put it up to his intelligence and he'll go the right way nine times out of ten, but if you try to club him into goin' that way it's ten chances to one that he jumps the track and cuts across the fields.

EXPLAINING THE DIFFERENCE.

"That's about the long and short of it, little girl. It's an easy matter to make a man of a boy if you just keep him headed the right way and let him develop as the good Lord wills. Look at him now, will you? Makin' googoo eyes at his granddaddy. Most remarkable child I ever saw."

AROUND THE HOUSE

IDEAS FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THE HOUSEWIFE.

New Model of Stove Should Be of Value—Plain Sort of Inexpensive Bed Linen the Best—Novelty for Baby.

Many a housekeeper is beginning to look about for a new range for the kitchen, to have it in by the time the cold weather comes. There is a new model which has a special kind of draft that is guaranteed to save 60 per cent. of one's fuel bill. Rather a consideration, in these days of high coal bills, is it not?

Gay Japanese dishes are pretty on the breakfast table.

When buying very inexpensive table or bed linen or towels, it is best to get the plainest sort, as any extra fancy work put into them means that the difference is made up to the manufacturers by using a poorer grade of cotton.

The Heppelwhite pattern is very lovely on silver dressing table sets.

Pineapple crystals is a dainty dish, made of one slice of preserved pineapple inside a round of transparent lemon jelly.

A novelty for baby is a hammock with sides, so that he may swing out under the trees on fine days, with no danger of his falling out and bumping his nose.

A useful new kitchen accessory is a frying pan of gray enamel ware, which far surpasses the old-fashioned sheet iron variety.

A dainty color scheme for a small bedroom is gray and white, with wistaria hangings.

There is a very convenient, well-fitted dressing table which may be packed for traveling.

There are little silver rings to set a tumbler in so that it will not leave a mark on the tablecloth.

An excellent new invention is a glass ice cream freezer. It is perfectly sanitary, as there is no tin or germ-absorbing wood next the ice cream. It greatly simplifies the preparation of frozen dainties, as the busy housekeeper does not have to stop or turn a crank. The glass is merely packed in ice and the cream when hard pushed out in a firm roll.

Silver and white dishes are indescribably dainty and cool looking.

To Iron Soutache.

You may be confronted with no little perplexity when ironing a linen frock with white or colored soutache braiding. First stretch the embroidered parts to remove all wrinkles and iron right over the braid to smooth it. You will not be pleased with the appearance of the linen beneath, but turn the garment, lay the embroidery upon a double or triple thickness of a white Turkish towel which will permit the braid to sink into its soft surface and the back of the linen can be smoothly ironed by passing a damp cloth over the linen, following it with a medium hot iron. Iron all parts perfectly dry or they will wrinkle again and be very unattractive. Iron embroidery scallops in the same manner and clip any loose threads that may escape from scallops or edges. A pair of manicure scissors is good for this purpose.

The Home.

A few shreds of candied orange peel will give a delicious flavor to a bread pudding.

Always use lard to grease your cake pans, as the salt in the butter causes it to stick to the pans.

It is better to wipe over meat with a wet cloth than to immerse it in water or let water run over it.

A sponging with a solution of one part ammonia to ten parts of water is said to brighten the color of a faded carpet.

Don't light the kitchen fire unless there is water in the boiler. If not the rush of cold water is liable to crack the boiler.

If you want to keep your desserts on the top of the ice place a newspaper over the ice and your dishes never slip off or tip over.

Select a dozen or so of the smoothest and largest splints from the new broom and lay them away to use in testing cake when it is baking.

Don't fill an oil or any other kind of stove or lamp when it is lighted. This seems superfluous advice, but with the coming of cool weather cannot be too often repeated.

Meringue Hint.

A Baltimorean, whose home city is noted for its delicious creamy meringues, gives this direction for keeping the meringue shell from being stiff and hard.

The shells are filled with ice cream and packed in the usual way between sheets of waxed paper, but they are removed from the freezer 15 or 20 minutes before serving to give them time to mellow.

In serving for a family dinner a good time to do this unpacking is after the soup dishes are removed.

Baked Lettuce.

Cut the roots off a head of lettuce, wash it thoroughly without separating the leaves, tie the tops together and lay in a baking dish with about two inches of meat stock. Cover and bake for half an hour. Remove the head with a fork and place on a hot dish. Season the stock with salt and pepper and a small lump of butter, beat in an egg and pour over the lettuce.

DAY OF REST AND PLEASURE

Filipinos of Both Sexes Make Sunday a Time of Enjoyment—The Market Women.

It is the women who market the produce. Early each morning long lines of these farmer wives, with great cigars in their mouths and large baskets of wares on their heads, can be seen striding along the narrow trails toward the capital city where market is held, says a Manila correspondent.

Strong and happy, they wade through the streams and the mud, calling out to one another as they go, and only stopping to get a fresh light for their cigars from some one of their number or some one whom they chance to meet. Once at market they chat, smoke, laugh and barter for hours over a few small tomatoes, some green squash, a live chicken, eggs, fruit, sugar or anything they happen to have, and toward noon they straggle home, having had a good visit and sold or exchanged their wares.

Sunday is the one really strenuous day for the Filipino. It is the big market day when people come from all the surrounding country, and it is the time when cock-fights are allowed. Men spend a good share of their time during the week in training their pet roosters, and on Sunday, early and late, they can be seen going to and from the pit, carrying their game-cocks under their arms.

Excitement runs high and their joyous shouts can be heard for a long way. Some women attend the fights, but most of them do the double duty of attending mass and then patronizing the market, which is just across the street from the church. All day Sunday they are active and excitable but the next day they settle back into their quiet, uneventful lives.

SUBTERFUGE NOT A SUCCESS

Crosby Doesn't Know Whether Wife Detected Trick or Really Was in Unselfish Mood.

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills, relates a writer in the Sunday Magazine. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious.

She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one.

Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa.

His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said, "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is really very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish too. Why, Cros, dear, what's the matter? Are you ill?"

But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night where he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know, is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or—

Possum Hunting in Queensland.

Among the ways of earning a living in the colony of Queensland the collecting of fur skins combines considerable profit with a fine, adventurous life in the open air in the "bush," the term which describes all country parts, plain, hill and forest away from the settlements.

The possum is protected by the government of Queensland till May 1, on which date young men issue forth for a campaign against the wily animal whose skin makes such beautiful carriage and other rugs and forms the material for ladies' furs all over Europe. Formerly shooting was resorted to, but now trapping is found to be the most efficacious means of securing a good bag. Most of the trappers work in couples or employ a native, and snares of thin wire are used.

Holy Days.

Dr. Hale and the late Bishop Huntington of New York were fast friends. The latter had been a Unitarian and his shift caused a sensation. The Episcopalians have saints assigned to the various days in the year. When an Episcopalian minister writes a letter on any day for which there is a saint, he always writes the name of the saint at the close of the letter instead of the date. Bishop Huntington learned all these things quickly, and began to practise them at once. The first time he had occasion to write to his old friend, Dr. Hale, after joining the church, he placed "St. Michael's Day" after his signature. A reply from the doctor came, and after his name he had written in a full, round hand, "Wash day."—Christian Register.

The "Austrian Lip."

The thick and prominent underlip that has long been characteristic of the house of Hapsburg was dubbed the "Austrian lip" many years ago. This feature was derived from Cymburgis, daughter of Ziemovitz, duke of Masovia, and uncle of the then king of Poland. She was noted for her great beauty and unusual strength.

The house of Hapsburg owes not a little of its strength of character and imperialism to this remarkable woman.

Observance to Be Marked by Addresses in Evangelical Churches.

THE SPEAKERS ARE ASSIGNED.

Week's Program Arranged for the Institution's Annual Celebration to Be Held Here This Month.

Final arrangements have been made for the observance of its forty-second anniversary by the Young Men's Christian Association. Nearly all the exercises to be held in connection with the celebration will occur during the Association week of prayer, November 14-21, and will consist of services in many of the evangelical churches of the city and special meetings in association hall. The program is a notable one because of the participation of several of the most prominent association leaders in the country, including John R. Mott, of New York, Associate General Secretary of the International Committee and chairman of the World's Christian Student Federation, and Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and member of the State executive committee of Ohio Young Men's Christian Association.

On Sunday morning, November 14, the following speakers will occupy different pulpits: First Methodist church, President Herbert Welch; First Baptist church, Lewis E. Hawkins, of Newark, State Secretary for New Jersey; First Presbyterian church, Bradford Williams, of Newark, association evangelist and originator of the automobile evangelistic campaign idea; Congregational church, H. W. Merroll, general secretary of the Atlantic City Association; Park Avenue Baptist church, B. C. Pond, General Secretary of the Paterson Association; Warren chapel, John G. Schroeder, general secretary of the Hoboken Railroad Association. In the evening, at Trinity Reformed church Rev. John Y. Broek will preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. At Grace M. E. church, C. W. Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local association, will be the speaker.

Sunday morning, November 28, John R. Mott will speak at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Saturday morning, November 13, H. E. Parker, secretary of the local association, will be the speaker at the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

In addition to speaking at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, November 14, Bradford Williams will speak to men in the afternoon at 4 o'clock in Y. M. C. A. hall and again to men and women at 9:15, following the evening service in the churches. These two meetings will mark the beginning of a week of evangelistic meetings and Bible recitals to be given by Mr. Williams.

M'ALL MISSION WORK IS VIVIDLY DESCRIBED.

The Plainfield branch of the McAll Auxiliary met at the Plainfield Public Library yesterday. There was a large attendance and much enthusiasm was shown in the letters and photographs received from the evangelist in charge of the mission at Limoges, France, all of which made the work appear very real.

The letter was of especial interest, being explanatory of each photograph and showing exactly what is being done at the mission station which is supported by the Plainfield members.

Two Actions in District Court.

But two cases were called in the District court before Judge William Newcorn this morning and judgments were rendered on proof in both. James P. Homan recovered a judgment for $106.51 against Henry Wierenga, and Rosskam, Gerstley & Co. recovered $43.53 from Elkan Farbman. Both these claims were on contracts and plaintiffs in both were represented by Francis J. Blatz.

Parish Reception at Grace Church.

The members of Grace church will hold a parish reception in the parish house this evening, a feature of which will be an informal program of music. Refreshments will be served. It has been several years since an affair of this kind has been held at Grace church and it was planned to afford the parishioners an opportunity to become better acquainted.

Board of Trade Meets Tonight.

The November meeting of the Board of Trade will be held tonight in the Coward building on Park avenue, when several topics of considerable interest will be presented and discussed. It is likely that something may be said as to the annual banquet of the board to be held during the winter.

MANY GATHER FOR MASONIC INSTRUCTION

The Masonic lodges of New Brunswick, Somerville, Bound Brook, Westfield and Plainfield participated in a district grand lodge of instruction held at Masonic Hall, Babcock building, last night. The meeting was in charge of Grand Instructor Henry S. Haines and Right Worshipful District Deputy John Zulauf, the latter of Elizabeth.

The lodges participating in the meeting are included in what is known as the tenth Masonic district, and similar gatherings are held from time to time to further the interests of the Masonic body. There was an unusually large attendance of Masons here last night and the meeting was one of great interest. After the business session the local members entertained the visitors in the banquet hall.

MONTHLY REPORT OF THE BOARD OF HEALTH

The reports presented at the November meeting of the Board of Health, yesterday, showed the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent. During October fifteen cases of communicable disease were reported, as follows: Scarlet fever, 8; tuberculosis, 3; diphtheria, 2; chicken-pox, 2; total, 15.

In all thirty-one samples of milk were collected and analyzed, the quality of which proved to be better than last month, and the number of bacteria per cubic centimeter much lower. Eighty-four dairies and bottling places were inspected during the month, with gratifying results. Two dairies were, however, prohibited from shipping milk to Plainfield because of the unwillingness of the owners to comply with the requirements of the board. One of the five dairies shut off the previous month, has since been allowed to continue supplying milk here, the owner having complied with the necessary conditions.

The new rules and regulations concerning the production and transportation of milk have been printed on cloth and during the month have been posted in about half of the dairies supplying milk in Plainfield.

During the month the work of the sanitary survey of the city was continued. In all 275 inspections were made in the districts included in East Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh streets, between Park avenue and Richmond street. Forty nuisances were found on the above properties, but the majority of them were of minor character.

Milk permits were granted to the following applicants to sell milk from their stores: Neuman Brothers, R. H. Keenan, Louis Pollock. Wood Brook Farms and Charles J. Feller were granted renewal of their permits to sell milk from wagons. The application of B. C. Firstbrook for a permit to sell milk was laid on the table for one month. An application for a permit to collect garbage, submitted by H. D. S. Marshall, was referred to the assistant health officer with power.

The total number of inspections in connection with plumbing, etc., was 658. These returns were made to the office of the board: Marriages, 20; births, 26; still-births, 1; deaths, 22.

EMERSON E. PARVIN TO SPEAK AT HOPE CHAPEL.

Emerson E. Parvin, of Watchung avenue, will deliver a stereopticon lecture, "Over the Seas and the Lure of Foreign Lands," tomorrow night at Hope chapel under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The proceeds are to be devoted to the church fund.

Mr. Parvin is secretary of the International Mercantile Marine Company and is exceptionally well qualified to speak on the topic he has chosen. He will no doubt attract a large audience, for in his official position he has traveled extensively and is able to speak with authority on this subject.

John Butler Yeats to Lecture.

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, of East Front street, has offered the use of her home for a lecture by John Butler Yeats, R. H. A., on "The Young Ireland Movement, and Its Effect on the People," Tuesday night, November 16, at 8:30 o'clock. Tickets are being sold by druggists Randolph and Armstrong; also by Mrs. Mead and Mrs. C. E. Brooks.

Colored Chauffeur Fined.

William Brown, colored, a chauffeur for J. F. McDonald, was fined five dollars by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning for driving his car too fast around the corner of Park avenue and Front street, and for adding impudence to the first offense. He was arrested by Patrolman Charles Flynn.

JOHN RAFFERTY BURIED

Bars are Closed as Mark of Respect to Model Saloon Keeper.

A GREAT FUNERAL CORTEGE.

Solemn Requiem Mass Said at St. Mary's by Rev. B. M. Bogan—Interment at St. Mary's Cemetery.

One of the longest funeral corteges ever seen in this city followed the remains of John Rafferty to their final resting place in St. Mary's cemetery this morning. It was with difficulty that enough conveyances could be obtained to accommodate the friends who wished to attend the funeral. Westfield and other nearby towns were called upon to furnish carriages after the local supply was exhausted.

The funeral left the late home of Mr. Rafferty at 22 Sandford avenue, at 9 o'clock and at St. Mary's church, of which he had been an active member, at 10 o'clock a solmen requiem mass was said for the repose of his soul.

During the church services nearly all the saloons and bars in the city were closed out of respect to Mr. Rafferty, who was known as one of the most consistent men in the business. It was a characteristic of his that no matter who, nor the excuse offered, no man under the influence of liquor could obtain another drink in Mr. Rafferty's place. It is said that even an entirely sober man stumbling through the entrance to the saloon was sure to have his request for liquid refreshment denied.

Mr. Rafferty established stringent rules at his place of business which he rigidly enforced. His peculiarly firm character was most noticeable in his home, where he has brought up a family of large proportions with the scrupulous care another might have devoted to other purposes. He is survived by two sons and eight daughters and his wife.

Rev. Father Bogan was assisted in the church service by Fathers Hogan and Sciola. Following were the pall bearers: John F. McIntyre, Joseph Blatz, Jacob Blimm, James E. Martine, A. F. Raymond and former Mayor P. J. Ryan, of Elizabeth

THORNTON AVENUE MUST REMAIN IN DARKNESS.

Because the street does not yet belong to the city Thornton avenue between Kensington and Park avenues may have to remain in darkness until the corporation counsel renders a decision as to the city's liability in event of accident. A petition came up before the Common Council Monday night in which it was asked that lights for this thoroughfare be installed. J. H. Atwood, who represented his mother, the owner of the property, said that his mother was afraid to leave her own home at night because of the great liability of accident. There are many pitfalls where a land company has been grading its property, but unless the moon shines it is almost impossible to get across or up and down the street without stumbling into a trench.

Councilman Mygatt said that putting lights in this street might be construed as an acceptance of it and the city has no intention of taking over the street until it is ready for traffic and travel. On motion of Councilman Montgomery, the matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel for his opinion.

Other petitions for lights were more successful. L. Miller, who asked for two lights on Everett place and that of John R. Gleason for a light on Woodland avenue, John H. Albert for one on Fourth street between Washington and Richmond streets, were all granted, as was also one for lights at the corner of Monroe avenue and West Fourth street.

Goes to Work on Farm.

Willie Blount, the homeless boy who was put in charge of Probation Officer Erwin, of Elizabeth, has been placed in the hands of friends who will take care of him on a farm not far from this city. Willie was quite willing to take up the work on the farm and Captain Erwin says that he will become a good citizen under proper influences.

Will Hold Consecration Service.

The Park Avenue Baptist Endeavor Society will hold its Bible study consecration service tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The topic will be "Life Lessons from the Book of Hebrews," Heb. 12:1-4. Mrs. David M. Runyon will lead.

S. A. Meeting Tonight.

There will be a special service at the Salvation Army hall this evening at 8 o'clock to be conducted by Martin A. Korff. There will be special music. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

B. S. ROCKWELL FINDS BRIDE IN CALIFORNIA

Miss Dorothy Hilda Barnicott, of Newcastle, California, and Bertram Stanley Rockwell, of East Front street, this city, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Somerset Orchard, Newcastle, California.

The bride and groom will come east on their wedding trip and visit for a few weeks at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rockwell, of East Front street, before returning to California, where the groom is in business.

C. J. FISK ACCEPTS PLACE ON COMMISSION

Mayor Charles J. Fisk today received a letter from Governor J. F. Fort asking him to accept a place in the membership on the commission for the proposed Washington Crossing public park project. The appointment was generally expected and Mr. Fisk has cheerfully agreed to accept. The Governor's letter follows:

"Pursuant to a request in the form of petitions from citizens and a resolution from several bodies in the State, I am designating a number of persons to serve as commissioners to forward a project to establish at Washington's Crossing a National Public Park upon lands adjacent to the Delaware river at that point.

"The crossing of the Delaware by Washington on December 26, 1776, is an historic event worthy of commemoration. The commission is requested to meet for organization at the Executive Chambers in the city of Trenton on Tuesday next the 9th inst., at 2 o'clock. I earnestly hope that you will find it convenient to serve on this commission with others whom I have designated for that purpose and that you will be present at the meeting for organization that the plans for the furtherance of the project may be initiated."

ENCOURAGING REPORTS OF THE LOCAL Y.W.C.A.

Reports were read at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association showing the unusual growth of the educational department of the association.

In the domestic science department the registration for cooking, taught by Miss Mary Farrell, is so large that there is a waiting list for nearly all classes. In the morning class there is a registration of fourteen, afternoon of thirteen, evening of fourteen. In dressmaking, taught by Miss Isabel Scarborough, the morning and evening classes each register nine and the afternoon six.

Miss Scarborough also gives her services for an afternoon junior sewing class. Under Miss Edith Capron, of New York city, the evening millinery class of twelve members is doing good work. Miss Lough teaches seven in the afternoon and nine in the evening embroidery. An afternoon French class of seven and an evening French class to be started soon are taught by Miss Zoe Bateman. Frau Haugh has a good German class meeting on Tuesday evenings.

The department of English for foreign speaking girls has five classes: One Monday evening, taught by Miss Humphreys in English grammar and correspondence; one Wednesday afternoon for Swedish girls, taught by Miss Weaver, and three graded classes Wednesday evenings. One of these is a beginning class for girls unable to speak English, and is taught by Miss Ellen Merrell with a new method successfully used by the New York city Y. M. C. A. The two other Wednesday evening classes are taught by Miss Theo. Campbell and Miss Ada Clarke.

Last evening under the direction of Miss Helen Brown, the girls in the English department played games and enjoyed a social hour. Two courses in "get ready for Christmas" work are very popular and one course in stencelling and metal hammering, has three classes taught by Mr. Bostwick of the high school, and a course in the making of raffle bags is deservedly popular. The committee also decided to issue at the close of a term's work a card of recognition of work accomplished, and also to issue at the end of a course a diploma. The fine work in this department is due to the efforts of Mrs. Wm. L. Murray, chairman, with her able committee. The report of the physical department showing 120 girls registered in gymnasium classes was also most encouraging.

SLATE MAKERS ARE BUSY

Frelinghuysen Senate Head and Pierce Next Speaker They Predict.

ACKERMAN G. O. P. LEADER.

The State House Talk as to the Probable Organization of the Next Legislature's Session.

Now that Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Union county, has been re-elected to a third term in the Legislature he is regarded as the most available member among the Republicans for the House Speakership or the majority leadership, whichever he prefers.

In point of natural ability and legislative experience, Mr. Pierce and Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Somerset county, are conceded by those who are familiar with the personnel of the incoming House to rank highest among the 41 Republicans elected to serve in the popular lawmaking branch. Mr. Smalley now becomes dean of the Republican majority by virtue of the fact that he has already served three years, and will be the only four-year man to sit in the next House. Ordinarily he might be regarded as possessing somewhat greater claims for honor than his colleague from Union, but in the present circumstances he will approach the session handicapped by the fact that Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Senator from Somerset, will be elected president of the Upper House. If political customs of the past are followed both presiding officers cannot come from the same county, and in this view Mr. Smalley would at least be barred from aspiring to the Speakership.

Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

The political logic of the situation emphasizes consideration of Assemblyman Pierce for the Speakership. Although the Union county man's name has been mentioned a number of times in connection with either the Speakership or the majority leadership, he himself has been silent concerning the subject. However, it will be remembered that Mr. Pierce was a candidate for the Speakership a year ago, but withdrew his name before the Republican caucus was held, and it is a good guess to make that he will loom up very prominently for this place at the next session.

It is generaly conceded that Mr. Pierce is eminently fitted to act as presiding officer of the House. He is one of the most courteous men who has ever sat in the Legislature, a quality that is essential to a good Speaker, and yet withal he possesses a firmness of character and discriminating judgment in a way to make him master of those who in stress of parliamentary conflict would be able to take advantage of a presiding offi-

FORGOT TRAIN WAS MOVING; NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

Evidently forgetting that the 6:09 train he was on last night did not stop at the Grant avenue station, where he wanted to alight, George Haken, a machinist employed in the Elizabethport shops of the Central Railroad, stepped off the train while it was going at full speed and miraculously escaped instant death. More marvelous still Haken sustained no further damage than a shaking up and a few bruises.

George Dufford, of 613 West Front street, who was with Haken and who also works in the Elizabethport shops, had the train stopped and the ambulance summoned. Haken was taken to Dr. Lufburrow's office unconscious, but was soon revived. A careful examination failed to reveal any broken bones and Haken was taken to his home at 323 Manson place.

TOLD OF MISSION WORK IN THE LATIN LANDS

In an interesting paper on Spain, Austria and Portugal, Mrs. Robert Lowry presented Tuesday afternoon to the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church a brief outline of the religious work done in these three countries, the general subject for study being "The Gospel in Latin Lands." With a hasty glance at the ancient splendors of Spain, its art and architecture, with a mention of the Alhambra, Mrs. Lowry told of the small number of Protestants in the country, only 10,000 in a population of 18,000,000.

After reviewing the early struggles against Spain's intolerance, Mrs. Lowry gave the Revolution of 1868 as the opening of opportunities for missionary effort. The work of Dr. Luther Gulick and Rev. Calvin Gulick, as well as that of Donna Isabella Gulick, so called, was highly praised by Mrs. Lowry. Of the latter's work among women, evangelical and educational, she gave Mrs. Gulick's idea, "I want to build a chapel and a house around it."

Speaking of the history of Spain in the words of Mrs. Montgomery, who called it "The History of the Light that Failed," she gave intolerance as the reason of the failure of the light.

Brief mention was made of the religious work accomplished in Austria and Portugal, most of this being done by British influence.

The paper was preceded by a devotional service, led by Mrs. J. A. Chambliss.

ROUTINE MATTERS BEFORE CITY FATHERS.

At Monday's meeting of the Common Council some routine matters were disposed of. A petition of W. S. Crook for permission to remove a frame building from South avenue to a site between South avenue and Sixth street, was referred to the fire and building committee, with power.

Councilman Gloak filed a map of Sherman avenue between Grant and Plainfield avenues, showing the proposed new layout and improvements.

An extension of time was granted Frank Mobus and J. S. Bird on their contract for the work on Ravine avenue. Residents of Netherwood avenue and St. Mark's place petitioned the Council for more lights. The matter was referred to the finance committee. Complaints of sewer assessments made by Alice M. Rutledge, Carrie Hart and Henrietta B. Herring were reported back by Councilman Buxton as being correct.

Will Oppose Gasolene Tank.

It is quite likely that Harry W. Marshall, president of the Board of Trade, will present his objections to the installation of a 10,000 gallon gasolene tank in the F. L. C. Martin garage at the meeting of the Board tonight. It is a question which involves all the property owners within a certain radius of the garage and it is understood that many of them have made strenuous objection to the proposed tank.

Prosecutors Elect Officers.

The Prosecutors' Association of New Jersey elected the following officers at Trenton: President, William R. Wilson, of Elizabeth; vice president, Charles R. Rathbun, of Madison; secretary, Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville; treasurer, George J. Large, of Flemington. Trustees elected were Samuel E. Perry, Atlantic City, and J. Forman Sinnickson, Salem.

NOTED DIVINE WINS SUIT

Rev. Dr. Chas. A. Eaton Defendant in Trial Heard at Somerville Today.

MR. GOLDSTEIN WANTED $2,000.

The Counsel for Defense Practically Told Jury the Case Was But a "Strike" Suit.

The $2,000 alleged damage suit instituted by Samuel Goldstein against Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, which was begun before Judge Benjamin Vail and a jury in the Somerset County Court, yesterday was finished this afternoon.

Judge Vail after hearing the evidence produced by Goldstein and his witnesses instructed the jury to bring in a verdict for the defendant. According to the judge's charge there was nothing to show that Dr. Eaton was in any way responsible for what happened to the house after it was properly moved to its new site. Winfield S. Angleman represented Dr. Eaton, and Robert Newton Crane appeared for Goldstein.

The action against Dr. Eaton is the result of the removal of an old house, occupied by Goldstein, from the former's property at Watchung, to another piece of land opposite, it being the desire of the clergyman to get the tenant off his farm. Goldstein had a lease on the house when Dr. Eaton purchased the farm, including the house. Rather than have any trouble, the minister agreed to pay for the removal of the dwelling and to give Goldstein the occupancy of it free for one year, or until his lease expired.

In addition to that he paid masons and carpenters to make the house tenantable, expending in all about $700. After the house was removed Goldstein complained that it was not habitable, declaring that it had settled on its foundations, that a cook stove, as well as dishes, chairs and other household furniture were ruined. Then he started the suit for $2,000 against Dr. Eaton. In his opening address to the jury, the counsel for the defence, practically asserted that it was a "strike suit."

The case opened yesterday with the calling of Goldstein and William Bartle. They endeavored to show that Dr. Eaton was responsible for the alleged damage. Among the witnesses called this morning for the defense were Dr. Eaton, Augustus Mobus, Harry Johns and Isaac Sheppard. The last three named were employed to do work for Dr. Eaton and they testified to the fact that the house was properly moved and put in tenantable shape. There appeared to be an abundance of proof that Dr. Eaton was in no way responsible for such conditions as claimed by Goldstein.

The house in question is said to be about seventy-five years old. It was built in three sections, two of which did not exactly fit with the third. However, at considerable expense, Dr. Eaton put the house in good condition so that Goldstein might be able to remain there during the length of the lease.

Dr. Eaton was formerly pastor of John D. Rockefellow's church, the Euclid Avenue Baptist, in Cleveland, Ohio, and during the past year accepted the call to the Madison Avenue Baptist church, New York, where he is now pastor. He purchased the farm at Watchung, that he might have a home in the country for himself and family, and a suitable place to raise his five children. It is said that he has the sympathy of practically all his neighbors in the defense of the action brought against him by Goldstein.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Republican majority rolled up at Tuesday's election is one of the largest the local machine has ever had, and was a surrpise even to the workers for the ticket. The result means that the large increase in the registry list for several years past has been of benefit to the Republican party or else the majority of the residents are satisfied with the present administration.

Interment of the bodies of Mrs. Fanny Flanders and her sister, Mrs. Crosby, both of whom died within a few hours of each other, at the home of their neice, Mrs. Cottrell, of Bayonne, was made in the family plot here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A number of friends from here attended the service at the grave.

Fanwood B. & E. Co., held its regular monthly meeting last night in the company's rooms. Only the regular routine business was transacted.

Michael Gillotti, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gillotti, of Forest avenue, has returned to his home at Amphere.

Peter Ritter, the liveryman of the borough, is out with a new rubber tired coupe, to meet the demand of his increasing business.

Charles Layton is around again after a severe attack of rheumatism, which has confined him to the house for several weeks.

John Miller and family removed Monday from Hunter avenue to Watchung avenue, Plainfield.

Miss Marion Goodwin is improving from a week's illness, which has detained her at home.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

FIGHT MAY BE FATAL.

Election Row Ends in One Man Being Shot.

Passaic, Nov. 4.—An election brawl shortly before the polls closed in Lodi came near ending fatally. Michael Rosa, a Republican, and Louis Wilson, a Democrat, got into an altercation. Wilson, who is almost twice as big as Rosa, had the smaller man pinned to the ground and was hammering him unmercifully when the latter pulled a revolver and fired two shots into Wilson's abdomen. In the excitement which ensued Rosa escaped. He is still at large.

The injured man was removed to the General Hospital here, where he is in a critical condition. Both men are married and have families.

Sacrifice Sale of Women's Dresses

Our Entire Stock of Handsome New Winter Dresses at Wholesale Cost and Less.

We have decided to close out our entire stock of splendid stylish dresses at once. We wish to do it now while they are desirable in every way, rather than wait to the end of the season.

To accomplish this we have hammered the price down to the actual manufacturer's price, not a one of these beautiful new dresses has escaped the furious onslaughter of the price cutter.

$8.98 Dresses of All Wool Serge for 5.98

$15.00 and $16.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 10,00

$25.00, $27.50 and $30.00 Dresses of Broadcloth for 18.00

Never has any store offered such phenomenal values right at the beginning of the season. Only the fact that we are closing out the entire line could cause us to indulge in such a remarkable, unprecedented underpricing of fine garments.

Don't miss this great opportunity, be an early comer and share in the surpassing savings which this Sale offers. The prices asked would hardly pay for material alone.

Come to Tepper's for Your Millinery

We carry the biggest stocks—show the newest ideas in hats and trimmings—and our prices are at least 25 per cent. lower than elsewhere; our salesladies are experienced in this line and always ready to assist you in selecting a becoming Hat, and our Milliner sees to it that the Hat is right, before it leaves the workroom—incidently we might add—we trim everything we sell, no factory trimmed stuff enters this house.

Beaver Hats have been scarce all this season, but our patrons have little to complain of, as with the few exceptions of a day or two in one stretch, we have shown a liberal supply of good Beavers in the newest shapes, at lower prices than some shops ask for the inferior qualities.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

FOOTBALL.

Unofficial information has been received at Washington at the Navy Department that the athletic authorities at the Naval Academy in Annapolis have decided to agree to the request for the cancellation of the Army-Navy game in memory of Cadet Byrne, who died as a result of fatal injuries received in the West Point-Harvard game last Saturday. Out of respect to Cadet Byrne's memory the Army team disbanded for the season, and Col. Hugh L. Scott, Superintendent of the Military Academy, sent a telegram to the Naval Academy requesting that the Army-Navy game, which was to be played on the Saturday after Thanksgiving, be called off.

Captain J. M. Bowyer, superintendent of the Navy Academy, has notified Superintendent Scott, of Military Academy, that he acquiesces in the suggestion of the latter that the Army-Navy football game scheduled for this season be called off on account of the death of Cadet Byrne.

The death of Cadet Byrne has again raised the question of the abolishment of the game of football among colleges, but the chances are that this will not be done. So far as known this was the first fatality as a result of football at West Point.

GOLF.

W. V. Byard, who won the Oakmont cup, presented by Charles Hyde, at the Park Golf club, Tuesday, had a total of 15½ points. Samuel Townsend was second with 15 points, J. B. Betts third with 13 and R. B. Titsworth fourth with 12½. Charles B. Morse, who won the President's cup with 21 points, was closely followed by R. B. Titsworth with 20½ points. W. R. Faber came next with 14 points and Samuel Townsend followed with 13. Dr. H. K. Carroll, who won the club championship, also captured the golf trophy with 50 points. His nearest competitor was W. R. Faber with 28 points and Charles B. Morse with 22.

While the active season is closed at the Park Golf club, the course will be kept open until the middle of the month, at least, provided the weather is favorable. The course just now is in fine condition.

The Plainfield Country club will close its active season on Thanksgiving Day with a cross country golf tournament, but the course will be kept open indefinitely and arrangements have been made by the house committee to serve Maryland suppers at the clubhouse Saturday nights. If a sufficient number avail themselves of the opportunity, music will be furnished for dancing and this form of entertainment will be continued for the present.

BASKETBALL.

The girls' basketball team of the North Plainfield High School started practice Tuesday in Debele's hall. Miss Terry or Miss Trembath, of the faculty, will coach the team this year.

Plainfield, N. J., November 4, 1909.

Though the editor of a country weekly in rural Hunterdon, John Carpenter, whose funeral took place yesterday, was known far and wide in New Jersey, and his influence was widespread. He was a Democrat of an old school, not the progressive sort, but was honest in his convictions and wielded an unusual power for many years in Democratic councils. He had run the Clinton Democrat for more than two score years and not once during all that time did he waiver in his allegiance to and the advocacy of a political faith which to him was a religion.

If it profits by the rebuke administered on election day, it will be a long time before the medical profession, as an organization, dabbles in politics. Despite the efforts of certain doctors, Carlton B. Pierce is returned to the Legislature by a handsome majority. The verdict of the people is most creditable to them. Union county is proud of Mr. Pierce and no doubt Mr. Pierce is proud of Union county.

Middlesex county made no mistake when it returned George S. Silzer to the State Senate. As a clean, straightforward and sincere lawmaker he is without a peer in the entire Legislature. And he is not lacking in ability, either.

Gen. C. Edward Murray announces his retirement from the political arena. As he is a born politician and a shrewd one, too, it will be a difficult resolution for the Mercer county leader to live up to.

The Jr. O. U. A. M., a most estimable organization, is not to be held responsible for that Moon-shine.

Yes, the Councilmanic candidates were lucky on Tuesday.

POLITICAL NOTES.

"Uncle Dan" Voorhees, State treasurer, was in town today.

William J. Gaynor, Democrat, has been elected Mayor of New York, by a plurality of about 70,000 votes over Otto T. Bannard, the fusion candidate. William Randolph Hearst, Civic Alliance, ran about 30,000 votes behind Mr. Bannard. The fusion ticket trimphed for all other offices.

H. Otto Wittpenn, the Democratic candidate for re-election as Mayor of Jersey City, again defeated Mark M. Fagan, the Republican candidate. Wittpenn's plurality is expected to be as large, if not larger, than that by which he defeated Mr. Fagan two years ago, which was 9,500.

Gen. Murray Quits Politics.

General C. Edward Murray, who for twenty-five years has been a conspicuous figure in the politics of Mercer county and who for the past ten or a dozen years has been recognized as the Republican leader of that county, yesterday announced that he was through for good and all with active participation in the game of politics. He has tendered his resignation as a member and as treasurer of the Republican County Committee, and has announced his retirement to be absolutely final.

Newest Corset Models

The charm and style of the present models in Women's Dress are dependent, to an amazing extent, upon the careful choice of the corset over which they are to be worn. Many a beautiful gown will show a disappointing look of grace if the selection of the corset best adapted to the particular figure has been carelessly made. We are showing all the newest models in the following well known makes. Thompson's Glove Fitting, W. B. Reduso, Redfern Whalebone, Royal Worcester Adjusto, R. & G., The La Reine, Warner's Rust Proof, W. B. Ben Ton, Reges and W. T. Reduc-u, also a complete assortment of Ferris Waists and Brassine Bust Supporters.

There are so many charming models that it is merely a question of a woman's being shown how to pick out the particular one that will bring out the lines of her figure to the best advantage.. Miss Carney will be delighted to assist you in the selection.

NEW YORK RESULT DUE TO JERSEY—TOMKINS

That jealousy on the part of New Yorkers over the growing prosperity and attractiveness of Jersey was the underlying cause for the political avalanche that downed Tammany in Tuesday's election was the statement yesterday of Calvin Tomkins, of New York, who was one of the speakers at a meeting of the superintendents, supervisors and principals of the Newark schools held in the Free Public Library in Newark. Mr. Tomkins addressed the Plainfield Board of Trade at their last annual banquet and is well known here.

Dr. Addison B. Poland, Newark superintendent of schools, presided and introduced the speakers. Mr. Tomkins, who is well known as a political writer, and is a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, said that, in his opinion, the present is filled with more possibilities for New Jersey than any other period in the State's history.

"The most stimulating influence in New York today is the jealousy that has risen because of the improvements in New Jersey," said Mr. Tomkins. "Already industries are moving here, and New York knows it, and this jealousy has been the underlying cause for the political avalanche of Tuesday's election in the metropolis.

"I consider Newark as only a part of that greater city that is building about the port of New York. New York would long ago have expanded radially, but there were two hinderances, East river and the Hudson river. These great estuaries have been overcome by the tunnels, and while there can never be political unity, there can and will be economical unity in the great city now building.

"In New Jersey, of which Newark is the economic centre, there are the terminals of the great railroads, which will provide what New York lacks, adequate suburban communication.

"Newark is the centre where there is a better sentiment than anywhere else in this State, and it is this sentiment that must be depended on to win the day. If New Jersey holds her highlands for residential purposes and her lowlands for manufacturies the maximum of efficiency will be attained. And here it is possible to think in advance and not to have to make improvements by tearing out the old."

Demands Extra Session.

Governor Fort made the assertion yesterday when asked as to the extra session of the Legislature, that such was not at all improbable, and intimated that he thought it necessary, although the question of the diversion of the State's waters is now in the Court of Chancery, and the Hudson Water Company is restrained from further progress in the laying of pipes under Kill von Kull.

cer not so well balanced as the Union man.

If it turns out that Mr. Pierce becomes a candidate for Speaker, Mr. Smalley may enter the lists as an aspirant for the majority leadership, a place that he can seek without doing violence to political customs. Last winter Mr. Robbins, of Burlington, presided over the Senate while Mr. Lewis, of the same county, served as majority leader in the House, thus establishing a precedent to justify similar posts of honor for Messrs. Frelinghuysen and Smalley, both of Somerset.

There will be four new Republican faces in the Senate—Prince, of Passaic; Lewis, of Burlington; Mills, of Morris, and Mathis, of Ocean. None of these, however, stand any chance of figuring in the make-up of the Senate's officers, although it is likely Prince will be given a responsible committee chairmanship in recognition of his defeat of Passaic's strong Democrat, Hinchliffe. Lewis may also fare similarly well, as he proved an able ally of the leaders as majority leader of last winter's House, and Mathis' victory against the "reform" element in his county will also be considered worthy of a good committee prize.

As for the Senate presidency that has already been decided by the temporary elevation to that post at the close of last winter's session of Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset. Mr. Frelinghuysen was made president then when former Senate President Robbins was appointed to the Chancery clerkship, and the promotion was made with the understanding it would be made permanent at the 1910 session. At the same time Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union, was made majority leader of the Senate with the same tacit understanding he would be continued this winter. Mr. Ackerman has shown independent tendencies on various occasions, however, and it has been intimated he might not be allowed the leadership for the forthcoming session, the position going to Senator Edmund W. Wakelee instead. It is believed, however, Mr. Ackerman will be named as promised.

Former Senator Hinchliffe's defeat in Passaic gives the Democrats but six members in the Senate, so of course, they will take no part in the makeup of that branch. As usual, however, they will have candidates for the presidency and Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren, inasmuch as this is his third year, will be named for the post. Senator James F. Fielder, of Hudson, will probably be selected minority leader of the Senate.

In the House the situation is a harder one for the "bosses" to unravel. At the close of last winter's session it was announced from the inside that Assemblyman Ginnelley, of Mercer, was to be the next speaker. Ginnelley, however, talked too much in favor of a Trenton trolley company during the past campaign and, as a consequence, was defeated at the polls Tuesday. With him out of the race Assemblyman William W. Smalley, of Somerset, will be the senior Republican member, having served three terms and having been elected for his fourth. He is considered in the "available regular" class but the claim has been made that inasmuch as Somerset is to have the Senate presidency it should not, also, have the speakership. Mr. Smalley meets this by saying that last year the president of the Senate and the majority leader of the House were both from the same county, Burlington. The leaders answer this argument by stating Smalley will stand a better chance of landing the leadership of the lower branch in view of his own explanation, if for no other reason, though he is being considered favorably for the higher post.

There are no other fourth-year Republicans in the House, but there will be four "third-termers." These are Carlton B. Pierce, of Uunion; Amos H. Radcliffe, of Passaic; Benjamin H. Crosby, of Ocean, and George W. Housel, of Mercer. Mr. Crosby is not likely to be considered because of his independence in past years, nor is Housel reckoned a possibility inasmuch as he has best made himself known heretofore by silence rather than action.

It mustn't be considered, however, that there are not others in the race for the two jobs, for there are. Essex may put forward Duane E. Minard as a candidate for the leadership on the ground that Essex made the Republican majority in the next House. Mr. Minard will be a first-year man and this will work against him. Then Peter Vredenburgh, of Monmouth, wants to be either speaker or leader. Mr. Vredenburgh is popular with Governor Fort and is well liked by the leaders. He is young, a good talker, and active, as well as being enough of a "reformer" in matters legislative to attract attention and at the same time to do no harm. Those who profess to know say it is as much as assured already Vredenburgh will land one of the two berths, but just which one is yet unsettled. Harry P. Ward, of Bergen, who made much talk during the last session, also wants to get something to give him more prominence in the law-mill plant and is asking his friends to interest themselves in his candidacy for either post.

Mark M. Sullivan, of Hudson, who was minority leader of the House last year, will be chosen again for the same position, and Edward Kenny, of the same county, will be given the vote of his minority colleagues for the speakership as heretofore.

MARRYING MAGISTRATE OFFERS 1100 FOR SIGNS.

"Marrying Magistrate" Albert S. Pettit, of Morristown, now has troubles of his own, and in order to capture the person or persons who carried away his signs he has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators. The squire recently had several new signs of various kinds made and neatly painted and placed in front of his office, for besides being a police magistrate he engages in numerous other vocations.

Monday night, when that festival was celebrated, all of the squire's signs were stolen and carried away. And all this took place while one of the town officers was on duty at the police headquarters, which is the squire's office.

The signs have either been destroyed for fear the squire would send the culprits to jail, or they have been very carefully secreted, for a thorough search of the entire town by Chief of Police Conway and his assistants failed to locate the stolen property.

Mr. Pettit is very indignant over the affair, which he brands as "an outrage which should not be tolerated."

BLOWS OUT BRAINS.

Bridgeton, Nov. 4.—W. Scott Smith, married only five months, blew off his head here Tuesday. He was out of work and despondent.

Smith took his gun and told his wife he was going to clean it. He tied some twine about the hammers and after loading both barrels heavily and covering the muzzle with his mouth pulled both triggers with his foot. His head was blown from the body. Smith came from Canton, where his parents live.

BORE FATALLY BURNED BROTHER TO STREET.

Jersey City, Nov. 4.—Frederick Renicke is dead, and his brother August is in the City Hospital, as a result of burns received in an effort to rescue Frederick from a burning couch, in their apartments at 248 Pacific avenue. The dead man was thirty-four years old and his brother fifty-five years.

The Renicke brothers lived with their aunt, Mrs. Emily Miller. Frederick slept in a room off the hall in the front of the house and August in the rear room. Mrs. Miller and her two little sons slept in a front room across the hall.

William Walton, who resides on the second floor, early yesterday morning smelled smoke, and started on an investigation. He traced it to the Miller apartments, and aroused Mrs. Miller. August heard the talking and came out to assist. A thin curl of smoke was seen coming from the room occupied by Frederick and August leaped across the hall and pulled open the door, to be met with a burst of flame. He rushed to the couch upon which his brother lay unconscious and staggered with him to the street, while Mrs. Miller grabbed her two children and groped her way to the open. The engines arrived in the meantime and the Walton family was rescued. When a hospital ambulance arrived, on the sidewalk lay the form of Frederick horribly burned, and near him lay August. The ambulance doctor pronounced Frederick dead.

It is supposed he fell asleep while smoking and was overcome by smoke.

Townley Pearson Surprised.

A surprise party was given in honor of Townley Pearson, of Dunellen avenue, on Monday night. An enjoyable time was spent playing games, after which refreshments were served. Among those present were Helen Able, Florence Clayton, Marjorie Fitch, Vera Flynn, Miss Pearson, Townley Pearson, Ralph Fitch, Carlton Dunham and Mrs. J. C. Pearson.

LEADING AMERICAN CLOTHIERS

Cor. Market and Halsey Sts., Newark, N. J.

Try ONE of Our $9.80 Suits or O'coats at

Although you pay cash for the clothes you buy here, we don't consider that you have actually bought the goods until you have given them a trial.

Suppose you buy one of our Suits or Overcoats at $9.80.

It goes to you with the promise that it is tailored better than any $15.000 garment in Newark or New York. But we sell it at $9.80.

If at any time after you've worn the suit or overcoat you think it doesn't make good our promise return it to us and select another garment.

This sounds like a liberal offer, but it isn't. It's a mere matter of justice, common sense and modern merchandising.

If you're satisfied with the garment (and no doubt you will be) it stands to reason you're not going to send it back.

If you're not satisfied with the garments you buy from us, then we don't want you to keep it because you'll be a bad advertisement for us.

REGULAR VALUE $15.

You're a whole lot better friend of ours if you return the garment and let us square things with you, than if you keep it and grumble like distant thunder.

All our Suits and Overcoats are made for us at a special price on condition that we buy a certain tremendous quantity of them.

The makers cut their profits in two, but make up for it in the big volume of clothes we buy.

We cut our profits also in two, because we sell twice as many as two other Newark stores combined.

And that is the only reason, sir, that we can sell a regular $15.00 Suit or Overcoat at $9.80.

The same applies to our $14 suits and overcoats, which are tailored to equal the best $22.00 grades in America.

We're upsetting all clothing customs to get your business, and we think that eventually we'll get it.

This week we display entirely new November Styles and Patterns. Please be on hand if convenient.

Suits & Overcoats $14

OUR GREAT CARPET and UPHOLSTERY STORES

SHOWING MAGNIFICENT FALL STOCKS OF FLOOR COVERINGS AND DRAPERIES.

That the generous trade that is coming to our Carpet and Upholstery Sections is merited will not be doubted by any one who becomes acquainted with the splendid stocks of Floor Coverings, Draperies and Upholstery Fabrics which are assembled on our Third Floor. Vast space is given to both these departments. They are by odds the largest carpet and upholstery stores in New Jersey.

The Department of Floor Coverings embraces a vast variety of carpets by the yard and great stocks of rugs of every character, from the medium to the finest Orientals, nothing trashy being admitted to the stock.

The collection of Oriental Rugs is equal to almost any Metropolitan establishment you know of.

The Upholstery Section is now larger and more magnificently equipped than any store of its kind in the State. It is, in fact, one of the handsomest Upholstery Stores in the United States. The display of curtains and other draperies and upholstery fabrics is superb. The stocks are diversified and of the highest class—nothing tawdry entering into them, and the variety is so great that, whatever any one may desire in draperies or coverings and other ornamental fabrics, they are likely to find here just what best pleases them.

We help our patrons in planning their rooms and in arranging color schemes and in the furnishing of the entire house whenever desired. We have experts employed for the purpose and their advice will prove helpful to nine-tenths of those who have homes to furnish. We take entire charge of the furnishing of homes whenever desired.

WHITTALL RUGS

AT THE TOP IN DESIGN, COLOR AND QUALITY.

Those who came to see the Whittall Loom at work weaving rugs were impressed not only with the wonderful mechanism but with the beauty of the rugs that were produced, and especially with the beauty of the large rugs that were on exhibition and sale and which are still on sale.

The Whittall Mills have been endeavoring for years to equal, if not surpass, the designs and colorings produced by the Orientals, and that they have more than succeeded is apparent in the wonderfully effective rugs they are now producing.

These rugs are not only made in patterns of the most complex and exquisite character, with colorings equal to, if not surpassing, those of the Orient—dyed with unfadable dyes, tested in the full glare of the sunlight for thirty days before being used in these rugs—but the quality of the wool used in the making of the rugs is the best obtainable in the world, so that these rugs, really more beautiful than the Oriental product, will wear equally as well and yet cost you only about one-fourth the price.

ANGLO-PERSIAN RUGS.

This is Whittall's finest quality, made in patterns and colorings suitable for any part of the home, and rivaling the finest Oriental in texture and design—

9x12 ft., $53.50. 36x63 in., $8.50.
8¼x18½ ft., $48.50. 22½x36 in., $4.00.

ANGLO-INDIAN RUGS.

Especially recommended for offices and public places where service and dust-resisting qualities are specially desired—

9x12 ft., $45.00. 8¼x10½ ft., $41.00.
36x63. in., $7.50. 22½x36 in., $3.25.

ROYAL WORCESTER RUGS.

These are made of lustrous worsted yarns—the designs and colorings closely approaching the finest grades—

9x12 ft., $40.00. 8¼x10½ ft., $37.50.
36x63 in., $7.00. 22½x36 in., $3.00.

BRUSSELS RUGS.

No fabric equals good Brussels for the sleeping-room, yet you must avoid the many inferior makes upon the market. We can recommend Whittall's Childema Rugs—those in the dainty chintz bedroom effects being particularly delightful.

9x12 ft., $30.00. 8¼x10½ ft., $27.50.
22½x36 in., $2.00.

Pearless Brussels Rugs are also one of the good Whittall makes, in which you will find a splendid variety of patterns and colorings at an extremely moderate price.

9x12 ft., $27.50. 8¼x10½ ft., $25.00.
6x9 ft., $17.50. 27x54 in., $2.75.
22½x36 in., $2.00.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Gloucester County Horse Breeders' Association has decided to keep the stallion owned by the State in the county another year.

No agreement between the striking "snapping-up" boys at the Whitney Glass Works, Glassboro, and the company has as yet been reached.

The annual convention of the Cumberland County Christian Endeavor Society was held in the First Presbyterian church, Millville, yesterday.

At a meeting Tuesday the M. E. ministers of Bridgeton decided that Rev. De Witt C. Cobb, of Trinity M. E. church, should preach the union Thanksgiving sermon.

Constable Reeves arrived at Bridgeton last night with a fourteen-year-old colored boy, who, it is alleged, had stolen the horse of F. P. Harris, a Deerfield farmer. The animal was recovered.

While Benjamin Newman was setting pots at the Whitall-Tatum Glass Works, Millville, Tuesday, one of the huge clay vessels fell upon his leg, crushing the limb badly.

In ten days the Bridgeton dogcatcher has caught fifty-five wandering, unregistered dogs, and there is a rush of owners to the city hall to obtain the $1.50 registry tags for their pets.

The Millville Board of Trade Monday evening received a proposition from a shoe concern of Burlington agreeing to start a factory there if they can secure a donation of $25,000 in cash, subscriptions for $100,0000 of stock, a brick building 40 by 100 feet and exemption from taxes for five years. After the board recovered it declined the prospect.

Joseph L. Thomas, a well-known Camden lawyer, residing near Riverton, was badly injured when thrown from his automobile while on his way home from Riverton Monday night. Near Five Points he collided with a five-inch iron pipe that had been placed across the roadway, and the impact was so great that the lawyer was hurled to the road.

In the $10,000 slander suit instituted at Woodbury against John P. Turner, a former postmaster at Iona, Lee T. Hallock was awarded $50 damages yesterday. The postmaster claimed that he left with his wife $20.30 in an envelope from which she was to pay Hallock $14.30 in money orders. He accused Hallock of taking all the money. Hallock declared he only received what was due him, and in the ensuing controversy the slander suit followed.

John M. Howell, an insurance agent at Bridgeton, has charged for two years that he had been illegally arrested, threatened with bodily harm and profanely abused by Policeman W. S. Betchner. Twice before City Council refused to act upon the charges, but last night it gave the accused officer a hearing. There was no evidence to support Howell's story, while the officer was in a position to disprove the allegations, and he was adjudged not guilty upon all charges.

BIG ERROR MADE IN VOTING DEVICE.

Passaic, Nov. 4.—The voting machine in the Fourth district of the Fourth ward, this city, went wrong Tuesday. One of the columns of the machine purported to show that about twice as many votes had been cast for one Republican freeholder as the entire number of voters.

This machine was inspected on Monday by J. Sayre Oakley, a local expert, and C. O. Fuller, of the secretary of State's office. Mr. Fuller and Mr. Oakley pronounced the machine all right. When the voting began, however, the difficulty with which the levers were moved aroused the suspicions of the voters. Expert Oakley was then sent for.

When the machine was opened up Mr. Oakley made this statement to the board: "We know that the machine is not working right; we know it is wrong. The only thing that I can see is for you to make the returns as the machine shows it, and then there is no probability of telling the correct returns."

The vote in this district stood 171 for Prince and 86 for Hinchliffe. The election officers signed the petition in blank early in the afternoon. The matter will likely be carried to the courts.

The hour of the Sunday morning service at Grace Episcopal church has been changed from 10:30 to 11:00. The hours for other services remain the same.

SAYS DUKE BACKED MISS AMELIA BINGHAM

"Shelby idealized and placed me on a pedestal. After all; I was just a woman, and that caused the trouble between us."

So said Mrs. Anne Ansley Davis, 26 years of age, daughter of H. C. Ansley, treasurer of the South railway, of Chicago, with offices in Washington, in Judge Dupuy's court in Chicago yesterday, when testifying in her suit for separate maintenance from her husband, David Shelby Davis, employed by the Prairie State bank.

Mrs. Davis is the young wife who has been accused, and who has admitted, that she smoked cigarettes "rather frequently." Mrs. Davis said that her husband refused to allow her to entertain Amelia Bingham, the actress, in her apartments at the Plaza, after she told him that it was generally reported that Miss Bingham was "backed by Duke, the tobacco magnate."

She testified that on the night Davis proposed and was accepted she told him she smoked cigarettes, smoking one then in his presence, but he declared he loved her too much to deprive her of any pleasure, and that he would not object. Later he did object. She admitted numerous escapades, among them clandestine meetings with Amelia Bingham.

OCTOBER'S WEATHER REPORTED BY NEAGLE

"Weather Prophet" John Neagle has completed the compilation of statistics for October weather. They show that the mean temperature was 3.9 degrees below normal, the precipitation 3.13 inches. ANSON'S PICK FOR ALL-AMERICAN TEAM

A. C. Anson, once captain of the Chicago White Stockings, named four Chicago players, three Cubs and one White Sox, in his choice of 13 players for an All-American team, in Collier's Weekly. In Anson's estimation Gibson, of the Pirates, stands out alone and unapproached as a backstop, but is far from equal to the catchers of the early days of base. There is no dearth of pitching material, according to the writer, and he does not hesitate to head the list with Mathewson, of the Giants, although Brown runs him a close second. Cap writes:

"As a pitching staff there are a number of 'slab artists' in both leagues whose work has been consistent, but the winning of Matty, the miner, and Big Ed give them the preference in the National—the first has been as effective as formerly since rounding to after his injury. Brown's run of 10 straight games win is worthy of especial mention, and did much to make the Cubs the contender in the pennant race. Plank, Connie Mack's mainstay on the mound, is on season's form, easily the southpaw star of the big leagues. Ed Walsh, who I have held for several years past to be the leader of present-day pitchers, proved ineffective during the greater part of the season, but has rounded to his old-time form, and I feel is entitled to a place in my line-up." Chance, first, last and all the time, as the leader of them all is Anson's slogan on that score. Hans Wagner is the one man of all in the game today who reminds the writer of the days when he was in the game, because of his strong individual playing and long hold as a star. Anson says: "Wagner, the great 'Honus,' kingpin of them all, the one man in the game today who, more than any other, reminds me of the 'old-timers.' Several times leader of his league. A record, indeed. I am for the big German, and who would not be? The batting, base running and fielding of Bush gives him the second call. For right field, Tyrus Cobb—'Georgia Peach'—the bright satellite of the outfield, ranking batsman in the American League, quite likely the fastest man in either league, as indicated by his wonderful base stealing record."

BOWLING.

Some good pinning was done in the individual tourney at Campbell's alleys last night.

Charley Matthews essayed to roll four series, but was successful in only one.

Skelly walked away with two series, while Campbell, Nash and Kiely each won one. The scores:

COUNTY ROAD COMMISSIONERS AFTER TROLLEY COMPANY.

An executive sesion of the Union County road committee of the Board of Freeholders was held yesterday afternoon in Elizabeth with members of the Morris County Traction Company to take up the alleged failure of the company to carry out its contract, made at the several renewals of its franchise. It has not, it is said, fulfilled its agreement to keep the roadway between the tracks macadamized, and has failed to sprinkle the streets, as stipulated, or to pay a portion of the cost of new bridgework as agreed.

What agreement was reached will not be known until after the board meets this afternoon.

MRS. ROOSEVELT IN ROME.

Will Leave Europe for Home Next Wednesday.

Rome, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, her daughter Ethel and her sister, Miss Carow, are sight-seeing here. They are escorted by Commander Long, of the navy, who was recently assigned as attache to the American Embassy here. This officer is kept busy in helping the party to dodge interviewers and photographers.

The Roosevelts will leave for Naples in a day or two and will sail for New York on the steamship Moltke on November 10.

BOOM OTTO WITTPENN FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

Secretary of State Samuel D. Dickinson, Republican leader of Hudson county, is pleased with the result of the election Tuesday. So is County Clerk John Rotherham, the deposed leader, and Assistant Prosecutor James W. McCarthy. The followers of all three share their pleasure, for Mark M. Fagan's defeat for the Mayoralty of Jersey City at the polls by more than 6,000 votes by Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn has practically relegated the New Idea leader to the "has been" list of political candidates.

Had the four thousand Republicans who cast their ballots for McCarthy at the primary election voted for Fagan on Tuesday he would have defeated Mayor Wittpenn. In addition to these votes Fagan was "knifed" by hundreds of Dickinson's followers, who voted for the former Mayor at the primary election.

The defeat of the two new idea leaders, Fagan and Record, the latter being a candidate for the Assembly, was a disagreeable surprise to them and their followers, as they were confident of victory until the first returns were received at police headquarters. Record polled 3,000 less votes than Otto, a personal liberty advocate, who was high man on the Republican Assembly ticket.

In Jersey City last night the admirers of Mayor Wittpenn launched his boom for Governor of New Jersey. If the boom is favorably received by the Democratic leaders in other sections of the State the Bachelor Executive of Jersey City will be formally put in the race for the nomination.

Should Wittpenn be nominated or elected, it was said, Ernest J. Heppenheimer, who was on Tuesday elected President of the Board of Alderman of Jersey City, will take Wittpenn's place in the Mayoralty chair. Mr. Heppenheimer is president of an insurance company.

RECORD CARRIES ON THE CONTEST.

Will Perfect New Idea Wing So Its Principles Will Win, He Says.

Jersey City, Nov. 4.—George L. Record, New Idea leader, had this to say yesterday:

"We have no criticism to offer at this time. We were defeated by the verdict of the people, but we are as determined as we ever were to continue the fight for the principles for which we stand, and we feel confident that when the people thoroughly understand these principles they will support us in order that these principles may triumph.

"The work of perfecting our organization will be continued, so that we will be in better shape for the next election. We shall at once begin to extend our organization in Hoboken, Bayonne, West Hoboken and other parts of the county.

"One defeat or a dozen defeats cannot kill a just cause, and we are confident that the principles for which we stand are the ones through which better government in New Jersey and elsewhere has got to be achieved."

SUES RAILROAD HE GETS BIG DAMAGES.

Jersey City, Nov. 4.—William J. Rivers, a newspaper cartoonist, residing at 99 Lafayette street, obtained a verdict against the Pennsylvania Railroad in the Hudson County Circuit Court yesterday. He was awarded $2,000 damages by a jury in an accident suit.

On May 14 last the plaintiff boarded a vestibule train of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Broad street, Newark, for Jersey City. When the train was moving along the elevation through Railroad avenue, this city, Mr. Rivers tried to pass from one car into another. In doing so he was thrown to one side by a jolt of the train and stepped into a dark descending passageway, a result of a trapdoor being left open. He fell and was thrown from the car onto the trestle and his right leg was broken in two places. He sustained other injuries that prevented him from working for some time. Rivers sued for $15,000.

GUNNERS BAG TEN DEER.

Scores of Sportsmen Out the First Day in New Jersey.

Never before in the history of Atlantic county was the open season for killing deer ushered in with such excitement as it was yesterday morning. After a close season of ten years the deer have multiplied surprisingly.

Fully two hundred hunters were in the woods near May's Landing, and long before daylight every stand was occupied by anxious sportsmen. They got a total of ten deer.

State Game Wardens were in the woods by the dozen, and several hunting parties were arrested for hunting with dogs, killing does, and hunting without license.

H. M. Loveless, of Trenton, State Deputy Warden, arrested L. H. Barret and party, of Pleasantville, for killing a doe near Weymouth. While the Warden was called away for a moment the party sped away in an automobile. He also took a fawn from H. Stewart and party from Atlantic City.

TABLET TO HONOR A WOMAN PATRIOT

In the historic graveyard adjoining the First Presbyterian church, in Broad street, Elizabeth, yesterday afternoon, was unveiled by Budinot Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, a tablet to the memory of Hannah White Arnett, a patriotic resident of Elizabethtown during the old Colonial days.

The tablet is thus inscribed:—

Near Here Rests
HANNAH WHITE ARNETT.
Died 1823, aged 90 years.
Her patriotic words, uttered in the dark days of 1776, summoned discouraged men to keep Elizabethtown loyal to the cause of American Independence.

Erected by
BUDINOT CHAPTER,
Daughters of the American Revolution, 1909.

The welcome to the guests was by Mrs. E. Gaylord Putnam. The Rev Dr. William Force Whitaker, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, followed with an address. A message was read from Hannah Arnett Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Vineland. The address of acceptance was by Walter B. Timms, trustee of the First Presbyterian church.

Prior to the unveiling special services were held in the chapel of the church. Mrs. E. T. Tomlinson, regent of Budinot Chapter, presided.

BISHOP PRESIDES AT WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The autumn meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, of the Northern Division of the Diocese of New Jersey Missions, met this morning in the Church of the Holy Cross in North Plainfield. More than 150 delegates from various parts of the State were present when the morning service in the church began.

Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, bishop of New Jersey, officiated at the morning service, and afterwards presided at the meeting of the auxiliary. Reports from the different departments were received and showed an encouraging outlook in the different branches of the work.

At 1 o'clock luncheon was served in the parish house where provision had been made for all. The afternoon session began at 2:30 o'clock.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The excavation for the new Roman Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception, at Prince street and Union avenue, Elizabeth, was started Tuesday. The first spadeful of earth was turned by the Rev. Francis O'Neill, pastor of St. Mary's church, Elizabeth, in the presence of Catholic clergymen, and many members of the congregation of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The new edifice will be a combination church and parocnial school building.

MAYOR WITTPENN WILL RENAME ROBERT DAVIS.

Few Changes Looked for in Jersey City's Official Family Next Year.

Jersey City, Nov. 4.—Mayor Wittpenn, although suffering from a severe cold contracted during the last days of the campaign, was at his office in the City Hall yesterday. He was showered with congratulations, telegrams being received from prominent Democrats all over the State. The Mayor in a day or two will go away for a brief rest.

Already there is some speculation as to whether Mayor Wittpenn will make any changes in his official staff. Under the law the terms of the heads of departments expire at the end of the year. As all of the present officials are appointees of Mayor Wittpenn it is not believed that there will be many changes, if any.

It is known that City Collector Robert Davis will be given a reappointment. There is some talk of a change in the Board of Police Commissioners, but as Mayor Wittpenn made his campaign on the success of his administration, it is not thought he has any plans in this direction. To displace either Commissioners Gilleson or Farmer, the Democratic members, would be regarded by many Democrats as a slap at the organization. Commissioner Mitchell, Republican, is a personal and political friend of Colonel Samuel Dickinson, who, with his followers, supported Mayor Wittpenn.

Announce Engagement at Elizabeth.

Twelve Plainfielders, members of an Elizabeth whist club, were present at a meeting of the club held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Wardell, 453 Monroe avenue, Elizabeth, last night, when they announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ethelywn Crosby Wardell, to Harold Rogers Thompson, of 127 Jefferson avenue, Elizabeth. Both Miss Wardell and Mr. Thompson received the congratulations of the guests of the evening.

Mrs. Stephen Blazier, of Elmwood place, has returned from a visit with her son, George Blazier, at Madison.

HOLD DOLLAR SOCIAL FOR CHURCH WORK

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, in connection with the monthly business meeting yesterday afternoon in Epworth House, held the annual dollar social. During the business meeting Mrs. John McCormack was elected to membership. Mrs. Ira E. Van Arsdale the vice-president presided and Miss Mary Brouwer acted as secretary.

It was announced that the next lecture under the auspices of the society would be held Thursday night, November 18, when Rev. Dr. William H. Morgan, pastor of the Central Methodist church, Newark, will give a talk on "Yankee in Dutchland," which rivals in popularity his lecture on "Yankee in Ireland."

After the busines meeting the dollar social was held. The members, some forty in number, were to bring in a dollar each and tell how the money was earned. The money was also to be accompanied by an original rhyme. While most of the members responded with the dollar many forgot the rhyme. A sample of the excellent verses is found in the following by Mrs. Ira E. VanArsdale:

"A dollar to be made, for the Ladies' Aid; So I trimmed at hat, What do you think of that!"

During the social hour refreshments were served by a committee from the society.

EPISCOPALIANS TO GIVE $1,500,000 FOR MISSIONS

One hundred and twenty-five delegates representing the parishes of the Northern division of the Episcopal diocese of New Jersey attended the meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, for that division, at the Church of the Holy Cross yesterday. The unusually large attendance was a matter of favorable comment of the Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, the bishop of the diocese, who in his opening address praised the efforts of the women of the church in America for the share of the mission work they are bearing. He declared that it is expected to raise $1,500,000 during the coming year and that his diocese would do better than last year when it contributed $12,000 to the fund.

Bishop Scarborough explained in detail how the enormous funds of the Mission Board are handled. He said that the late George C. Thomas, the banker, who devoted much of his time to this work, had made a study of economical methods in conducting such undertakings. Mr. Thomas, he asserted, had investigated the cost of handling large funds by insurance and other corporations and by mission societies of various denominations. As a result, the banker found that the Episcopal church managed its mission funds more economically than any of them and that the percentage of such expense was but between five and seven per cent. This he said refuted the oft repeated allegation that a large part of money given for missions was used up in handling the funds.

After the bishop had closed his address, Mrs. A. S. Phelps, of Bound Brook, as president of the Northern division society, assumed the chair and made a pleasing speech. Mrs. H. A. Duggs acted as secretary. Following the reading of various encouraging reports, luncheon was served by he parish's auxiliary. Mrs. Emil G. Larrsen, the president, was assisted by Mrs. J. O. Stevens. Twenty-five women aided in this feature of the program.

At the afternoon session Miss Bender, a missionary, gave an interesting talk on the work in China.

Murray, of this city, was among the signers of the call for the conference on lay evangelism being held this week in the Marble Collegiate church, 29th street and Fifth avenue, New York city. He will be among the guests attended a dinner to be given the Laymen's Evangelistic Conference at Wanamaker's tonight.

Addresses will be made by Rev. Dr. John F. Carson, of Brooklyn; Charles Gallaudet Trumbull, Philadelphia; M. A. Hudson, Syracuse; H. Wellington Wood, Philadelphia; Rev. Dr. Arthur T. Pierson and Don O. Shelton.

OPPOSE GASOLENE TANK

Board of Trade Makes Protests Against a Proposed Fire Menace.

COMMON COUNCIL HARKENS.

President Marshall to Appoint Committee to Prevent Installation of 10,000 Gallon Tank in Centre of City.

Aside from the presentation of the much belated Charter Day report, and a general discussion of the proposition of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company to install a 10,000 gallon gasolene tank on its property on Park avenue, in the heart of the city, there was no special business at the November meeting of the Board of Trade, last night.

In the absence of President H. W. Marshall, who held a conference with Councilman Duncan W. Taylor early in the evening regarding the gasolene tank matter, B. Frank Coriell presided.

Mr. Marshall returned before the meeting was over and reported that Councilman Taylor had assured him that as chairman of the fire and building committee, he would withhold Mr. Martin's application for permission to erect a gasolene tank for one month. This action met with the approval of the board members, all of whom entered a protest against establishing what was considered such a dangerous thing in the business part of the city.

Among those present were a number of property-owners in the vicinity of the Martin garage, and they all entered their protest. It was the sense of the members that a committee be appointed to represent the board in the matter, so that if a hearing is granted by the Common Council the board will have some standing there. F. A. Duttenhoffer offered a resolution that a committee of three be appointed for that purpose. President Marshall said that he would name the committee today so that no time would be lost.

Secretary A. S. Herr read a communication from J. Schmaltz & Sons, bakers of Hoboken, in which the firm called attention to an item in the Bakers' Weekly to the effect that Hill Brothers were planning to locate here. The firm desired further information. George M. Christian, of this city, through whom Hill Brothers became interested in Plainfield, reiterated his former statements regarding the reliability of Hill Brothers and favoring their intended action of establishing a large bakery in this city.

Before the meeting closed, it was announced that at the December session there would be a "smoker" and lunch would be served.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS DON'T LIKE TOOTH BRUSH

At the Board of Education meeting held last night no action was taken on the bids recently submitted by the contractors for the new Dunellen avenue school house. An interesting report of the results of the dental examination of pupils in Bryant school was submitted by Doctors Stelle and Hillman, which showed that the condition of the teeth, in that school at least, was not any different than that which exists generaly throughout the schools in the east.

The figures taken from the report of the two dentists show that of the 374 pupils examined they found the teeth of nine in "very good" condition. 157 were found in good condition, while only 113 were fair. Those termed "poor" amounted to 90 and the "very poor" only five. Of these, 249 use tooth brushes while 125 do not.

All the members of the board were present excepting Mr. Buckle, who is traveling East. The collector's report showed that $1,324.91 had been collected during October for the school fund, $26,358.60 still remain to the credit of the board. The medical inspectors reported having examined 1,060 pupils during October.

A letter was read from Harry W. Marshall, chairman of the Playground Commission, asking that the board give permission for the placing of certain playground apparatus in the school yard of Bryant school subject to the permission of the Common Council. It is desired to instal this apparatus between now and spring. Action was deferred.

'GENTLE SHEPHERD' SEEN

College Bred Actresses in Pastoral Comedy Delight Audience of Women.

THE CAST WAS WELL CHOSEN.

Scottish Costumes, Scottish Songs and Scottish Dances Help to Make the Performance a Great Success.

One might go far to see so pretty a play as that given yesterday afternoon by the College Club of Plainfield in the Hartridge School auditorium. The play was "The Gentle Shepherd," an 18th century pastoral comedy by Allen Ramsey. The scene was a shepherd's village and fields, a few miles from Edinburgh. The Scottish costumes which are always "fetching," the Scottish songs always charming, and the Scottish dialect always winsome, made a combination of attractions that could not fail to delight a house packed to the doors. The cast was as follows:

Patie, the Gentle Shepherd, in love with Peggy, Elsie Goddard; Roger, in love with Jenny, Margaret McCutcheon; Peggy, thought to be Glaude's niece, Louise Curtis; Jenny, Glaud's only daughter, Eva Browne; Glaud and Simon, two old shepherds, tenants of Sir William, Isabel Ashwell and Ellen Osgood; Madge, Glaud's sister, Elsie Burke; Bauldy, a hynd, Mabelle Phillips; Mouse, an old woman, supposed by Bauldy to be a witch, Mrs. Van Ness De Lamater; Elspa, Simon's wife, Phebe Lovell; Sir William Worthy, Mrs. Richard Boardman; prologue to each act pronounced by Margaret Mosher; other shepherds and shepherdesses, Katherine Ball, Daisy Day, Mrs. Albert Kenelly, Helen Moody.

All the parts were exceptionally well taken. The pretty scenes between the lovers, Patie's confidence and Roger's faint heartedness, Peggy's womanliness, and Jenny's coquetry were effectively acted, and an occasional Scottish song, either as solo or duet, added its tone of beauty to the scene.

The old shepherds, loyal to their master, Sir William Worthy, were fine specimens of Scottish tenantry, as they planned for his coming after a long absence. Mrs. Richard Boardman took the part of Sir William, first as fortune teller, and later as the "Laird," with fine effect. Mabelle Phillips as Bauldy was irresistible and Mrs. De Lamater made an excellent witch with her cracked voice and cackling laugh.

The unfolding romance of the play was the prediction of Sir William, in disguise, that Patie, the gentle shepherd, should become laird of the estate, and later acknowledged him to be his son. The faithful Peggy, too, is acknowledged as of equal birth later and all ends well. A brief synopsis of the play can give little idea of the pretty scenes and situations. There were choruses, pretty dances, the Highland fling by Miss Mosher, and beginning, ending and occasionally accompanying the incidents of the play, the real Scottish bag pipes, played as few can play them by Mr. Donald Thornburn, of New York.

That there may be a repetition of this play is the sincere desire of all who saw and of others not so fortunate as to see the dainty bit of acting that gave nothing but pleasure.

Sesame Club Entertained.

The Sesame club was delightfully entertained yesterday morning by Miss Kate Biglow in her studio in the Babcock building. The subject for the day was "Germany's Instrumental Composers." Miss Biglow gave an interesting sketch of the lives of several of the most noted composers, also some pleasing selections from their compositions. Mrs. Harry Johnson and Miss May Vincent Whitney assisted at the piano.

Street Cleaners Drunk.

Dennis Carty and John Duffy, two employes of the street cleaning force, were arrested yesterday afternoon on East Second street for being drunk. They were allowed to go by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning on their promise to never repeat. If they do come back on a similar charge they will get a forty days' vacation in the county jail.

BAPTIST WOMEN GATHER

Delegates from Churches in This Locality Meet at First Baptist Church.

MRS. A. W. PALMER SPEAKS.

Mrs. N. W. Bishop, of Boston, Mrs. L. K. Barnes, of Brooklyn, and Miss Annie Barkley, of Cuba, Make Addresses.

The annual meeting of the Women's Baptist Home Missionary Society, of the East Association, is being held at the First Baptist church today. The association is composed of all the Baptist churches of Newark, Elizabeth, Westfield, New Market, Plainfield and of surrounding places. Nearly two hundred delegates are in attendance. Miss Emma M. Baker, of the South Baptist church, Newark, president of the association, is presiding. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held.

The gathering is more in the nature of a conference to discuss home mission work in the association and the State, and no business of any moment is considered. After the opening exercises this morning at 11 o'clock, the delegates were welcomed by Mrs. Reuben Knox, president of the home missionary society of the entertaining church. This was followed by the roll call.

During the morning Mrs. A. W. Palmer, of East Orange, directress of the home missionary society of the State, addressed the gathering. She stated that the national board of home missions in Chicago had apportioned $9,500 as the amount to be raised the coming year in New Jersey by the Baptist women for home missions, and of this amount the East Association is requested to raise $2,500.

During the noon hour the delegates were entertained at luncheon by the women of the First Baptist church. The general committee in charge of the luncheon comprised Mrs. Harold Serrell, chairman; Mrs. Frank W. Jones, Mrs. George H. Batchelor, Mrs. F. O. Dunning, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins and Mrs. William R. Codington. The waitresses were the Misses Pauline Denton, Helen Armstrong, Amy Conant, Carrie Demler, Carrie Drake and Mrs. Robin Brown.

The afternoon session was taken up with three addresses on home mission work, one by Mrs. N. N. Bishop, of Boston, another by Mrs. L. K. Barnes, of Brooklyn, and the third by Miss Annie Barkley, of Cuba. They are all active in home mission work and brought the latest news from the field as to what is being done. The information was most encouraging and the addresses held the close attention of the large gathering of women throughout.

GIRLS' MISSION CLUB HALLOWE'EN SUPPER

The essentials of good service, pretty waitresses, well cooked and tempting viands in abundance, together with cheerful surroundings, combined to make the Hallowe'en supper at the Congregational church, last night, a great success. It was held under the auspices of the Girls' Mission club of the church, the proceeds to be used for the Albuquerque Mission.

All the decorations had a Hallowe'en effect and were unusually attractive. There were jack-o-lanterns, varied colored candles and the adornments on the tables were effective. Miss Edith Bentley, assisted by Alfred Evart, was the originator and sponsor for the typical Hallowe'en decorations.

During the evening over one hundred suppers were served and the parlors were crowded from 6 to 8:15 o'clock. Miss Marguerite VanZandt was at the piano and the selections were appreciated by the patrons of the supper.

Miss Lillian Whitall was the chairman of the committee in charge, her chief assistant being Miss Edith Bentley. The waitresses were the Misses Laura Baker, Bessie Wikoff, Edith LaRue, Ethel VanZandt, Ida Dealman, Myra Emmons, Dorothy Johnson, of Nassau, Bahama Islands; Alice Matt, Marguerite VanZandt, Mary Decker, Margaret Tubbs, Margaret Weseman, Alice Morgan. Mrs. Charles Whitall assisted the committee in serving. The profits will be directly expended for a scholarship for Polonita Mastas, of the Albuquerque Mission, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

MOST UP-TO-DATE CITY HE HAS EVER SEEN

"Oklahoma is a fine country and the Indians one meets there are good neighbors," said Harvey Reger, a septuagenarian, who arrived in this city this morning. Mr. Reger has been visiting his relatives in Whitehouse for the first time in thirty years, and stopped in Plainfield long enough to satisfy himself that it is the most up-to-date city he has ever seen.

Mr. Reger said he had started out to find Laing's old hotel but had given it up as a poor job. Mr. Reger formerly hauled grain through this city from Whitehouse to an old mill. He is a relative of the Felmey family and has a nephew of that name living here.

He started west without a dollar and has more than a dollar left now besides a farm at Hobart worth anywhere from five to six thousand dollars, and which he has paid for in cash. He has come here this time to settle up the estate of his father and was inquiring the way to the office of a lawyer, when he was discovered by a Daily Press reporter.

Mr. Reger has great respect for his one Indian neighbor. This red man, who was educated at Carlisle, has been a great help to Mr. Reger in his work at home and has refused to take compensation for his services on numerous occasions. He is strong in his praise of Carlisle. Mr. Reger will begin his homeward journey by the new year.

AFFECTIONATE LETTER FROM HUBBY WANTED

Elizabeth Powers was a very penitent woman this morning when she faced a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct in the city court. She was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Messler for soliciting money on East Second street on the plea that her husband was dead and that she had no money with which to bury him. She varied the tale somewhat at intervals. From some she asked for money to buy bread with, saying in most pleading accents that she had plenty of butter but no bread to use it on.

Mrs. Powers' memory was faulty when she was brought before City Judge Runyon this morning. She could not remember having done anything wrong. Contrary to the general belief she averred that was loved intensely by her husband whom she had slaved for for the past five years. In view of this fact and that the court wants to know the truth about the alleged affection existing between the couple she was allowed to go on her promise to produce an affectionate letter from her husband by Saturday morning.

G. O. P. VICTORY IN UNION UNUSUALLY DECISIVE.

The Union county leaders are jubilant over their victory at the polls on Tuesday, which surpassed their most sanguine expectations. The plurality of County Clerk James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, was 4,253, the largest ever given in an off year, while County Register Frank H. Smith, of this city, who is also county chairman of the party, is re-elected by 3,996.

The surprises of the election in Elizabeth were the defeat by 18 votes of Alderman James H. Walker, General Dennis F. Collin's candidate in the Sixth ward, and the defeat of Alderman Conrad Hall, another strong supporter of Collins. Hall was beaten by a very small majority in the Fifth ward. These were the only two aldermen the Democrats lost in the city.

The McNamara faction, victorious in a factional fight in the First ward, held a parade last night to celebrate the overthrow of Alderman Jeremiah D. Leary, who was defeated by eighty-nine majority by Jeremiah J. McNamara, the regular Democratic candidate. He won at the primary by only seven votes.

Serious Charge Against Him.

Russell DeCamp, a local young man, was arraigned in the police court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. The complaint is made by the mother of Miss Nina Burdick, of Fanwood, who alleges an offense of a serious nature. Miss Burdick, according to the complaint, is but fourteen years old. DeCamp is held under bonds for a further hearing on Monday.

Experts to Talk.

During the winter the Union County Board of Agriculture will be addressed at its meetings by experts. Plans in this direction were made at a meeting yesterday afternoon in the Court House.

RECORD POUNDS TRUSTS

Reformer Attacks Predatory Wealth and Raps the Millionaires.

TRUSTS PRODUCE SLAVERY.

Rockefeller, Astor and Others Hammered—Sugar Monopoly and S. O. Are Bitterly Denounced.

A distinguished audience gathered in the Sunday school room at the First Presbyterian church last night to hear George L. Record, who was announced to speak on "Good Citizenship" and Professor H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the Somerset county schools. Besides the attractive oratorical program a fine dinner was there for discussion and it left nothing to be desired. The dinner was splendidly cooked and adroitly served by a committee of women of the church, of which Mrs. George A. Ballantine was chairman.

The following were her assistants: Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Dr. C. E. Herring, Mrs. Fred Lounsbury, Mrs. C. M. Hummer and the Misses Georgia Rickert, Dorothea Bull, Marion Englehardt, and Ella Lounsbury. Frank O. Dunning was toastmaster.

Mr. Dunning before introducing the speakers said that the membership of the club ought to be doubled because it was a good thing and he also asked for help for the athletic society for its support. Mr. Record was introduced and proceeded to deliver a speech of an hour and a half's duration in which the whole tribe of monopolists and their works were condemned. He spoke in part as follows:

"The things which interest me have a certain relation to the church. The church lays the emphasis on the hereafter and the saving of your soul, but I do not get that idea from my own reading of the gospels. We are about to enter into an entirely new era socially, in this country and the church has a duty to perform which it is not doing now. You cannot get a lot of men interested in anything unless it is made of human interest. No special denomination is going to get to heaven, but the man who has sacrificed for his fellow stands the best chance."

Mr. Record then quoted Scripture make his meaning clear using various parables of the Saviour's as illustrations. He said that in these parables the answers to all human qualities could be found and that they showed where the emphasis should be placed in church work and said the churches should study "how to better the conditions of life here." He said it was every man's duty to help his neighbor and one way of doing that was through municipal, State and National laws. He condemned the laws which permitted the existence of the trusts and said that no man could honestly make for himself a fortune of a million during a natural lifetime. He characterized the great accumulations of wealth by Rockefeller, Astor and others as worse than the slave system of old, when two or three millions of blacks were slaves in the South. The trusts' systems created a worse slavery than that for which two parts of this nation went to war. The crime of slavery is not its confinement but pure robbery. The victims get nothing for their labor. The trusts are a moral sin because they take something from men for which they make no return.

The sugar trust and the Standard Oil trust and the beef trust all came in for a scathing denunciation, the speaker claiming that their methods were dishonest and the accumulation of the vast capital which they represent is the result of worse than slavery for the men who have produced it. This, he said, is the most astounding condition which has ever confronted the American people. The four problems we have to solve are money, tariff, regulation of public service corporations and the land question. Mr. Record begged his hearers to ponder these things and to come to some conclusion in regard to them. It would be a good idea to bring the questions up in the regular club meetings for discussion. "Open your club," he said, "to the men who would like to look into these problems and you will never have to advertise for a larger membership. The results will astonish you and you will come closer to establishing the Kingdom of God on earth than in any other way."

Mr. Krebs, who followed, kept everybody laughng with his funny stories about the "Wise Man," and entertained the company with a baseball poem delightfully humorous.

Rev. Dr. Herring announced that on the night of November 18 he would give his first exhibition of photographs taken by him on his recent trip through the Holy Land. A vote of thanks was extended to the women who served the supper.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The board of directors of the athletic asociation of the University of Pennsylvania has awarded insignias as follows: The varsity "P" was awarded to the following members of the championship baseball team: Schultz, Cozens, Aldendifer, Corkran, Smiley, Wood, Thayer, Merrick, Smith Hayden Brokaw and Watts. The election of Eugene Wood as captain of next year's nine was also ratified.

The members of the varsity crews who rowed in the Poughkeepsie regatta last Jully also received the insignia namely: Varsity eight—Ballard, Breitinger, Shoemaker, Marx, Reeves, Hoagland, Walton, Bennett and Westcott, coxswain Varsity four—Brown, Ferguson, Smith and Woodhouse.

The following men were awarded their numerals for not only rowing in the Poughkeepsie regatta but also winning the college championship in rowing: Bell, De Long, Barrett, Stifel, Pryon, E. Shoemaker, Alexander, Reath and Williams, coxswain.

The members of last year's freshman baseball team got 1912, namely: Pooley, Richardson, Hutchinson, Goode, Deacon, Hawk, Pierce, Hess, Hall, Smith, Innes, E. Thayer and Darrah.

Golf at Cornell is practically finished for the fall. C. H. MacArthur, '12, won the championship under unfavorable weather conditions in 71 for eighteen holes. The runner up was G. E. Morse, '13, who was beaten by MacArthur 9 up and 8 to play. Manager Heg announces that a fine schedule for the spring, including several trips to other colleges, is under way. There are a number of vacancies on the team and many men are expected to compete in the spring.

As results of cross-country trials Coach Keane has placed nine men on the training table at Syracuse in preparation for the Colgate meet on Nov. 13, which will precede the Colgate-Syracuse football game. The men are Norton, Algire, Morton, Flack, Ross, Cullings, Van Auken, Layton and Stang. Seven of these men will be selected for the big intercollegiate meet at Boston.

ALLEGED ORE SALTER ATTACKS INDICTMENT.

The sufficiency of the indictment for fraud to which Harris Alderman pleaded non vult in Essex county, was considered by the Supreme Court yesterday upon a writ of error taken out by Alderman. It was alleged in the indictment that Alderman had "salted" samples of ore submitted to the Balbach Smelting and Refining Company of Newark. He had undertaken to sell 235,311 pounds of ore to the company. The price was to be ascertained by assays from average samples. It was charged that he had conspired to add copper to these samples, thereby giving a fictitious value to the ore and adding to the proper price about $3,000.

Upon pleading non vult Alderman was sentenced to a year imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1,000. Under the writ of error his counsel sought to retract the plea of non vult and to plead not guilty. During the argument yesterday this contention for the defendant was practically abandoned, leaving for the court to determine only the question as to the sufficiency of the indictment.

Samuel Kalisch, who appeared for Mr. Alderman, attacked the form of the indictment in several technical particulars. He also argued that it failed to show an offense under the laws of New Jersey. Chandler W. Riker appeared on behalf of the State.

GOOD ROADS AUTOISTS WIND UP THEIR TRIP.

The most successful good roads tour into the South ever inaugurated came to a close Wednesday when the Atlanta Journal-New York Herald good roads tourists entered Atlanta shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon. As the dust-begrimed and travel-sore caravan, escorted by scores of local autos, rolled into the residence portion of the city, fire bells, factory whistles, automobile horns and the cheers of enthusiastic thousands along the streets awoke a bedlam of noise, which continued until the tourists reached the office of the Journal. Following the parade the travelers were escorted to the Piedmont Driving Club for luncheon, and later were given time to dress and rest. At night they were guests at a dinner at the Capital City Club.

"Ty" Cobb, the ball player, who is a native Georgian, was the hero of the day's journey. From the time the tourists left Commerce, Ga., shortly after 6 o'clock in the morning, until the end of the trip, Cobb's name was on every lip, and he received an ovation in every town and village.

The majority of the tourists will remain in Atlanta for Automobile Week, November 6 to 13, and will be lavishly entertained by local motor enthusiasts.

Thieves entered No. 3 enginehouse, Jersey City, Wednesday, while the firemen were out answering an alarm, and stole a blouse and $10.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

There are several cases of diphtheria in Williamstown and means are being taken to prevent its spread.

The strike of the "snapping-up" boys at the Whitney Glass Works, Glassboro, has been settled and the boys returned to work yesterday.

Dr. Couac, of Metuchen, reported to the Woodbridge police Wednesday that his horse and carriage was stolen while standing in front of his office.

Frank A. Schock has returned to duty on the Ocean City police force, after a two months' visit to his birthplace in Germany. He saw his mother, who is eighty-two years old, for the first time in thirty-six years.

A movement is on foot at Moorestown to organize a branch of the Daughters of Veterans and upward of fifty women have already signified their desire to join. Andrew L. Chamberlain, commander of W. T. Sherman Post, G. A. R., is in charge.

Work is about to be started on resurfacing the Main street, Moorestown, which is used by scores of automobiles daily, many of them on long-distance runs, as it is considered one of the choicest routes through the State. This work will cost about $5,000.

While roller skating near his home in Paterson last night, Frank Kenyon, a twelve-year-old schoolboy, living at 27 East Twentieth street, fell and a glass bottle he was carrying cut his right wrist. The wound was dressed and stitched at the General Hospital, and the boy was taken home.

Among the speakers who will accompany Secretary Franklin Dye, of the State Board of Agriculture at the Farmers' Institute this fall are Miss Emeline Moore, instructor in biology, and Dr. R. G. Leavitt, instructor in botany. The first of the institutes will be held at Swedesboro on November 18.

Mrs. Mary Ayres, an aged woman, was stricken with an epileptic fit at Powel street and Railroad avenue, Gloucester, Wednesday evening, and fell on the railroad tracks. The engineer of a train applied the brakes in time to save the woman's life. The conductor carried her into the home of Richard Allenbark, and the train proceeded.

Because Charles A. Doe, of Philadelphia, a land owned along the beach front at Ocean City, has thus far failed to sign the required easement deed, it is possible that the new boardwalk will not be completed between Thirteenth and Seventeenth streets. Nearly four hundred feet of the walk have been laid, but it will not be built over Doe's land, which is near Sixteenth street, unless he signs.

At the forty-second annual convention of the Passaic County Sunday-school Association in the Methodist church at Passais, Wednesday, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Alfred Murray, Passaic, president; Rev. Dr. James Dallas Steele, Passaic, first vice-president; Robert MacFarland, Paterson, second vice-president; Rev. G. W. Labaw, Preakness, third vice-president; Dr. J. W. Banning, Paterson, corresponding secretary and treasurer; Miss Minnie Maines, Wanaque, recording secretary. Next year the convention will be held in Paterson.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

S. Frederick Smith, organist, will give his weekly organ recital at Grace church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Rev. Dr. H. M. Pogson, of New York, will occupy the pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Sunday and be in charge of the communion service in the morning.

The Methodist Brotherhood, of the First M. E. church, will hold its first annual banquet in Vincent chapel, Monday night, November 15. There will be several prominent speakers to follow the feast of good things.

The Epworth League of the First M. E. church has organized a mission study class with twenty-five members. The class will meet at the close of the Wednesday night prayer meeting. The class will take up the study of Korea.

Rev. Thomas H. Spague, of the Temple Baptist church, Philadelphia, who occupied the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church, last Sunday, was invited to preach that day. He made a favorable impression and there seemed to be a unanimity of opinion regarding him.

ARGUMENTS IN FAVOR OF POSTAL BANK PLAN.

Another argument in favor of the establishment of postal savings banks is contained in the annual report of M. O. Chance, auditor of the Postoffice Department, just made public at Washington.

He points out that in the last twenty years foreigners in the United States have sent back to their homes by means of money orders to the enormous sum of $431,956,623 in excess of the amount that they have received from abroad. More than half of this sum went out in the last four years and eighty per cent. of the total went to six countries in Europe, Austria, Great Britain, Hungary, Italy, Norway and Russia. It represents the surplus of earnings of foreign labor employed in the gigantic industrial and commercial business of this country.

Auditor Chance says that it is a fair assumption that a majority of the foreign element sojourning in this country would patronize government postal savings banks, thus a considerable share of the millions of dollars now annually sent abroad for deposit in banks of their own country would remain here in the custody of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Plainfield, N. J., November 5, 1909.

That professional reformer, George L. Record, in one of his characteristic speeches here last night, declared that no man could make honestly for himself during his own lifetime one million dollars. We would hate to give that political chamellion such a chance.

The residents of the east end of the city should be exceedingly grateful to the Councilmanic fire committee, which proposes to put a pair of worn-out horses in the new firehouse. Why not make a return to the hand-drawn fire apparatus that was good enough for their grandfathers?

Now that the Plainfield Protective Association appears to have passed to a state of innoxious desuetude, it is highly proper for the Board of Trade to take up the cudgels to protect the community from wrongs to life, limb and property. The action of the latter body last night in starting a movement to prevent the installation of a 10,000 gasolene tank in the very heart of the business section is commendable. There are already too many fire menaces in the business portion of the city, a consequence of which is the unusually high rates exacted for fire protection. The authorities should not be allowed to make any more, if they can be prevented. The Board of Trade deserves the co-operation of the public in this effort.

P. H. S. NOTES.

The P. H. S. minstrel show is progressing finely. The end men are spieling off their jokes like veterans. Sewall and Riffert on the ends, convulse the coaches every day. The quartet has got some very pretty and funny songs. Their harmony is great. The solos, sung by Smith, Doane, Titsworth and Manger deserve much praise. Next week will be spent in getting the costumes and scenery together. Apart from the regular show, two sketches will be given: one by Sewall and Ramsey, the other by Doane and Riffert. A dress rehearsal will be held on Friday afternoon.

The football team will play Bound Brook High at Bound Brook, tomorrow afternoon. The team is partially crippled on account of the players layed off on account of deficiency in lessons, but they expect an easy game.

The girls' basketball team is holding its practices steadily and the girls are coming along in fine shape. As soon as the football games are over they will start their games. Already Miss Sminck, the manager, has arranged games with Westfield, East Orange, Battin High, Cranford and North Plainfield.

Newest Corset Models

The charm and style of the present models in Women's Dress are dependent, to an amazing extent, upon the careful choice of the corset over which they are to be worn. Many a beautiful gown will show a disappointing look of grace if the selection of the corset best adapted to the particular figure has been carelessly made. We are showing all the newest models in the following well known makes. Thompson's Glove Fitting, W. B. Reduso, Redfern Whalebone, Royal Worcester Adjusto, R. & G., The La Reine, Warner's Rust Proof, W. B. Bon Ton, Reges and W. T. Reduc-u, also a complete assortment of Ferris Waists and Brassine Bust Supporters.

There are so many charming models that it is merely a question of a woman's being shown how to pick out the particular one that will bring out the lines of her figure to the best advantage.. Miss Carney will be delighted to assist you in the selection.

NEW YORK BAY SANDS HOLD LINER ADRIATIC.

Passengers on the steamer Adriatic of the White Star Line were detained at the New York harbor mouth for several hours early yesterday while the steamer was clearing herself from the grip of the sands at the entrance to Ambrose Channel, into which she had driven her prow while attempting to make port on her trip to New York from Southampton via Cherbourg and Queenstown.

The Adriatic grounded before daylight, and it was thought she might have to await the incoming tide, which would not be at flood until afternoon, but shortly before 9 o'clock the steamer managed to free herself and proceeded up the harbor to her dock.

The steamer had on board a large number of passengers, among them Orville Wright, the aviator, and his sister, Miss Katherine Wright. No excitement was occasioned on board by the grounding.

DR. COOK BUSY ON RECORDS.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who is in New York after a lecture tour in the West, began yesterday to assemble the data of his polar exploration which he intends to submit to the University of Copenhagen.

Dr. Cook said he would devote his entire time to the preparation of his report until it was completed and forwarded, as he had promised. He hoped to get it ready within a week, he said, and in the mean time he did not wish to enter into a discussion of any collateral topics in regard to the North Pole controversy or his proposed trip to the summit of Mt. McKinley.

In regard to the resolution adopted yesterday by the National Geographic Society, referring the question of priority at the pole to a committee for investigation, Dr. Cook declined to say anything at this time. He would take the matter up, he said, when it had been brought to his attention officially.

TRENTON MAN ROPES AN EPILEPTIC TO TREE.

Struck a blow on the jaw and sent sprawling among the boxes in his store by William Higgins, of 439 Emory avenue, Trenton, while he was suffering from an epileptic fit, Albert H. Albini, of 1 Hewitt street, Wednesday afternoon employed a novel plan to hold his assailant until the arrival of the police. Albini grabbed the man by the collar and forced him against the counter. He then discovered, by Higgins' contorted features, that he was dealing with an irresponsible person, and, desiring to get him out of the store as soon as possible, Albini began to shove him toward the door.

A battle ensued, which ended successfully for the proprietor, who finally landed his man upon the pavement in front of the store and in close proximity to a tree which stands before the building. At this juncture several pedestrians happened along and assisted Albini in holding the struggling epileptic upon the sidewalk.

The storekeeper then ran inside, and appeared a few moments later with a clothes line in his hands, with which he proceeded to tie Higgins to the tree. After this was done he 'phoned to the police, who removed the man to the Second Precinct Station in the ambulance.

In court last evening the matter was explained to the satisfaction of Judge Rees, and Higgins was discharged. He is often subject to these attacks.

VERTIGO OVERCOMES EDITOR.

E. L. Eclerie Vogt, one of the editors of the Morristown Banner, was stricken with vertigo Wednesday morning while at work in his office.

Help came at once and Mr. Vogt was carried upstairs in the Tapkaow Club-rooms, where he was placed on a coach. Dr. Stephen Pierson was called. Later Mr. Vogt was taken to his home in High street in an ambulance. His condition is not regarded as dangerous. Some time ago Mr. Vogt was stricken in a similar manner and recovered.

Maximus Mystifies at Proctor's.

Maximus, the rival of the great Sandow, as a strong man, completely mystified the capacity audience at Proctor's theatre last night by his marvelous strength. Tonight he will test his strength against two big draught horses and will do other wonderful feats demonstrating his power. The rest of the bill is the best ever, including the agile Japanese troupe and an abundance of comedy, singing and dancing.

A FAT WOMAN HATES SOCIETY

Fat people have to get into clothes that are designed for people of normal physique. The men wear dress suits and look like comic pictures. The women wear low necked dresses to their evident humiliation. This is why it is often said that a fat woman hates society. Fat is as much the mistake of poor health as anything else. The things that make fat should be making good blood, bone and nerves. The secret is that the digestive machinery is out of gear. The juices make fat in too large quantities. This fat impedes circulation, cramps the heart, suppresses the liver, crowds the lungs and interferes with the stomach. Marmola Tablets are harmless. They are taken after each meal. They help digest that meal as nature intended it should be digested. They remove the fat already made at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day and they leave no flabby skin or wrinkles. They are sold wherever drugs are sold, or in the same category with harmful patent fat reducers. They contain Marmola, Cascara Aromatic and Peppermint water. If you do not care to call upon your druggist, send 75 cents to The Marmola Company, Dept. 988, Detroit, Mich., and they will send you a large, full size case by return mail in plain package postage paid.

THE FORUM.

MR ELLIS REPLIES.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Will you allow me to reply to your criticisms of my remarks at the Plainfield theatre last Friday. First let me say that, while it does not bear on the merits of the question; you are misinformed in supposing that "his residence among us has been so short." I have lived within about two miles of your office for about eighteen years.

You write as if I complained because you refused a request from me to publish a certain campaign circular.

That is hardly a fair statement. I called on you and pointed out that you were publishing daily exhortations to the people to vote the Republican ticket and giving the fullest publicity to Republican claims and news items, but ignored entirely the Democratic element among your readers and supporters and that such action was practically a suppression of the news, since a daily paper is subscribed for primarily to get the news. I cited to you that you had taken no notice of the appeal of the Democratic club, which contained statements of facts that voters were interested in and entitled to know about. I contrasted the conduct of your paper in this respect with that of the New York dailies. You practically admitted the truth of my contentions and finally said substantially that you had no choice but had to do as you were directed. This was taken by myself and the gentleman who accompanied me simply as confirmation of common report, namely, that the Republican machine of Plainfield controls with merceless hand the news organs of the city.

yours truly,
L. J. ELLIS.

Plainfield, Nov. 4, 1909.

(As an independent newspaper, The Daily Press has and will support the ticket that it considers the best. It has supported Democrats for this reason and again it has supported Republicans on the same ground. In the recent campaign, this paper considered the Republican ticket far superior to the one presented by the Democrats and as is the function and a duty of an Independent newspaper therefore used its influence to help elect the Republican candidates. Such, consequently, was the policy of the newspaper and Mr. Ellis admits that he was told by the editor that it was his work to carry out that policy. In his tirade at the theatre meeting, Mr. Ellis told his audience that he did not blame the editor but the proprietor, hiding the fact that the proprietor directed him to his editor and that the latter unknown to the proprietor refused publication for the campaign document as a news item just as newspapers do all over the world. Neither the so-called "Republican machine" nor any other body or person controls the policy of this paper, save the proprietor and we can cheerfully say the same of our contemporary. As we called to Mr. Ellis' attention, it was needless to do so for the general public, New York newspapers, and newspapers generally, publish campaign arguments, other than of the party which they are supporting, in the regular advertising columns, Mr. Ellis declined to take advantage of this department of the paper. Probably he noticed that the Union County Medical Society did, for that body's committee was too intelligent to expect that its futile appeal against Mr. Pierce could be inserted other than as an advertisement. His words of abuse in characterizing the local papers as "organs" is on a level with the tone of the campaign literature the editors refused. Mr. Ellis made an attmept to belittle the newspapers and in so many words requested the people not to buy either of them. It must have been mortifying to the over zealous partisan to witness the answer of his intelligent audience, which was conveyed by complete silence on their part.—Editor).

DENIES CONNECTICUT'S DEMAND FOR F. A. BOYER.

Governor Fort Wednesday refused the request of the Governor of Connecticut for the extradiction of Frank A. Boyer, of Jersey City, who is wanted in Connecticut for wife desertion. The Connecticut authorities claimed jurisdiction because on an automobile ride Boyer had traversed part of the State of Connecticut.

Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill heard the argument of counsel for the man, and the facts in the case which came out were that the desertion did not take place in Greenwich, Conn., except under a technicality of the Connecticut law, which, he believed, the State of New Jersey is not warranted in observing.

In reality the desertion took place in New York, if there was any desertion, the wife going to Greenwich to live and the husband coming to Jersey City to reside and work. Last summer he took an automobile ride with some friends and in the course of their journey their route lay through Greenwich. The wife heard that her husband had been in her town and under the Connecticut statute she asked for his extradition from New Jersey on the charge of desertion.

Governor Fort, on the recommendation of Assistant Attorney General Gaskill, refused to honor the requisition.

CARNEGIE HERO MEDAL FOR BORDENTOWN MAN.

The Carnegie hero fund commission held its fall meeting in Pittsburg Wednesday and issued fifty awards for brave acts. Besides medals, an aggregate of $34,650, was voted out of the fund to heroes and heroines.

One of the most interesting awards was that of a silver medal and money to the family of Rev. Herbert L. Mitchell, of Plymouth, Conn., who, on August 3, 1909, lost his life in Fishers Island Sound, N. Y., while trying to save Clarence B. Blakeslee, sixteen, who had fallen into the water. Blakeslee was organist in the minister's church, and both were drowned. The commission gave Mrs. Mitchell $300 in cash and allows her $70 per month as long as she remains his widow, and $5 per month for each of her three children until they reach the age of sixteen years.

Ralph H. Reeder, of Bordentown, N. J., is given a bronze medal for saving the lives of Bessie L. Lewis and Katharine M. Kaine there, July 6, 1908. The girls were drowning when Reeder went to their rescue. Miss Lewis had sunk to the bottom of the Delaware river, and when Reeder was struggling with Miss Kain, his foot became entangled in the clothing of Miss Lewis at the bottom of the stream, and he could not disengage it. By main strength he managed to swim with one arm and drag the other along with his imprisoned foot until help came, saving each of the swimmers.

Another case of interest was that of the children of Peter L. Collins, of New York. Some months ago the commission voted the widow of Collins $50 per month for the bravery of her husband, who lost his life, but since that the widow died, and the commission yesterday gave $20 per month to each of the two minor children.

NO REDRESS FOR MAN LISTED AS A DRUNKARD.

Circuit Judge Lloyd, in the Gloucester County Court, Wednesday quashed the suit brought by James Arthur Johnson, of Franklinville, near Glassboro, against the Board of Protectors of Franklinville Township, to recover $10,000 damages for the listing of his name as a drunkard. Judge Lloyd announced that the case had been non-suited because there was no evidence that the members of the board had acted with malice. As soon as they discovered that Johnson's name was on the list by mistake, he said, the list was withdrawn. Johnson is likely to carry the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

By mistake the board placed Johnson's name on a list furnished to Henry Finger, hotel-keeper in Franklinville. When Johnson, who is a department manager of the Whitney Glass Works, and a vestryman in the Episcopal church, Glassboro, heard of the list, he brought suit. On the witness stand he told of the embarrassment to which he had been subjected by persons on the street making fun at his expense. Boys shouted "jag" at him, and when he rebuked his employes for drinking they retorted: "Your name's on the jag list; quit your kiddin'." He said he had never been drunk in his life.

Rev. Charles Q. Dubell, rector of the Glassboro Episcopal church, and George D. Whitney, proprietor of the glassworks, testified to the good character of Mr. Johnson.

The testimony of the defendants was to the effect that they had received Johnson's name for the list from persons whose word they thought was not to be doubted. They admitted that they had not investigated the charges against Johnson, or given him a hearing.

HEART FAILURE FATAL TO PET DOG'S VICTIM.

Charles D. Hermann, seventy-seven years old, a veteran of the Civil War, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Earl Stetson Crawford, of the Enclosure, Nutley, yesterday morning. Death was due, it is said, to heart failure.

About two weeks ago Mr. Hermann sustained dislocations of both hips and other injuries, when a small fox terrier belonging to him tripped him as he was nearing home. It was said by members of the family yesterday that he had entirely recovered from those injuries.

Born in Dayton, O., Mr. Hermann served in the War of the Rebellion as captain of the 173d Ohio Regiment. He moved to Nutley about five years ago and with his wife had been making his home with Mr. Crawford. The laltter's wife and the widow are his only surviving relatives. Funeral arrangements have not yet been concluded.

TEMPERANCE PUNCH BOWL FOR A CHURCH.

The christening of a hand-painted china punch bowl, a temperance punch bowl, was the feature Wednesday night at the rededication of the rooms of the Cui Bono class of the first Baptist church, Bridge and Centre streets, Trenton.

The christening of the punch bowl was conducted with a pleasing bit of ceremony. While the class and its friends gathered about with cups and glasses filled to overflowing with well brewed temperance punch, Samuel S. Young made a speech in keeping with the event.

FELL TO HIS DEATH AS HE LEFT INVALID WIFE.

While attempting to descend the stairs at his home near Pennington Wednesday, after leaving the room of his invalid wife, Samuel Smith Brewer, a retired farmer, fell to the bottom of the steps. He was instantly killed, sustaining concussion of the brain and a broken neck.

For a long time it had been his custom to spend the greater part of the day keeping his wife company. He had some tasks to do about the house and as he was late, was hurrying when he made a misstep.

Mr. Brewer was one of the best-known residents of this section. A widow, one son, Lyman Leavitt Brewer, and a daughter, Mrs. Pierson Hunt, of Bound Brook, also a sister, Mrs. Hannah A. Hart, of the same place, survive the dead man. Mr. Brewer was eighty-four years old.

STATE ELECTION SIFTINGS

In Cliffside, Bergen county, Major Steven W. McClave was re-elected Mayor of that borough. The major had a hard fight on his hands this time. Several land companies were bucking him pretty hard and real money was spent in an effort to defeat him.

Rev. James E. Lake, a Methodist clergyman, who was defeated for Mayor of National Park by one vote by Charles H. Fetters, may contest the election.

Mayor J. M. McGowan, Republican, of Pitman, was re-elected.

Wilmer Eggee, Republican, will be Swedesboro's Mayor, having 68 majority.

Hammonton, Atlantic County, had the hottest contest evere witnessed there, and it was practically a Democratic victory. John M. Austin was elected Mayor by 147 over Michael K. Boyer, Republican. Every Republican nominee was buried under an avalanche of votes, with the exception of Edge for Assembly, who received a majority of two over Bergen in the latter's home town.

Burlington County Republican politicians feel keenly the loss of two influential members of the Board of Freeholders. Director Joel Horner, of Palmyra, was beaten by Winfield T. Land, a Democrat, by 28 majority, and Clayton H. Brick, of Marlton, by Alfred W. Lofland, a Democrat, by 71 majority.

Thirty members-elect of the House were not in the 1909 session, although two of them, Ramsay, of Middlesex, and Ridgway, of Salem, were Assemblymen in 1908.

Atlantic City Republican organization members are arranging an elaborate banquet in honor of Commodore Louis Kuehnle, whose candidates for Council won in every ward of the city Tuesday. Tickets will cost $15 each.

Charged with vote buying and vote selling, Isaac Brown and Sydney Butler were held under bail at Atlantic City by Magistrate Jagmetty.

It is said that Assemblyman Isaac T. Nichols, of Cumberland, is likely to be a candidate for the Senatorial nomination next fall. This talk is the outcome of his remarkable run for re-election Tuesday.

In Glassboro, Albert Repp, Prohibition candidate for Assembly in Gloucester county, received 175 votes, running ahead of the Republican candidate, Assemblyman Walter Heritage. Mr. Repp was active in closing the hotel at that place. The Prohibition vote elsewhere in the county was very light.

Glassboro voted by a large majority to build a $5,000 firehouse.

Speaker of the House John D. Prince (Rep.), who made a successful fight against John Hinchliffe for State Senator in Passaic county, lost Paterson by a plurality of only 543 votes, that city usually giving 1,200 Democratic majority. This is, so far as old politicians remember, the first time a candidate who carries Paterson and Passaic, as Hinchliffe did, has lost the rest of the county. John Rancier, Republican candidate for sheriff in Passaic county, secured 4,065 plurality, the largest ever given in that county to a shrevalty candidate.

Allan B. Walsh is the first Democrat elected to the Assembly from Mercer county in fifteen years. As told, Walsh defeated Assemblyman Edwin H. Ginnelley, who aspired to the Speaker's chair. Ginnelley is a director of the Trenton Trolley Corporation. The declaration "that the people will soon get used to it," as they would have to sooner or later, when he defended the action of the company for abolishing the strip tickets, six for a quarter of a dollar, caused his defeat.

Quartermaster-General C. Edward Murray's announcement of his retirement from politics has caused some criticism of his action. The announcement of the Republican leader in Mercer, coming right after the defeat of the party in Trenton, and the loss of an Assemblyman, caused some to view the retirement as a sort of desertion. C. Harry Baker, chairman of the Republican county committee, yesterday announced that he had received General Murray's resignation as treasurer, as well as a member of the committee. In relation to his retirement, General Murray said that the result of Tuesday's election proved conclusively to his mind the people want a change in municipal affairs—not a change from Republicanism to Democracy.

THE HIDDEN GARDEN.

The garden walls are high,
And yet, year after year,
Beloved passer-by,
What time thou drawest near.
Quick stirs the old surmise,
And punctual blossoms greet
Thy dear unheeding eyes
And thy unpausing feet.

Sweetening Cooked Fruit.

In cooking fruits for immediate use the economical housekeeper does not add the sweetening until after the fruit is taken from the stove. Then she finds much less sugar is needed than would have been the case had the sugar been added before the fruit was cooked.

Most Light for Your Money.

This is a Public Service talk about lighting.
Artificial light is a necessity.
Illumination is a science and an art.

In order to get the greatest return for the money you are paying for either gas or electricity, used for illuminating purposes, your lighting system should be exactly suited to the premises it is intended to light.

In other words, get the benefit of ALL the light you are paying for by making all of it USEFUL light; by making it do the work you want it to do.

This applies to homes as well as to stores or shops, for there are two ways of lighting any building—a right way and a wrong way.

The right way gives satisfaction every time; the wrong way rarely does.

We want you to light your premises the right way. We want you to be satisfied with your light for we want your good will.

If your lighting installation is not giving perfect satisfaction let us hear from you. We may be able to help you. We are anxious to try.

THROUGH COMBAT TO VICTORY

Strong, Vigorous Character Arrives at Fruition by Wrestling With and Overcoming Obstacles.

It is the wrestling with obstacles and the overcoming of difficulties that have made man a giant of achievement.

If we could analyze a strong, vigorous character, we should find it made up largely of the conquering habit, the habit of overcoming, says Orison Swett Marden in Success.

On the other hand, if we should analyze a weak character we should find just the reverse—the habit of failure, the habit of letting things slide, of yielding instead of conquering—the lack of courage, of persistency or grit.

There is the same difference between a self-made young man, who has fought his way up to his own loaf, and the pampered youth who has never been confronted by great responsibilities that would exercise his powers and call out his reserves, that there is between the stalwart oak which has struggled for its existence with a thousand storms, with all the extremities of the elements, and the hothouse plant which has never been allowed to feel a breath of frost or a rough wind.

Every bit of the oak's fiber has registered a victory, so that when its timber is called upon to wrestle with storms and the fury of the sea, it says, "I am no stranger to storms; I have met them many a time before. I feel within me stamina and fiber to resist the fury of any sea, because I have fought and overcome its equal a thousand times."

The hothouse plant succumbs to the first adverse wind.

AS THEY DO IT IN ENGLAND

Family Inherited Postmastership, Though the Department Officials Didn't Know It.

Forty years before, as quite a boy, Jones had left a little town in Kent. Now, on the first long vacation he ever had had since, he was visiting his childhood scenes. He had remembered that the postmaster's name was Pengelley, and he had remembered, too, that he was a kindly old man. There wasn't the slightest probability, he thought, that the postmaster was still alive, but his acquaintance with the former incumbent might smooth things a little with the new one, so that the whereabouts of people to whom he had been directed would be made known.

"What's become of Mr. Pengelley?" he asked, interrupting for a moment his majesty's letter assorter.

"I am Mr. Pengelley."

"Perhaps you're his son."

"Yes, my father's name was Pengelley, too," drawled the Englishman.

"I mean the postmaster."

"So do I."

"Was your father postmaster 40 years ago?"

"My word, no! That was my grandfather. You see, our names are all alike, and the post-office department doesn't know but that the first one is alive. We inherit this job, don't you know. And my wife's just presented me with a son. There was no haggling over his name."

Music, Birds and Snakes.

Exceptional love of music would redound to the credit of any other living creature as indicative of refined taste, but in the maligned snake even this artistic attribute is a mark of derogation. Our own Quakers, for example, take up and indorse the diatribe of Epiphanius against the flute-players. "Observe the figure that the player makes in blowing. Does he not bend himself up and down to the right hand and the left, like unto the serpent? These forms hath the Devil used to manifest his blasphemy against things heavenly, to destroy things upon earth, to encompass the world, capturing right and left such as lend an ear to his seductions." And so on. But not a word do we hear in condemnation of the unregenerate birds that carol heedlessly even while the minister is painting the horrors of an unmentionable place.—North American Review.

Cheering Her Up.

Islington, which is no longer rural, was once so esteemed by medical men that they sent their patients there after severe illness. Many also went there in the last stages in the forlorn hope that the invigorating air might restore them to health. A story related by Dr. Abernethy turns on the latter class of visitors. One of his patients engaged some rooms in Islington, and casually remarked to the landlady that the banisters on the staircase were very much broken. "Lor' bless you, mam," said the landlady, "it's no use to mend them, for they always get broken when the undertaker's men bring the coffins downstairs."—London Chronicle.

Intelligence in the Kitchen.

The higher the intelligence and the broader the education of the woman in the kitchen, the greater the pleasure and satisfaction in household duties.

The woman who cooks intelligently is commanding great and mysterious forces of nature. She is an alchemist behind an apron. At her command food constituents that are indigestible, unpalatable and even poisonous, are subjected to chemical changes that render them an epicurean delight. The woman of real intelligence and powers of imagination finds in her well ordered kitchen a source of deep and enduring interest and pleasure.

GROWING UP WITH THE TOWN.

So you have "grown up with the town?"
But the town which was little is great,
It possesses a world-wide renown,
They have written "Success" o'er its gate;
The town which was once so obscure
Has a worth that is splendid and sure.

The town has a prosperous look,
It appeals to the stranger afar;
It occupies no little nook
Where wrecked opportunities are;
As fair as a realized dream,
The town is awake and supreme.

So you have "grown up with the town?"
But the town which was narrow is broad;
It has not been content to sit down
Depending on Chance or on God;
Its challenge (though stunned for a space)
It flings in Catastrophe's face.
—S. E. Kiser.

MEAN INSINUATION.

Kind Lady—You say you need help, but will your character stand investigation?

Dusty Dodgework—Say, lady, you talk as if I wuz a politician.

But Wants It Good.

Houston should
Be glad to own
She only needs
One telephone.

A Helping Hand.

"Excuse me, sir," said the senior clerk as he entered the private office of the boss, "but, having grown gray in your service, don't you think I ought to have something added to my salary?"

"I do," answered the boss as he reached into his pocket and drew forth a silver dollar. "Take this and get yourself a bottle of hair dye."

Deliberate Insult.

Mrs. Newpop—That measly old bachelor uncle of yours was here today and he deliberately insulted us all.

Newpop—Insulted us! Why, what did he do or say?

Mrs. Newpop—Why, he took the baby on his knee and said: "Poor little chap! He may grow up and become vice president some day."

Killing Time.

Musical Momedy Manager — How long is the piece now?

Author—We've stretched it out as much as we can, but it is still about an hour less than standard length.

Manager—Well, dash off a topical song about Broadway, with a dozen or so encores.—Puck.

No Reason at All.

He—The major is going to be married again.

She—Why, when his wife died he said that the light of his life had gone out.

He—There's no reason why he shouldn't strike another match, is there?

ENCOURAGED.

"I never could stand it," he said, "to live with a woman who was jealous of me."

"Don't borrow trouble," she replied. "Nature has done her best to make you immune from that kind of unpleasantness."

The Old Sign.

Now put away the striped hose,
Oh, put them all away;
For barber poles are out of style
In Boston, so they say.

A Slight Jolt.

"As for me," remarked young Muggsby, "I don't believe in the higher education for girls. The one I marry won't know Latin or Greek."

"I can readily believe that," rejoined Miss Slasher. "A girl who knows anything at all wouldn't marry you."

A Wasted Evening.

First Music Critic—I wasted a whole evening by going to that new pianist's concert last night!

Second Music Critic—Why?

First Music Critic—His playing was above criticism!—Judge.

Still Fighting.

Church—Did you have any relatives in the revolutionary war?

Gotham—I don't know; but I've got two cousins interested in the D. A. R. war!—Yonkers Statesman.

that a soldier on the march is NO BETTER than his feet. That's just as true of THE WOMAN about her household duties, or THE MAN on his way to his office.

Take good care of the feet, and THEY WILL always carry you where you want to go—and KEEP YOU OUT of harm's way.

That care depends on THE SHOES you wear—if PROPERLY FITTED.

HINTS ON JELLY MAKING.

There are many ways, declares the Boston Cooking School Magazine, of sealing jellies. The old-time way of using a paper wet in rum or brandy directly upon the surface before covering the top of the glass with a paper tied with string is still a favorite one. Parafine wax has its advocates and opponents. Some good housekeepers say that, since jellies harden with a concave surface, the wax settles there thicker with less around the sides of the glass. As the paraffie cools, it shrinks away from the glass, and so it fails to fulfill its mission.

A new method is to cover the top of the jelly, when perfectly cold, with pulverized sugar, a half-inch or more deep. Over this goes the paper, excluding air and dust. Instead of tying the paper around the glass, it is easier to paste it; and this method is quicker and gives greater security. The glasses may not look quite as pretty and the contents are concealed more, but label the glasses upon the top, and you will not need to hold them to the light to identify the desired kind.

Make a rather thin, raw paste. Use a strong, pliable, light yellow paper. Cut it large enough to adhere well down the sides. Dip it in the paste, which is convenient to use if placed in a shallow dish or deep plate. Drain off any extra paste, and place the paper over the glass, pressing it in pleats firmly down around the sides of the glass. No string will be needed. When the top is dry, it will be as tight as a drumhead, for the paper, when wet, stretches, as anyone used to preparing paper for water-color painting well knows.

To open when wanted for the table it is easier to cut around the edge, inside the glass, and remove the circle. Then, after slipping the contents out, the glass may be put into water, where the paper will soon soak off from the sides.

If you do not wish to make jelly because of the heat, or because sugar is high or glasses fail to come, or if you do not care to invest in many dozens of them, or if your jellies are apt to crystalize, or if your house is damp and they do not keep well when it is closed, or for any other reason, such as uncertainty about the number of your family the next winter, it is well to leave the jelly making until winter, and merely can the juice, without any sugar, in any of the best varieties of modern glass jars. When the dull, gloomy autumn and winter days or evenings come, when no one calls, and you are tired of reading or sewing, you can easily take whatever amount of your fruit juice is needed, and, by adding the requisite amount of sugar soon complete an array of tempting jelly.

Any fruit juice not used as jelly can be made into delicious pudding sauces, frozen desserts and many fruit punches, or simply iced or chilled, and taken in place of wine. Serve it in wine or lemonade glasses or small tumblers. Strawberry, blackberry, raspberry, gooseberry and almost all fruit juices make a delicious beverage.

POTTERY INDUSTRY.

Depressed Conditions in England in Clay-Working Branch.

Consul Frederick I. Bright, of Huddersfield, cites the following as indicative of the conditions in certain clay-working industries of England:

British omcial returns for 1908 show 816 failures in the building trades, with a total liability of $3,836,359. In the grocery and provisions trade only were there as many failures, but the liabilities were smaller, amounting to $2,928,445.

At a recent meeting of a large clay-working company, owning a branch establishment at Huddersfield and manufacturing products for use in the building trades, such as bricks, "pipings," baths, and other sanitary supplies, the following facts were made public: During recent years there had been a gradual decline in the company's business. In the last six years production decreased £150,000 ($729,975) and was, during the last twelve months £200,000 ($973,300) less than in the company's most prosperous year. During the same period the annual working expenses had been reduced about £10,000 ($48,665). Notwithstanding the fact that the home trade was well organized to prevent competition, selling prices had gradually fallen, and in one line was 20 per cent. lower than in 1903. The only branch which gave satisfactory results was furnace linings and similar articles for the iron and steel trades. Trade with a few foreign countries was fairly good, but the home and colonial markets were very depressed.

It is estimated that not more than 50 per cent. of the productive power of this industry for the entire country is employed today.—Consular reports.

The monthly communion service will be held at the First Baptist church on Sunday morning.

At the Epworth League meeting Tuesday night at Monroe Avenue M. E. church five new members were received into the league. The league is a progressive and active factor in the church.

A call has been issued for all young women and men of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church to meet tonight at the church and organize a volunteer choir. It is hoped many will respond to the call. Charles Nichols will act as choirmaster for the present.

Stephen Blaizer, of Elmwood place, is spending two weeks at Madison with relatives.

Floyd T. Woodhull, of West Front street, has returned from a stay of two weeks at Lake Hopatcong.

Postmaster E. H. Bird is spending a few days in Washington, partly on business and partly for pleasure.

MEET PROVIDENCE F. C. OF NEWARK TOMORROW

The Plainfield Association Football club will have the Providence F. C., of Newark, for its opponents tomorrow afternoon on the Clinton avenue grounds. The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock. This team came to Plainfield at the beginning of the present season, and put up a great game, losing only by one point. When the visitors went away they vowed they would return and wipe out the old score. They will bring their strongest line-up tomorrow. However, it will not be easy going for the Newarkers as the Plainfield club will have the strongest eleven possible. The game promises to be a rush all the time and doubtless will draw a big crowd. The Plainfield eleven will be as follows:

Stevenson, goal; Jamieson, right back; Craig, left back; Kenny, right half; Henderson, centre half; McComb, left half; Spalding, outside right; Brabyn, inside right; Hosie, centre; McKay, inside left; Sutton, outside. Referee, A. Anderson; linesman, L. Gould.

The remaining games scheduled by Plainfield for the month are as F. C., at home; 20, Elizabethport, away; 25, Maple Field, at home; 27, Newark Strollers, at home.

PARENTS GET TRACE OF REV. H. C. VANDERBEEK.

Rev. Henry C. Vanderbeek, the former pastor of the Forest Hill Presbyterian church, whose whereabouts in Europe has been a mystery to his family and friends in Newark is at Stratford, England, it was asserted yesterday.

Mrs. Henry Rabke of 262 Van Buren street, whose son is studying music in Germany and who met the minister in London five weeks ago, received a letter from C. L. Vanderbeek, of Tenafly, in which he said that he had heard from friends abroad that his son was safe and that he would hear personally from him in a few days.

Social at Grace P. E. Church.

A delightful sociable was held in Grace Episcopal church parish house last night at which the rector, E. Vicars Stevenson and the curate, Rev. E. G. Bowers and the vestry were present. A quartet composed of William Tallamy, Harr Yeager, Vincent Miner and Joseph Martin, sang some selections, which were heartily applauded. Charles Suhr's orchestra furnished the instrumental music for the evening. After the entertainment refreshments were served by the women of the parish. There was a large attendance.

Trip Around the World.

"A trip around the world," given at Mt. Zion A. M. E. church last night was a thoroughly entertaining and successful affair. Miss Wineeda Moore, the chairman of the committee who had the entertainment in charge, was heartily congratplated by the pastor and others on the splendid social and financial success. The trip started at New York and ended in Alaska and the views were of the finest. The beautifully decorated church was filled to its utmost capacity.

Gets Hero Medal.

Robert Dowling, of Brooklyn, formerly employed at the W. H. Rankin plant, Elizabeth, now the Barrett Manufacturing Comapny, was yesterday awarded a bronze medal and $1,000 in cash for heroism shown at the plant in saving the lives of several of the employees who had been overcome in a tar still. This was in December, 1905.

BIG SUNDAY SCHOOL MEET DRAWS NEAR

Delegates from every part of this State will meet in East Orange for the fifty-first annual convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association, which will be held in the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church on November 17, 18 and 19. There will be representations from Sunday schools of nearly all denominations and it is expected that more than 1,000 will be in attendance.

The convention will open Wednesday afternoon, November 17, with an address of welcome by Governor Fort, which will be followed by the convention sermon by the Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adam, pastor of the Munn Avenue Presbyterian church, where the meetings are to be held.

There will be a night session Wednesday and sessions in the morning, afternoon and evening the two following days. Prominent speakers have been obtained, and the various phases of Sunday school work will be discussed.

It is believed that this year's convention will be the largest in point of attendance that has been held by the New Jersey Sunday School Association, and elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the guests and delegates.

Besides Governor Fort and the Rev. Dr. John Douglas Adam, other speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Franklin McElfresh, of Chicago; Edward W. Dunham, Miss Margaret Slattery, of Fitchburg, Mass.; the Rev. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz, the Rev. P. H. Welshimer, of Canton, O., and the Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut, of this city.

DEER KNEW ITS RIENDS.

Wild Doe Helped Woman to Take Care of Wounded Fawn.

An incident in animal life which possibly may never be duplicated occurred a few weeks ago on the estate of George W. Watson at Eastern Point.

Soon after Mr. Watson arrived at his Eastern Point residence a fawn was born in the grass land around the residence. During the winter of course there was nothing to disturb the deer and they wandered at will around the estate. When it was time to cut the grass a mowing machine was put to work and the sharp knife of the mower found the little fawn while it was cuddled up in the herbage. One leg was cut quite badly—so badly that the baby deer was unable to get away. It was taken care of by Mr. Watson and the injured leg treated.

The little chap seemed to understand that it was in good hands and responded to the treatment. It was left where found and each day the mother doe came along, and attended to the provision of food, the youngster gaining health and strength daily. Now the little chap has fully recovered and is able to fight its own life battle. Mr. and Mrs. Watson are well pleased to know that the fawn they cared for is able to follow its mother and enjoy the freedom of Groton woods.

It has been accorded to very few, even those who spend much time in the widls, to see baby deer nurtured as Mr. and Mrs. Watson saw their little pet.—New London Day.

Preparing for Annual Meeting.

The semi-annual meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters will be held Thursday afternoon, December 2, at 3:30 o'clock. The place of meeting will be announced later. At the monthly meeting of the executive board yesterday it was reported that during October 336 children had been cared for at The Day Nursery. Miss Olive DeLany, city nurse, reported having made 142 visits. A new circle, knokn as "Unity" with Mrs. George A. Beaton as president, was admitted to membership. This makes thirteen circles in the union.

One Good Laugh.

A man went into a chemist's shop and bought a bottle of some patent stuff, which was advertised thus:

No More Coughs.
No More Colds.
4s. a Bottle.

Three days later he went to the chemist, complaining that his throat was stopped up, and that he could scarcely breathe. "I've drunk all that patent cough medicine," he said. "Drunk it?" yelled the chemist. "Why, that's an India rubber solution to put on the soles of your boots to prevent your catching cold!"

Isiah L. McVoy Weds.

Isiah L. McVoy, of East Front street, and Mrs. Anna E. Case, of Church street, were married Wednesday night by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Mr. McVoy is a member. John Vogt, Jr., of Brooklyn, a brother of the bride, and Miss Ida Bartle, of this city, attended the couple. After a wedding trip the couple will reside at the groom's home on East Front street.

Rahway Has a Disastrous Fire.

The heart of the business centre of Rahway narrowly escaped being destroyed by fire yesterday. The fire was discovered in the rear of the fruit store of Nicholas Mangionia, 10 Cherry street. Through lack of water pressure the firemen were greatly handicapped. It was only by the greatest effort that several fine properties were saved.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

AN ANCIENT ONE.

M. Hamelin, the police magistrate of Paris, was the victim of a venerable practical joke on April 1. It began in the early morning with the arrival at his residence in the Avenue Henri Martin of several carts of coal, followed by a continuous procession all day of other vehicles conveying similarly unordered goods — five pianos, jars of cod liver oil, hams, mineral waters and vegetables—while among the visitors whose services were supposed to be required were an embalmer, a masseur, an undertaker, and half a dozen pedicures. Altogether 322 vehicles drove up to the house in the course of the day. Amid the confusion M. Hamelin went quietly to preside as usual at the police court.—London Daily News.

Particular About the Butter.

"Ma wants two pounds of butter exactly like what you sent us last. If it ain't exactly like that she won't take it," said the small boy.

The grocer turned to his numerous customers and remarked, blandly:

"Some people in my business don't like particular customers, but I do. It's my delight to serve them and get them what they want. I will attend to you in a moment, little boy."

"Be sure to get the same kind," said the boy. "I lot of pa's relations is visiting at our house, and ma doesn't want 'em to come again."

A Tale of Tennyson.

Tennyson was once dilating to a friend on the charms of a pipe before breakfast.

"It is the most delightful smoke of the day," said he.

"Yes, yes!" replied his friend. "The first sweet pipe of the awakened bard!"

Thereby making a reconstruction from Tennyson's own works, needing the change of but one vowel.—Harper's Weekly.

Startling.

"Yes, our table is always up to date," boasted the landlady. "We have those beautiful red candles on it at supper time."

"Candles for supper!" gasped the prospective boarder. "Madam, do you think I am an Eskimo?"

"Not quite," was the wife's reply.

"It ought not to take you so long to put your hat on."

"I'm not going to wear any hat."

"Well, it ought not to take you so long not to put one on!"—Yonkers Statesman.

From Different Viewpoints.

Anxious Mother—I cannot permit you to have such late callers. It was after 11 o'clock when Mr. Huggins left last night.

Pretty Daughter—Why, mamma, I don't see how you can class Mr. Huggins as a late caller. It was only 7:30 when he came.

Parental Wisdom.

The Friend—Your son graduates from college this term, I believe?

The Father—Yes.

The Friend—Going to set him up in business, I suppose?

The Father—Not right away. I'm going to send him to school awhile first.

FROZE SOLID DURING NIGHT

Rushing Mountain Torrent Silenced in a Few Hours by the Intense Cold.

Running water is usually the last thing to freeze solid, and when it does so, the cold must be extreme. J. Claude White, in the Wide World Magazine, gives the following description of this very rare occurrence—the freezing of a mountain torrent in a single night.

The phenomenon was one that I have never before experienced—a running river frozen solid in a night! When we arrived the waters of this stream, tumbling over the great boulders and rushing through the tortuous channels, made a deafening roar. Gradually, but almost perceptibly, the tumult decreased, while, worn out after a hard day, we fell asleep.

A few hours later, when we awoke, a deathly silence prevailed, and on looking out, to my intense surprise, I found that the rushing torrent of the previous night had been transformed into a solid mass of ice! In this region of extreme temperatures I had on other occasions seen torrents frozen, but never under such startling conditions. On looking round, we found that everything we possessed was also frozen solid, including our saddle of mutton, which was merely a block of ice. We were ravenous, but we got no satisfaction from gnawing at lumps of rock which ought to have been a succulent joint, and so, despite our hunger, we had to content ourselves with a little tea—to make which we melted ice—and a few biscuits.

EXAMPLE OF PERFECT FAITH

Mexican Lover Believed Sweetheart's Story Before Evidence of His Own Eyes.

For the past week the physicians in charge of one of the sanitariums here have been dealing with one of the most puzzling and obstinate cases of eye trouble ever brought to their notice, declares a Puebla (Mexico) correspondent. Their suspicion that the subject was nothing the matter with his eyes was confirmed to-day by a naive confession made by the patient.

The man's name is Estanislao Ruiz. He stated that he lives at Cholupla and shortly before coming here he was shocked one evening, upon passing the house of his novia, to see her kissing a very dandily dressed stranger through the bars of her window. Fearing that he might cause a scandal by interfering, he retired quietly, and later in the evening returned to speak to the young lady about it. She denied the matter emphatically.

"But I saw you with my own eyes," he maintained.

"Do you believe your dulce or do you believe your eyes?" she demanded triumphantly.

"I believe my dulce," he answered. There was a hearty embrace and he came here immediately to have his eyes treated.

At the Half-Century Mark.

Youth is eternal to him who believes in eternity. To me youth means anywhere from eight onward. I was an exceedingly old person at eight and I trust I violate no confidence when I confess a youthful exuberance now that I have bumped against the halfway post. Fifty is a splendid time for youthful expansion; one's fancy still retains all its ingenuity while one's judgment is bettered by experience. When sitting on the 50 milestone the vane of man's vision points southward to the past and northward to the future with a minimum of oscillation. Rancorous thought and splenetic expression give way to quieter nerves and calmer view, and the mellow lighted vista of the years that have gone soften the heart of the youth of a half century of years.—John Philip Sousa in the Circle.

Dresden China.

Judging by your recent note, writes a correspondent, it seems that the geographical knowledge possessed by girl typists is about on a level with that possessed by the damsels who represent the postmaster general behind the counters of our suburban post offices. Having occasion recently to telegraph funds to a town in Germany, it became necessary for the clerk to consult the post office guide. After a long and fruitless search I ventured to suggest that she was not likely to find the town I wanted in the section devoted to the celestial empire, where she was looking. "Not under China" she retorted supercilliously. "You said Dresden, didn't you?"

Labor That Aids the World.

It is true that all wealth comes from labor, but not necessarily from labor by the hands. The thinkers of the world have added inestimably to its development. It was a portrait painter who invented the telegraph, a college professor who produced the telephone, and the list might be extended almost indefinitely. It is well that to-day, with all our indulgence in rest and play, that we remember that it is intelligently directed energy of whatever kind which makes man better and helps along the world to the millennial dawn.

Colonel John Sneed's Conversations on Domestic Problems

Copyright, 1909, by C. S. Yost.

V.—Getting on In the World

"YES, that's all right, Bill," said Colonel Sneed to his son-in-law as they smoked their after dinner cigars; "that's all right. I'm mighty glad to hear you've been promoted and got a raise. I'm mighty glad to see you climbin' up the ladder of success. I like to see a man with ambition and pluck and ginger, and I glory in your spunk, my boy; I certainly do. But you haven't been home much of evenin's, lately, have you?"

"No, colonel, I haven't. Work's been pretty heavy the last few months, and it's kept me at the office almost every night. I don't like that part of it much, but a fellow's got to hustle if he gets along in the world these days."

"Uh, huh! That's about the way I'd sized it up, and, as I was just tellin' you, I like to see that kind of a spirit in a young man; but, son, if government bonds were quoted at ninety-six and a man was to go around town buyin' all he could get at a dollar ten what would you think of him?"

"I'd think he was a fool, of course."

"Uh, huh! So would I. So would everybody. I don't reckon there's anything better than government bonds. They make the finest kind of waddin' for a safe deposit box, and as works of art they're mighty hard to beat, but any man who pays more than the market price for 'em is a bigger fool than Thompson's colt. It's a good deal the same way with this thing you call gettin' on in the world. It's fine, it's worth a whole lot, but there's such a thing as payin' too much for it. And, William, my boy, when a man gives up all or nearly all that makes life worth livin' in order to win financial success he's sellin' short on happiness with a mighty slim chance to get hold of the stock for delivery.

"HARD TO BEAT."

"Yes, I know what you'll say—you're workin' to get a start, to lay a foundation of a little fortune, to provide the right kind of a home for your wife—and I'm pattin' you on the back all the time and sayin' 'Bully boy!' That's the sort of stuff that makes men; that's the power that makes the world go round. But a man wants to be mighty careful that he don't keep on runnin' around the track after the finish, and he wants to look out that he don't lose diamonds while he's scramblin' for pearls. My old father was a country doctor, and he always carried his quinine and calomel and such like in a big pair of saddlebags. I remember one time he had to get up in the middle of the night and ride ten miles to see a patient. It was an urgent case, and the old gentleman went down the road like Satan beatin tanbark, his saddlebags bouncin' up and down at every jump. When he got to the place he found a strap had broke and every bit of his medicine had been scattered along the road.

"Many a man goes lopin' along the road to riches with his nose to the ground like a hound chasin' a fox. He don't see anything but the tracks of the fellows who've gone that way before him, and he's so doggone anxious to catch up with them that he don't know he's got holes in his pockets and is losin' things a lot more valuable than the one he's runnin' after. He don't know that he's dropped his wife's love here and his children's affection there and his home and his health a little farther along, while his happiness has been tricklin' out of the hole all the time. And when at last he gets up to the front and grabs the bag of gold he finds that he's lost everything that makes its possession really worth while, and it turns to dust in his hands, for his pockets are empty and his heart is empty and his head hasn't got anything in it but stock quotations and regrets.

"It ain't just figures of speech I'm givin' you, my boy. I've seen them do it time and time again, and nearly every one of them started out with just one desire—to do somethin' big and fine for the woman he loved. The purpose was all right, you see, Bill, but they let it run away with them. That's what I want you to avoid, my boy, and that's why I'm givin' you this kind of a talk now.

"You've married the sweetest little girl this side of the pearly gates, if I do say it myself, and if you want success to be worth anything when you get it, go down the long road with her arm linked in yours, and don't go so fast but what she can keep up with you. You remember the Lord said, 'It ain't good for man to be alone,' and it's a good deal worse for woman to be alone. When a man begins to leave his wife to fret out her evenin's by herself he's layin' the foundations for trouble. That old sayin' that absence makes the heart grow fonder is all poppycock. It don't do anything of the sort, and if you become so engrossed in the struggle to get on in the world that you can't get home to dinner more than once or twice a week and have to spend most of your evenin's at the office you're pretty sure to find the keen edge of love wearin' off in her heart or yours after awhile. The dullin' process may be so slow that neither one of you may know it's goin' on until it's too late, but sooner or later, son, you'll find it out, and then you might as well shut up the shop, for no man and no woman can be really happy without love, and love won't stay long in any home unless it's fed. A woman's love will starve under neglect, and a man's love will shrivel up if he gets so full of business that he has no time to think of anything else. Gettin' on in the world is a great thing, a very great thing, if love lights the way, but if it don't—well, you take an old man's advice, my boy, and keep your ambition down to union hours. You may not get there so quick, but you'll get there, all right, and when you do there'll be some satisfaction in the arrival. And now let's go out and take a look at the baby."

"KEEP YOUR AMBITION DOWN."

How Bees Find Their Way.

How are bees able to find their way home after their long forays after honey? Gaston Bonnier of Paris has been studying their directive sense, which he thinks is like that possessed by pigeons. Bees can fly for two miles from the hive and are then able to return after gathering their supply of honey. Langstroth and others suppose that vision comes into play and that bees can see for a great distance and can also note objects on the way so as to find their path. Others, with Dadant, suppose that the bees are guided by the sense of smell and that they can smell flowers at distances of one and a half miles. M. Bonnier has made experiments to prove that bees can return to the hive without using either sight or odor. As to sight, he took bees to a distance of one and two-tenths miles from the hive in a closed box. They always flew back to the hive when released. The same is true when their eyes were covered, so that sight was not essential.

As regards odor, experiments seem to prove that bees perceive odors at only short distances. When a needle dipped in ether is brought near the head of the bee, it shows signs of perceiving the odor, but not so when the needle is placed back of him or near other organs. Besides, when the organs of smell (antennae) are removed entirely the bees will return to the hive. M. Bonnier made the following experiment: At 600 feet from the hive he placed a supply of sirup, and the bees soon found it, proceeding to and from the hive. Such bees he marked with green colored powder. He then placed a second supply of sirup at the same distance from the hive, but spaced at twenty feet from the former.

Other bees were now engaged in the to and fro movements to this point, but these were not the same individuals as the green marked ones, who were still working on the first supply, and he marked these in red. This gave two distinct sets of bees, able to distinguish two directions which formed a very acute angle. These facts M. Bonnier believes indicate a special directive sense which does not reside in the antennae, but probably in the cerebroid ganglia.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 7, 1909.

Topic.—Life lessons for me from the book of Hebrews.—Heb. xii, 1-7. (Consecration meeting.)

The book of Hebrews is one of the most important books of the New Testament. The author is unknown, but the character of the book proves that it is divinely inspired. The purpose of the book explains its importance. It was written to the Jews of apostolic days to prove the superiority of Christianity over Judaism and therefore to persuade them to accept Christ as the Messiah. The writer is most forcible in his logic, and his words should have and probably did have great influence in winning many Hebrews to accept Christ and Christianity. Hebrews is the only book of the Bible that compares the old Jewish religion with Christianity. The result attained is most satisfactory. Any one who desires to have a proper conception of the Old Testament rites and ceremonies that were done away with at Christ's coming and death can find no better place to obtain this information than in Hebrews. It is an easily read book and should be read at one sitting by every Christian Endeavorer in connection with this meeting.

In building up his argument the author declares Christ to be the Son of God and then proceeds to show the superiority of Christ and His works over angels and the leaders of Israel and the works of the Old Covenant, under which their ancestors lived. The book naturally divides itself, therefore, along these lines:

1. The superiority of Christ over the prophets (chapter i, 1-3).
2. The superiority of Christ over angels (chapters i, 4; ii, 18).
3. The superiority of Christ over Moses (chapters iii, 1; iv, 13).
4. The superiority of Christ and His priesthood over Aaron and the Aaronic priesthood (chapters iv, 14; x, 39).
5. Practical exhortations (chapters xi-xiii).

This clear arrangement of Hebrews shows how easily it may be read and adds greatly to its value.

The great lesson to be learned from the book of Hebrews is still the one that the author intended to teach—namely, the superiority of Christ over every other founder of a religion in that He was the Son of God and the superiority of Christianity over every other religion that the world has known. These truths have been important in all the Christian centuries and are still so today. There are still those who accept the leadership and beliefs and teachings of men rather than those of the Lord Jesus Christ, the eternal and only begotten Son of God. But as for us—we should stand firmly for Christ and the truths which He as the Son of God has revealed unto us.

No "new theology," no so called "new religion," will ever replace the teachings of Christ or the religion which He founded. He Himself has declared that so far as His church is concerned "the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," and if the power of hell cannot conquer it we need have no fears from the feeble attempts of men to do so. The deity of Christ has been fully established. The inspiration of the Bible cannot be successfully denied. The supreme place of the cross in the salvation of the human soul has been fully attested. The doctrine of the atonement will never be surrendered, for too many have experienced salvation through the atoning blood of Christ ever to give it up. The progress of Christianity and of the Christian church both at home and abroad was never more real and substantial.

The topical reference suggests other individual lessons, such as (1) inspiration to faith by the accomplishments of others by faith, (2) that we should look upon Christ as our example in running the race of the Christian life and (3), further, in the endurance of suffering, that we may obtain the joy that is set before us.

BIBLE READINGS.

Heb. i, 1-3, 4-14; ii, 1-9; iii, 1-15; iv, 14-16; x, 11-25, 28-39; xi, 1-3, 5, 6, 23-29; xii, 22-29.

A Campaign of Publicity.

Dr. Francis E. Clark in his annual report and review of worldwide Christian Endeavor says that "in every continent and in almost every section of every continent Christian Endeavor is making headway."

One striking paragraph in the report is as follows: "If in this brief review of the year a suggestion is in order, it would be that more effort should be put forth to demonstrate in print and on the platform the fundamental principles of Christian Endeavor. New generations of young people are constantly coming forward who, as well as the general public, need to be told that Christian Endeavor stands four square for constant and varied religious services of all kinds, frequent religious testimony, loyalty to the church and interdenominational Christian brotherhood in all the world. It should be made more and more plain that our society is a great international brotherhood, millions strong, such as does not exist elsewhere in the world. The many movements for the federation of kindred denominations in all lands is one outcome of the Christian Endeavor spirit and fellowship fostered by twenty-five years of constant seed sowing and innumerable fraternal conventions in every part of the world. The fostering of the spirit of international unity is scarcely less marked, and we cannot measure what may yet be accomplished in the years to come by our societies for the peace of the world and the federation of the Protestant churches."—Australian Christian Endeavor Link.

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

No person who is grappling with the vital perplexities of life can afford to pass this great novel by without reading it. The never ending battle between capital and labor, between duty and pleasure, between man and woman, between man and man and between purity and vice is here shown by a student of the conditions of which he writes. The story teaches the lesson of hope to struggling mankind. It deals with the socialistic problems of the hour in a sane way, revealing to the rich their mistakes and to the poor their opportunity. Stirring action as well as captivating romance fills its columns and conveys the intended lessons the more effectively.

CHAPTER I.

DAWN IN HAGGLETON'S TENEMENTS.

THE night workers had long since begun their weary tramp home through the darkness in the crowded tenement district of which Market street is the congested center, the most densely populated thoroughfare of New York. The streets were still empty in comparison with what they should be a few hours later, but quiet—never.

At no hour of the day or night is that quarter of the city without its noises. They succeed each other in a regular, daily repeated order. One can tell by them each hour of the twenty-four. And as the street has its noises, so has each house.

An alarm clock rattled in a large room in one of the towering tenements, built of brick, without ornamentation, made hideous by row upon row of narrow windows.

A young woman seated at a table in a corner of a squalid room had not looked up or stopped for a moment in her occupation of gilding plaster figures with a brush which she dipped from time to time in a pan. A lamp, shaded so as to throw all the light it gave directly upon her work, stood beside her. The rest of the room was dark.

A man's sleepy, quarrelsome voice came from somewhere beyond the room.

"What time is it, Jenny?"

"After 7. You'd better get up."

The girl was strikingly handsome in a buxom, sensuous way, but the droop of resignation of her mouth struggled with the line of revolt that met it from the delicate nostrils downward. Her eyes shone dark under the arched eyebrows. In them there were unrest and knowledge of good and evil, a vague wonder and a look of hunger of mind and heart.

The room as she turned around to survey it was seen to contain two iron bedsteads, in one of which there were a man and two children, while the other contained a younger man. Both beds were tousled and untidy. The young man's clothes had been thrown in a heap on the foot of his. The elder man's lay partly on a chair, partly on the floor beside it.

Moran, Jenny's father, sat up in bed. Jenny returned to her work, sitting down with her back toward the beds.

"Can't sleep with that kid coughing and kicking," grumbled Moran. "Didn't sleep a wink."

He slid his feet on to the floor, drew on his shoes, hitched up the trousers in which he had slept, crossed over to the sink and washed his face and hands. Then he turned to a bare table, which, with three cheap, rickety chairs, completed the furniture.

He cut off a hunk of bread and ate, grumbling the while, his watery eyes wandering along the wall, staring unseeingly at the cheap color prints of the rulers of Europe that formed its incongruous ornament.

A large picture of a young man in diving costume, a veritable Hercules, his heavy helmet resting on his arm, occupied a place of honor all by itself on another wall.

Moran had a weak, discouraged face, with incongruously scowling eyes.

The younger man had propped himself up in bed, lighted a candle and was now reading a paper. He was Joe Caffrey, the widower of Jenny's elder sister, who had died three weeks before. Now, like the two children, he was a "boarder" of Jenny's.

"Hello!" said Joe, looking up from his paper. "Here's a description of John J. Haggleton's private yacht. He sails today on a cruise."

"Haggleton!" growled Moran. "That's our landlord. I'd like to have him here."

Joe Caffrey kept on reading.

"Oh, say, listen to this!" he exclaimed; "The walls are paneled in satinwood; under foot are velvet carpets twelve feet wide and"— his candle. Through the cheap, draggly lace curtains of the windows a superb view of the East river and the Brooklyn bridge was revealed.

As Moran opened the door his daughter stopped him.

"I wish you'd stop at Mrs. Binney's," she said, "and ask her to come around and look at Benny's cough. He might have croup."

"Benny!" snarled Moran. "It's a rotten idea having those kids here, anyway. Why don't they stay with their father?"

"Their father," answered his daughter practically, going over to the children's bed, "their father pays us $4 a month for their board."

Moran turned to go. But before he closed the door behind him he growled, "This is a h— of a home!"

The children, a girl of ten and a boy two years younger, whimpered. Benny coughed again, then wailed. His sister put her arms around him and soothed him.

"Don't cry, you star boarders," called Joe good naturedly. "You are going to have presents, do you hear? Beautiful presents. Santa Claus forgot you at Christmas, but that was a mistake."

The two youngsters sat up in bed and gazed at him with eager expectancy.

"What are you telling them that for?" asked Jenny indignantly.

"Never you mind. Come here, Emmy."

The girl clambered out of bed and went to him in her nightgown. Benny started to follow, but was restrained by Jenny.

"Now, listen," continued Joe. "In a minute, just as soon as I get up, that sympathetic and good looking lady over there, my sister-in-law, is going to lend me $2."

"Not on your life," said the sympathetic and good looking lady with much energy.

"That $2," continued Joe, without paying the slightest attention to her, "I am going to take over to Wallace's pool room and play it on a sure thing—Corn Cob."

"Corn Cob!" repeated Emmy uncomprehendingly.

"Yes. It's a sure pipe. Why don't you laugh? It's a cinch at 15 to 1. So I'll come back this afternoon with thirty bones."

"Gee! Thirty bones!" The child's eyes shone.

"Of which thirty bones," Joe explained distinctly, watching Jenny, "ten go to the sympathetic and good looking lady, leaving twenty for personal expenses and miscellaneous charities. Ahem!"

Jenny patted Benny's pillow.

"Fifteen to one—a sure thing," repeated Joe impressively.

"Nothin' doin'," said his sister-in-law.

"That means," resumed Joe, again pretending not to hear her and addressing himself to Emmy, "a new doll for you, and—what do you want, Benny?"

"I want a yacht," shrilled the little fellow.

"Ha, ha! He wants a yacht like that millionaire Haggleton! All right, my son, you get a yacht."

Jenny faced him.

"Better cut out pool rooms, Joe, and look for a job."

"I might find one," he shrugged.

Joe, who, like Moran, had slept half dressed, now rose, washed himself hastily and made his simple toilet.

"You hinted at looking for a job, Jenny," he observed, "but that supposes a desire for work, and in me that would mean sweeping reform. Now, reform may suit you, my dear sister-in-law, but"—

"Cut it out," said Jenny sharply. "That's enough."

She blushed painfully and her eyes filled with tears at the thought of her sodden past.

Joe fished in his pocket, pulled out a cigarette, and threw it at her. She caught it deftly, lighted it and inhaled the smoke with keen relish.

"If a girl will be an idiot," continued Joe, "it is all right to keep straight, but why go to extremes?"

She had "reformed," given up finery and ease, but why?

Why had she suddenly returned to poverty, squalor and grinding toil? She was young, handsome; she loved comfort; she hated work.

A gleam of intelligence came into Joe's face.

"I know why you done it," he said suddenly enlightened.

"What do you mean?"

"It wasn't for my good, and I'll tell you that you reformed; it was for his."

He pointed at the picture of the diver on the wall.

Novelized by the Author From His Great Play of the Same Name

"Yes, for Phil," she said.

"Yes, for Phil," he repeated.

"You're not such a fool, Joe."

"Oh, that was easy," he returned modestly. "You always have your eyes on that picture. All right," he said, "I'll stand in with you. But we'll have to sidetrack the other maiden."

Jenny burst out:

"The high toned girl at Mrs. Binney's boarding house?"

"Sure. The trained nurse. Miss Margaret Lawrence. She's the only peach on the tree for Phil."

Jenny clinched her hands.

"She'll never get him! Never!"

A knock at the door caused them both to look toward it.

The knock was repeated. Joe looked at Jenny.

"Come in!" she said.

The door opened, admitting a handsome, stalwart young man of twenty-five or so. His face was tanned by exposure, and he carried his broad shoulders with an air of responsibility that rose to the dignity of authority in his frank, manly, somewhat stern face. It was the original of the diver's picture on the wall—Philip Ames, a man placed above his environment by the arduous training of his work and its ample wage. It showed in the decisiveness of his movements, the alertness of his look, the controlled readiness of all his faculties. But his smile was engaging, almost boyish. He removed his hat and said in a deep, clear, pleasing voice:

"Good morning."

Jenny had surreptitiously hidden her cigarette under the tray of images.

"Good morning, Phil," she said. "I am glad to see you."

Joe looked at his sister-in-law. Even without the confession of her love of a moment ago he would have been made sure of the correctness of his surmise by the adoring look in her eyes.

"Your father stopped at the boarding house a moment ago," explained Philip. "He says that Benny is sick."

"Yes; he has been coughing a good deal."

"That's too bad. Mrs. Binney sends me over with this croup kettle."

"Thanks!" said Jenny.

Behind his turned back she motioned Joe to leave the room.

Her brother-in-law suddenly became quite businesslike. Here was a chance for a bargain. Corn Cob at 15 to 1! He must have that $2.

So, just as Philip turned, he significantly held up two fingers.

Jenny nodded eagerly.

"Shall I get that medicine you wanted?" he asked with tender solicitude.

"Yes. Here's the money."

She produced her purse, always carefully guarded, often strenuously defended, and handed over the money.

Jennie had hidden her cigarette.

It nearly left her penniless for the rest of the week, but what did she care? To be alone with Phil!

Philip took the chair nearer Moran's bed and brought it forward to the table at which Jenny had seated herself to resume her work. The tray she pulled forward a little more, completely hiding the cigarette she had been smoking.

The young diver seated himself and watched her for a little while. Under his gaze she became confused, dropped her brush and looked up, meeting his clear, deep blue eyes timidly.

He laughed a little.

"Will you mind if I smoke?" he asked.

"You know I don't, Phil. I love a good cigarette."

He had already taken out of his pocket the little box, placed a cigarette between his lips and returned it to the pocket of his coat. Now he produced it again and held it out to her hesitatingly, almost unwillingly.

CHAPTER II.

JENNY MORAN.

"YOU mean you don't want one?" Phil said.

"No, no," she answered hastily. "I have—I have given up smoking, you know."

She looked down at the trembling hands in her lap. Her cheeks burned, tears sprang to her eyes. Everything seemed to remind her—and him—of that brief past which she so regretted for his sake. It was always thus when they two were together. A chance word innocently spoken always must bring up what she wished that she could forget, still more that she could make him forget.

Now a sudden thought gave her an added stab of pain. She had lied to him, meanly, despicably. To appear worthier in his eyes she had refused his proffered cigarette—she had told him that she had given up smoking. And under the tray before her, within reach of his hand, lay the crushed butt she had been enjoying with all the eager relish of the confirmed cigarette fiend at the moment of his knock.

Phil looked at her for a little while longer in silence, then said easily:

"Well, and how are things going?"

"Rotten, thank you."

The man leaned forward sympathetically.

"Don't you feel—er—happier?" he asked softly.

Her self control gave way. What was the use of keeping straight? What was her reward? Misery and unrequited love. So she burst out:

"Happier? This is where I live, in one of John J. Haggleton's tenements! Do you see anything here to make me happier? I get up at 6, I cook and scrub and wash and paint these plaster creatures with that stuff for ten hours a day! At 6 cents per dozen! Do you see anything in that to make me happier?"

The man, unaware that he himself was the cause of this outbreak, looked at her in helpless distress. He was dumfounded. He felt staggered, frightened. Then he said very gravely:

"You must be glad that you have given up the old life? You are doing right, anyhow."

"Doing right?" she echoed scornfully. "Who cares whether I do right?"

"You know we all care."

"All? Who, all?" she persisted. "Does Joe Caffrey care? Nit! He'd rather have me go back to the old life so he could work me for a ten or twenty when he was broke! Oh, I guess yes!"

She sat quiet now but for her trembling fingers, nervously jerking and twisting at her dress, and the trembling of her lips, which she bit viciously with her small white teeth. She stared stonily before her, but her eyes were dry. If she had only wept his task might have been easier. His understanding of women did not go beyond tears.

"Then," he stammered at last, "then it is only your promise to Liz that makes you do this!"

"It isn't even that," she explained patiently. "Yes, I promised Liz that I would keep straight, but Liz is dead. She'd never know what I do, or if she did know she would see that this life is too hard for me."

She looked around the miserable bare room and continued:

"The only thing that keeps me from going back"—

"Don't say that."

"It's true, Phil; it's true. The only thing is I don't want to make you feel bad. That's the only reason."

She asked softly, with infinite longing:

"It would make you feel bad, wouldn't it, Phil?"

"It certainly would, Jenny."

"I know," she said gratefully, "I know Liz died only three weeks ago, but it seems a year. She made us both kneel down by her bed. I had on a big hat with red feathers. You remember? Then she made me promise, and she made you promise to help me."

"I'll keep my promise. I'll help you."

The girl added sadly:

"Ah, if I hadn't married George!"

"Jenny!"

"Well, it spoiled my life all right. It's true. My life—look at it! I say I never had a chance!"

"You have a chance now, Jenny."

The words aroused in her a false hope. Could it be? She leaned nearer him, her face close to his.

"You used to think me pretty," she whispered. "Phil, you couldn't, you wouldn't"—

He hastily shrank back, regretting the impulsive action instantly. But Jenny had understood.

"What a fool I am!" she cried. "How can you care for me when you love another woman? Oh, I know!"

"What do you know?" he asked sternly, rising.

"I know that you are struck on that girl—that trained nurse at the boarding house."

"Miss Lawrence! Who told you?"

"No one has told me. I am a woman."

She glanced at him searchingly and read the truth in his face. Controlling the pain at her heart, hiding the desolation that had suddenly blighted her life, she asked question after question, bravely taking each blow.

"Have you asked her yet? Did you ask her last night? And she said 'Yes?' I want you to be happy, Phil. I congratulate you."

She, too, had risen. She was pale, but quiet.

"You won't be different with me now that you are in love?"

"Of course not, Jenny."

He held out his hand, which she shook loyally. She added pathetically:

"Because that's all I have in the world—your friendship, Phil."

RESULTS IN MERCER.

Ginnelley Swamped by 1,015—Trenton Democratic.

Trenton, Nov. 5.—Complete returns from Mercer county Wednesday show that the Republicans elected Charles Mather and George W. Housel as members of the Assembly, and the Democrats Allan B. Walsh. Mr. Walsh defeated Assemblyman Edwin H. Ginnelley, the third Republican candidate, by a plurality of 1,015. It is the first time that the county has had a Democratic member of the Legislature since 1893.

In Trenton the Democrats made a clean sweep, re-electing Walter Madden Mayor by 3,000 plurality, Edward Berrien tax collector by 1,178 and carrying eight of the fourteen wards for Common Council. The Republicans retained control of Council by a margin of two, due to their majority of the holdover members.

SIR CECIL A DISHWASHER.

Says Wife Compels Him to Be Ranch Drudge.

Denver, Co., Nov. 5.—Sir Cecil Moon, the British nobleman who married his American nurse and turned over his property to her, appealed to the District court here yesterday for an order for his wife to give him money, saying he had only 10 cents in cash. The court refused the order.

Sir Cecil says that when he fell heir to the Moon estate his wife induced him to give her all his money; that she invested it in a mountain ranch and stock, and has compelled him to cook and wash dishes for his board. He is suing to have the money returned to him. She threatens a divorce suit.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To wash painted walls and woodwork or anything that is greasy and grimy: Take a soft sponge, dip in soapsuds, rub soap on and saleratus on top of the soap, then wash. Wet the sponge again and wash again with soap and saleratus. Now rinse with soapsuds and at last rinse with clear water and dry with a cloth. Do not leave this wash on the walls too long, as it takes the paint off if left to dry on. Try it once, and you will wonder how you ever cleaned walls and woodwork without saleratus.

To wash white enameled sinks and the galvanized plate that lies under the gas burners of the gas range. Wet with a cloth, rub on soap and saleratus; then rinse with clear water. This takes all the grease and stains off and doesn't leave a bad odor on the hands as kerosense does.

To take paint stains out of white goods and colored goods: Wash in the usual way; then rub on a good supply of soap and saleratus; let it stand one hour, rub with soap and rinse with clear water. Sometimes I have to do this twice before it comes out. I have tried this on colored gingham aprons with success.

To trim lamp wicks: Cut straight across, turn up just a little; cut off the corners on each side just a little and the flame won't spread so much. The wick may be turned up more to make a brighter light and the lamp chimney will keep clean for three days.

To sweep carpets (dark ones): Drain coffee grounds through the sink strainer Thursday night and Friday morning, strew on the carpets, then sweep. You won't raise so much dust and your carpets will look brighter.

JEWELED TRIMMINGS.

For evening gowns the newest idea in trimmings is that which employs jewels to give contrasting color. Gold or silver mesh forms an elegant warp upon which are woven silken thread and jewels. What can be more charming than a dull metalic gray lace with a turquois blue note sounded by large stones? Gold embroidery is wonderfully rich when combined with coral and pearls. Occasionally the weaver has incorporated clear crystal beads on a sea-green background, and in many new laces pearls, turquoises and corals are combined on one mesh.

These colors echo the shades of the new brocades and solve the problem of a color scheme which always confronts a designer.

Amethysts cluster in conventional bunches on a background of dull embroidered leaves, tiny golden disks shine out in brilliant contrast to the dull blue of night.

"All the wonder and wealth of the mine" are offered to the woman who wishes to give a rich and colorful touch to her costume. These newest idea are supplying just the beautiful accents for which an artistic, womanly eye strives when planning a gown to be worn on great occasions.

Milk Lemonade.

Two lemons, two pounds of powdered lump sugar, one quart of white wine, three quarts of fresh boiling milk. Wash and dry the lemons and peel very thinly, squeeze the juice over it and let it remain for twelve hours. Then add it to the sugar, wine and milk. Strain twice. Serve very cold.

Mistake Somewhere.

"Talk is cheap," quoted the moralizer.

"Huh!" rejoined the demoralizer. "You just wait till your wife begins to explain why she needs the money."—Chicago News.

WOMEN DEFEAT A CANDIDATE.

Residents of Teaneck Worked to Some Purpose.

The women of Teaneck, who wore white ribbons and worked against the election of George A. Sipp, the Republican candidate for Freeholder were rewarded at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning when the last vote was counted and it was announced that Sipp had been beaten by 11 votes.

Teaneck usually gives a Republican majority of 200. The successful candidate, Wendell J. Andres, is also a Republican, but he ran independently, and was indorsed by the Democrats.

The women did not lay claim to being suffragettes or mixing with politics. Theirs was a moral issue, they said, based on the serious charges made by Miss Mary Coleman, a New York lawyer, against Sipp, who has a hotel in Harlem. Sipp is wealthy and has a fine home at Teaneck.

$80,000 IN SUICIDE'S POCKETS.

Rich Cattleman Kills Himself After Selling Ranch.

Rapid City, S. D., Nov. 5.—The body of Arthur Finnigan, a cattleman, known throughout the State as "Honest Fin," was found hanging from a beam in a barn near Pedro Tuesday. Cash and certificates of deposit amounting to more than $80,000 were found in his pockets.

Finnigan had sold his ranch, and it is believed that the prospect of departure from the vicinity which he had called home for years had affected his mind.

RUBBER FORESTS.

Steps Which Must Be Taken for Their Exploitation.

In answer to an inquiry concerning the wild rubber forests of the Orinoco River, Consul Isaac A. Manning, of La Guaira, furnishes the following report, prepared by Consular Agent Robert Henderson, of Ciudad, Bolivar:

"Two elastic products, or two kinds of rubber, are shipped from southeastern Venezuela—the Castilloa elastica, rubber used where great elasticity is required, and balata, a class of gutta-percha. The prices paid for these products per pound in Cuidad Bolivar are 32 to 40 cents for balata and 65 to $1.10 for India rubber.

"The products are brought from the district where they are collected to Cuidad Bolivar either on mule-back or in ox carts, at a cost of $2.40 to $4 per 100 pounds. To reach the Cassiquiare district a number of portages would be necessary, on account of rapids. Ciudad Bolivar is closely connected with Port of Spain, Trinidad, and will soon have direct steamship communication with the port of La Guaira, thus giving it easy communication with the United States.

"The districts of Jeres and the Orinoco delta produce the greater part of the balata, while the greater production of india rubber is from Sucre and the Amazonas territory. The lands from which these products are collected belong to the Government of Venezuela, although many concessions have been granted in this district, some of which are in dispute. One entering there for the purpose of exploiting either of these products would have to be careful to keep free from trespass suits for having worked within the unmarked boundaries of some concessionaire.

"To expoit either rubber or balata, one must first get permission from the government of the State where the product is to be taken, according to the law covering the matter, which fixes the amount of local tax to be paid the State by each collector, and requires that the tapping shall be done in a manner calculated to prevent injury to the tree, and during certain months of the year, usually from April to December. The bulk of the output is gathered during this period. One man can collect the sap from only one balata tree a day, while a day's work among the castilloa or india rubber covers ten or twelve trees. The balata tree produces three to five pounds of gutta-percha, and the india rubber tree about half a pound of dry coagulated rubber.

"Coagulation of the balata is brought about by boiling; that of the rubber by smoking or by the use of acids. No established formula seems to be in use by any rubber hunters.

"The product is sold freely, is rarely contracted for before gathering, and no syndicate holds any monopoly of this industry. Concessions granted vary from two to twenty-five square leagues. The rubber hunters usually sell their product for cash, although where the purchaser is also a merchant a good part of the money is turned into merchandise."—Consular Reports.

LOCAL SHOP'S BIG JOB

Potter Press Works Secures Contract to Build Postal Card Presses.

LOCAL CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Pond Tool Works Working Overtime For First Time in Two Years—Scott's Shop Also Busy—Prosperity In Sight.

The tooting of the factory whistles on their old time schedule is evidence of returning prosperity in the local industrial field. All of the shops are filling up with orders and the indications are that in another six months the era of belated prosperity will be in full blast. The period of financial depression hit the west end hard and the business men of that section have been the largest sufferers of the hard times

Business is booming at the Potter Printing Press Works where the full time schedule has been in force for some time. This company has just been awarded an important U. S. Government contract, which calls for the erection of the much talked of presses for printing U. S. postal cards.

The Potter company has contracted with Uncle Sam to erect two of these machines which will have a capacity for printing 4,000,000 postals a day. The company is also busily engaged in manufacturing the rotary offset press which is rapidly superseding the flat-bed lithographic press.

David E. Titsworth took an optimistic view of the improved business conditions in an interview with a Daily Press representative this morning. "There is a better tone all over the country and the feeling is much better among manufacturers. Conditions are greatly improved, the Potter plant is working on full time and increasing its force almost every day"

Business has also taken a big jump at the Pond Tool Works, which was also staggered by the period of depression. This week marked the resumption of the old prosperity schedule of 55½ hours a week at the plant for the first time in over two years.

Probably the plainest indication of hard times in the west end was the large number of empty houses a few months ago, but the improved conditions at the Pond plant and other factories has resulted in the return of bustle and activity in that section of town. Houses are filling up again and everything is looking better.

A representative of the Pond factory, in an interview with a Daily Press reporter said this morning: "There are nearly 500 old employes now working on the full schedule which went into ojeration last Monday for the first time in two years. The iron and steel manufacturing business is showing improvement everywhere and I am confident that within six months our plant will be as busy as it ever was. Conditions are gradually approaching that end now. While we are not working on any especially big orders we have a big run of general business and that is a healthy sign of improved conditions. We are running in every department, including the foundry, which for a time was totally idle."

At the Scott Printing Press Works, business has taken such a brisk turn, that the company is experiencing difficulty in making prompt shipments. Mr. David J. Scott, stated today, that the firm is away behind on shipments, although several carload assignments, of 150,000 pounds each, were put in transit during the past few weeks.

The shop is running full-handed and according to Mr. Scott there is plenty of work on hand for some time to come. The company now has in hand orders for nearly fifty machines many of which are for export to England and South America.

The same encouraging conditions prevail in other local manufacturing plants. At the Hall Printing Press Works and Levering and Garrigues plant in Dunellen business conditions were never better than now.

Announcement.

I have established at my soda fountain counter a light lunch service, consisting of coffee, tea, cocoa, sandwiches, salads, etc. Ladies will find it a great convenience and their tastes and desires will be particularly catered to. Mr. Gifford W. Beers, late of the Dairy Lunch, is in charge. Rowley's Drug Store, 218 West Front street, next to Proctor's theatre. ***

Business to Continue for Present.

The cigar and tobacco business formerly conducted for so many years by Captain Matthias Clark Dobbins on North avenue, will be continued for the present by the estate of Mr. Dobbins.

PRICE OF MILK GOES UP ONE CENT TODAY

The Plainfield milk dealers have given notice that beginning today the retail price of milk in this city will be nine cents a quart, instead of eight as heretofore. This action follows that taken by the milk trust in New York city. The local dealers maintain that owing to the big advance in the price of feed and the necessary other expenses in connection with stringent Board of Health rules, that it is impossible to retail milk at eight cents a quart and make a fair profit.

Not only has the price of milk been raised, but cream has also gone up to 28 cents a quart. These increased prices will prevail throughout the winter season at least, and next spring when the cows are able to go out to pasture, it may be lowered to the old prices. The change will affect many people in this city and vicinity who will find it difficult to pay the extra cent a quart. The great demand for good milk, which now appears to exceed the supply at times, has also had something to do with the increase in prices.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS ON THE PACIFIC COAST

The migration of a number of New Market familiies to Ocean Park, California, during the past couple of years has resulted in the establishment of a healthy Seventh-Day Baptist colony on the Pacific coast. As all of the former Piscatawayans are becoming prosperous in their new abode another exodus is expected next spring.

The pioneers were W. J. Davis and family, and they were followed by Fred Ward and family, Charles Ward and family, William Ackerman and family, Willard L. Larabee and family, and Merle Larabee and family. The most recent additions to the colony were Mrs. Clark T. Rogers and Charles Rogers and family. The latter contingent, however, expect to return next July.

Ocean Park is in the heart of the orange growing district, in addition to being situated on an attractive point of the Pacific. Since the first contingent of New Market residents invested their land has increased a hundred fold, and some of the colony it is said have cleared up big sums in land speculation and fruit raising.

As all their investments are still reaping huge profits there is little chance of any members of the party returning to New Market for a time. Gossip in the village says that all are sure to return millionaires in less than ten years if the present good era continues.

HOLLOWE'EN HILARITY COSTS 'EM A DOLLAR EACH

Perhaps the reckless youths who so wantonly destroyed the wagons belonging to Jacob Steinberg, of Plainfield avenue and John Hasker, of McDowell street, will think twice before repeating their pranks in the future. Forty-eight of them, colored and white, were fined a dollar each this morning by City Judge William Runyon, part of which money will go to reimburse Steinberg and Hasker for the damage to their vehicles.

Steinberg estimated his loss at twenty-five dollars and Hasker said it would cost ten dollars to repair the damage done to his truck. Judge Runyon severely denounced the practice of destroying property on Hallowe'en and lectured the boys on the matter of malicious michief. Many of the boys had anticipated the fine as they produced the necessary dollar before leaving the court room. Those who did not have the money will have to pay up before noon on Monday.

MOVE FOR THE SEWERS

The North Plainfield Council Takes Steps for a Sanitary System.

ASK TOWNSHIP'S PERMISSION.

Need Permit to Install Plant and Lay Pipes for the Proposed Improvement.

North Plainfield's proposed sewerage system scheme took another step forward at the meeting of the Borough Council last night. Resolutions were adopted authorizing the Mayor and Council to petition North Plainfield Township for permission to erect a plant and establish the necessary pipe lines in the confines of the township. Three distinct sites were named in the petition. Another petition was in the form of a resolution requesting permission from the North Plainfield Township Board of Health to go ahead with the plans. With the exception of reading the resolution and delving into the technical details there was no discussion on the subject. The resolutions were presented by Councilman Nichols and were unanimously passed.

The transaction of miscellaneous work kept the borough fathers busy for some time. On the recommendation of the fire, water and light committee additional electric lights will be installed on DeLacey avenue, between Fairview and Grandview; Greenbrook road, near Somerset, and on Verdon street, between Fairview and Grandview avenues.

James Simpson, on the recommendation of Councilman Stahl, was given permission to erect a barn on Westervelt avenue. Samuel Taub, of Warren street, asked permission to transform a barn on that thoroughfare into a dwelling. If Taub's proposed alterations meet with the approval of the fire committee he will be given official permission to go ahead with the improvements.

The street committee was authorized to have a crosswalk laid on Fairview avenue at the head of Verdon street. For the purpose of making some repairs to the interior of fire headquarters the fire committee was given an appropriation of $35.

A communication was read from the Plainfield Board of Trade thanking the borough authorities for their assistance towards making the Charter Day celebration a success.

Recorder Dolliver's monthly report showed sixteen arrests in that period and the collection of $9 in fines. Borough Clerk Fred Martin reported the collection of $14,131.61 in taxes during October. Miscellaneous bills amounting to $2,589 39 were ordered paid.

A writer in a recent issue of the "Musical Courier" accords her a place among the greatest of the pupils of Leopold Musin.

In order to give as many as possible of the music lovers of Plainfield an opportunity to hear Miss Austin, seats for this concert will be sold at popular prices.

FIVE KILLED IN WRECK

Locomotives on Pennsylvania Come Together with Fatal Effect.

TWO ENGIENEERS MEET DEATH.

Trainmen Are Killed in Crash at Jersey City—No Passengers Seriously Hurt.

Five men were instantly killed shortly before 9 o'clock this morning on the Pennsylvania railroad when Engine 2768, drawing train 104, made of a steel baggage car and four steel day coaches ful of men and women passengers, jumped the switch on the thirty-foot embankment near Railroad and Brunswick avenues, on the outskirts of Jersey City, and crashed into light engine 3175, which was running on the adjoining track in the same direction. The train was running at express speed from Philadelphia and was due in Jersey City at 8:58 o'clock.

The heavy passenger locomotive side-swiped the lighter locomotive and cut off completely the cab and buckled up the locomotive proper, and turned it over on its side on the high trestle work. The engineer and fireman on this engine did not have a chance for their lives and were buried in the wreck of escaping steam, fire and twisted steel.

It was the same fate for the engineer and fireman of the passenger engine. They met death instantly, without warning, and although the men were dead they were carried along in the wild dash of the engine as it tore down the trestlework for 400 yards, where it finally came to a stop after leaping on the rails of the adjoining track and standing there upright, without, however, the tender, which had been left far up the road a total wreck.

The towerman, Daniel Harrington, of Monmouth street, Newark, who was in charge of the switches when the accident occurred, was arrested.

HOLTON WILL CONTEST DECISION IN 2 WEEKS

Argument in the Miss Mary Holton will case was heard at Somerville this morning before Judge Schenck, and the court informed counsel that it would take the matter under advisement and probably give a decision within the next two weeks.

Winfield S. Angleman, of this city, and Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerville, appeared for the caveators and spoke against the admission of the will to probate. William A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, of this city, and Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, addressed the court in behalf of the will and its admission to probate.

It was the contention of counsel for the caveators that Miss Holton never declared or acknowledged her will according to the statutes, and this argument, it is said, was not refuted by the opposing counsel. The argument of counsel took practically the whole morning and proved interesting to all concerned.

CHARITY CIRCLE NETS $175. FOR THE UNION

Under the auspices of Charity Circle of The King's Daughters, of which Mrs. D. N. VanVliet is the president, a tea and sale of fancy and useful articles and candy were held at the home of Mrs. Daniel Ginna on Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon. The affair was very successful, netting about $175 to be used for the King's Daughters' work.

The large and spacious home of Mrs. Ginna was thronged with members and friends of the Circle. Tea was served in the dining-room where Mrs. Harry Johnson, who presided, had wrought an attractive decoration of chrysanthemums. She was assisted by other members of the Circle, as were also Mrs. William A. Connor in charge of the useful and fancy articles and Mrs. Julius E. Erickson the candy table. During the afternoon a number of children assisted by selling ice cream.

LURE OF FOREIGN LANDS

Emerson E. Parvin Gives an Illustrated Lecture on Travel.

LIFE ABOARD PASSENGER SHIP.

The Beneficial Effect of Seeing Something of the World and How it is Done.

Emerson E. Parvin, of this city, delivered a lecture on the subject of "Over the Seas and the Lure of Foreign Lands," before an audience of over 200 people at Hope chapel last night. The lecture was illustrated with superb views, many of which were taken by the speaker. Mr. Parvin is an interesting talker and his lecture was well received, being frequently interrupted with applause.

Mr. Parvin took his audience to the big shipyards and showed views of many large vessels in course of construction, including the "Olympic" and "Titanic," which, when completed, will be the largest trans-Atlantic liners afloat, being 840 feet long, with small coal consumption and speed of 21 knots and having accommodations for about 5,000 people, a number equal to the population of a small town.

As an idea of their size, it would require about forty-five city houses twenty feet wide to fill the space. Having conducted his audience through the shipyards the speaker explained the details of building, the preparations necessary for a single trip across the big pond, telling of the commissary department, giving an adequate idea of quality and quantity of supplies needed for the trip.

The audience was then taken from New York to Liverpool, London, through principal cities of England; Paris and other important points in France, then through Spain, Morroco, Egypt, the Holy Land, through Turkey and Persia and returning through Germany, Holland and returning to England and bringing them back on one of the big ocean steamers.

The speaker explained in full the life on shipboard, views being shown of state rooms, smoking rooms, the salon and dining room, the culinary department, the crew and officers and the passengers busy and interested in games on the trip.

In describing the journey, Mr. Parvin said:

"We can conceive of one who has no interest in the land of his ancestors, who does not care to take the trouble to view the scenes made familiar by the pen of the historian, the story-teller, or the poet; who has no desire to enjoy the art treasures of the old world, but such cases are rare indeed.

"To be sure, travel for its own sake is beneficial, as all wise men have agreed from time immemorial. Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits, and though travel will not make a gem of a pebble, nothing else will so quickly cut the face of a diamond mind.

"It is far from useless to journey through a foreign land with no other idea than to enjoy its scenery, but the buildings and its art, to observe the customs of its people and to live for awhile as they live. Yet there is greater satisfaction in returning with the belief that you have done something, little it may be towards mastering some one branch of knowledge.

"The purposeless traveler may come home conscious that he is a wider, broader, more cultured man than when he went away, but he should not be satisfied if he cannot say to himself, 'I can tell what a handsome church it is, and why it is a handsome church. I know several kinds of architecture.' As a business man he can observe men in similar trades display their goods, and how they otherwise advertise them, and in countless ways the man with a purpose can come home amply rewarded by a trip to a foreign country."

Captain Saunders to Speak.

There will be a special meeting at the Salvation Army tomorrow evening when Captain Herbert B. Saunders, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, will make an address. Mr. Saunders is a marine captain and ship surveyor and is deeply interested in Christian work, especially boys' work. He has many interesting stories to relate which will be of special interest to boys and is very anxious that a goodly number will be present at the service. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Funeral of Paul Tate.

The funeral services of Paul T. Tate, who died on Thursday, will take place tomorrow at his late residence, 47 Woodbine avenue, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Encampment and Knights of the Golden Eagle are invited to attend.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY ON YOUNG WOMEN'S CHARGE

Russel DeCamp, the young man complained against by Miss Anna Burdick, of Fanwood, yesterday, was held in $1,000 bonds this morning to await the action of the grand jury.

Miss Burdick told her story in court this morning, but those present were not impressed with the narrative. She acknowledged that she had informed DeCamp that she was sixteen and to others had said that she was seventeen years old. She was also mixed as to dates and alternately named a day in December and September as the day on which the alleged offense occurred.

The woman who yesterday posed as the girl's mother declared this morning that she was only her foster mother. The girl's mother went on the stand and gave her name as Winifred Thompson, of Westfield, and her age as twenty-nine.

The case will come before the grand jury in the January, 1910 term, meanwhile DeCamy will be released on a bail bond which was furnished this morning by friends.

PATROLMEN'S BALL TO BE A BIG AFFAIR

The program for the coming ball and entertainment of the Plainfield lodge of the Patrolman's Benevolent Association have appeared and judging from the list of things that are to happen on the night of November 18 there will be something doing all the time.

Among the attractions to be offered will be the singing by the Dixie Quartet, which combination needs no introduction to Plainfielders. Harry MacDonald, too, is on the program for some songs. All the dances are named for officials of the State, county and city, from Governor Fort down to Tom McCue, the veteran and a good time is assured for the night.

The dance will take place in Truell Hall and the music will be by La Vere's string band. During the evening Mrs. Truell will furnish light refreshments for those who want them at moderate cost. A banquet will be held in the dining hall of Truell court at which several prominent speakers, including Mayor Fisk, Judge William Runyon, Chief of Police Monahan, of Jersey City, the founder of the association; Henry W. Weller, of Newark, and others will address the members present. From present indications there will be a large attendance at the ball. The banquet will be limited to thirty-six persons including the officials and speakers.

STONE THROWER CAUGHT; PUT ON PROBATION

Throwing stones at passing trains is becoming such a nuisance in this city that the Central Railroad has had its detectives on the lookout for the stone-throwers. Officer Regan of the road found the boy who struck an engineer of train No. 528 on the evening of October 27 by some clever detective work and the boy, John Stromberg, was arraigned in court this morning before City Judge Runyon.

Stromberg bears a good reputation and it not known as a trouble seeker. In his own behalf this morning he told the judge that he did not throw the stone with the intention of hitting anybody, but simply threw it at a huge lump of coal on a passing coal train. He did not know that the flyer was coming along. Two small colored lads who were witnesses of the throwing told just how it happened and it was shown that young Stromberg told the truth about the incident. He was put on probation.

John Hasker, of McDowell street, spoke a good word for Stromberg and the judge was favorably impressed with the boy's neat appearance He lectured him some on the evils of stone throwing and allowed him to go, with the understanding that he must report on Saturday mornings for a while.

BAIRD FIGHTS ACKERMAN

"Boss Davy" Aims to Prevent Union Solon's Selection as Senate Leader.

TWO REASONS FOR THE SCHEME

Liquor Interests Fear Plainfielder and Davy Also Wants to Hurt John Kean's Chances for Re-election.

Unless there is a sudden change of front, next Tuesday, the first Governor's Day after election, will find the State House corridors at Trenton echoing with talk in which it will be found that State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, perhaps the most influential single Republican in New Jersey, is out against the selection of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman for majority leader of the upper chamber of the incoming Legislature. Mr. Baird has already commenced to pull wires to defeat Mr. Ackerman for majority leader, a post that the latter was supposed to be able to land for the mere asking, since it was tacitly understood that his elevation to the leadership in the waning hours of the lost session, when Senator Frelinghuysen was promoted to the presidency of the Senate, meant that he would be continued in the place during the next regular session.

Mr. Baird has already solicited several South Jersey Senators to vote against Mr. Ackerman as majority leader. One of them, at least, has flatly refused to be a party to a deal by which Mr. Ackerman will be relegated to the rear. He is Senator Bloomfield Minch, of Cumberland county. Mr. Minch told Mr. Baird that if he had not been for the Union county Senator's vote he (Minch) would not have been honored with the presidency of the Senate two years ago, and he did not now propose to be an ingrate. Senator Minch sails for Europe next week to be gone until the end of the year.

Senator Ackerman is encountering opposition for the majority leadership for two reasons. One of them is that he is a local optionist, and the brewery and liquor interests are opposed to him.

The other reason for opposition to Senator Ackerman's ambition, and probably the chief one, ramifies out from political jockeying for advantage in the race for the United States Senatorship which will be disposed of in the Legislature of 1911, in which year John eKan's present term expires. If Mr. Ackerman can be turned down it will be analyzed as a blow to the political prestige of Senator Kean, who will be a candidate for re-election. This fact, in a measure, accounts for activity of David Baird against the Union county legislator.

ADDRESSES FEATURE OF MISSION SESSION

The afternoon session of the Women's Baptist Home Missionary Society of the East Association, held at the First Baptist church yesterday, was largely devoted to two addresses, one by Miss Annie Barclay, who is a missionary in Cuba, and the other by Mrs. N. N. Bishop, of Boston.

Miss Barclay gave a most interesting account of her work in Cuba, and while she told of many discouragements, she said that the encouragements more than offset them and made it worth while for all the efforts put forth there. She said that she had found the natives in a receptive mood and anxious to learn about Christ. During her stay in Cuba she said that it had been her privilege to witness many conversions.

The talk by Mrs. Bishop was of the soul-stirring sort that aroused the greatest interest of the women. Her remarks were more general in character and covered a wide scope of mission work which she has been personally in touch with for several years.

The speaker told of the great progress being made in the South among the colored people and in Alaska, as well as other western points and those nearer home. She said that the Baptist women are doing more today in the cause of missions than ever and even more is planned for the coming year. Mrs. Bishop was listened to with more than usual interest.

The missionary society decided before adjournment to unite with the Baptist Missionary Union and hold but two, instead of three, conferences a year, one in the spring and the other in the fall.

GEBHARDT READY TO OFFER OPTION BILL

Senator William C. Gebhardt, fresh from his victorious fight for re-election in Hunterdon county, where the final count shows that he won by a majority of 2,196, the largest ever given a Democratic candidate in that county, was at the State House, Trenton, Thursday afternoon and declared that he did not know whether the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League would ask him to father a local option bill in the next Legislature. "But I will say this," added the Hunterdon Senator, "if it appears that no other member is going to introduce such a bill I will do so myself. I stand by my colors, and by my friends, too, not the least of whom are the local optionists of Hunterdon county."

Senator Gebhardt said that he was prepared to renew his fight in the Senate for the passage of a law creating a public service commission, and that in all probability he would offer for the third time his bill on this subject, which in the two last sessions of the Legislature was smothered in committee.

Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan, of Hudson county, who has served as minority leader in the House for two years, and will probably be selected for the same post at the incoming session, said yesterday afternoon he feared that now that the Democrats will have nineteen members the Republican "regulars" will abolish the rule by which in the last session twenty members could compel the chairman of a committee to report a bill even if a majority of the committee were hostile to it. "Of course, if last year's rules are adopted without change all we Democrats will have to do to get any bill on the floor of the House for discussion will be to induce one Republican to sign the petition to that effect," said Mr. Sullivan. "But I anticipate the Republican majority will this year go back to the old system of leaving the question of reporting a bill to the chairman of the committee handling it."

"If any attempt is made to repeal or modify the direct primary act, will it receive any Democratic support?" Mr. Sullivan was asked.

"Not if I have anything to say about it," he promptly replied. "The Democrats of Hudson county are well satisfied with the direct primary system as it is now applied."

BLOW OPEN SAFE.

Burglars Get Little Cash, but Many Stamps.

Lambertville, Nov. 6.—The safe in the office of Fields & Harrison, this town, was blown open by burglars Thursday night, and although they did not get much cash for their trouble they did carry off some valuable papers and a large quantity of stamps. It is presumed that the burglars chose a time when a freight train was passing to blow the safe, as the railroad station is only a short distance from the place and no unusual noise was heard by the men there. The noise caused by the freight engine and train would deaden the noise of the explosion of the safe. The robbery was not discovered until one of the firm opened the place yesterday morning.

Fields & Harrison are coal and ice dealers, and doubtless the burglars believed they would get a considerable sum of money from the safe. Entrance to the place was by means of skeleton keys. The robbery was reported to the authorities, but there is no clue to the burglars.

Mrs. H. Craig Smith, of Madison avenue, who has been seriously ill for sometime, is improving slowly.

ROSELLE CHURCH INSTALLS ITS NEW PASTOR

Roselle, Nov. 6.—The Rev. Charles E. Goodall was installed pastor of the First Baptist church in Roselle last night in the presence of an audience which completely filled the church in Chestnut street.

A feature of the service was that the Rev. George W. Peck, now pastor of the Norristown, Pa., Baptist church and once a boy in the First Baptist church in Roselle, delivered the charge to the congregation, and the Rev. W. G. Russell, of Norristown, Pa., the charge to the pastor, who was a member in the Norristown church.

The Rev. Dr. I. A. Blauvelt, of the First Presbyterian church, Roselle, welcomed the Rev. Mr. Goodall. The Rev. Dr. Vassar, of Elizabeth, who has been acting as a supply while the church was without a pastor, presided and offered the prayer. The closing prayer was made by the Rev. Mr. Goodall.

The interior of the church was elaborately decorated with chrysanthemums. Special music was rendered by the choir. There were several Baptist clergymen present from Newark, Orange and Elizabeth. The Rev. Dr. Wolf, of Newark, secretary of the Baptist work in the State, was also present.

The Rev. Mr. Goodall comes to Roselle from Huntington, Pa. This is his second charge. He was graduated from Bucknell with the degree of M. A. and from Crozer Theological Seminary. He also took a special course at Oxford.

BURGLARS LEAVE $46,000 BEHIND.

Mt. Holly, Nov. 6.—A masked burglar entered the home of Schuyler Rainer, a farmer, near Florence at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, forced Miss Jane Nixon, the housekeeper, aged 70, upstairs, and, locking her in her room, threatened her with death if she gave an alarm. Frightened, the woman obeyed instructions.

Downstairs was seated Samuel Schuyler, aged 91, and in the presence of the aged man the intruder brought out his tools and began to work on the safe. He finally broke open the door with an ax and a hatchet. He could have made a much richer haul had he been able to identify certain papers which were left scattered about. The job may have been committed only with the object of securing money, as valuable watches, jewelry and silverware were left among the debris found on the floor. From the safe was taken $1,500 in $10 and $20 gold pieces, which were kept in a bag, and which had been in the safe for a number of years.

The sum of $625 belonging to Rainier was taken as well as $146, the property of Miss Nixon. Outside of the jewelry left behind was $15,000 in railroad bonds, $20,000 in government bonds, a note for $11,000 and other papers of considerable value.

Three Italians are suspected.

SCHOOL PRINCIPALS MEET FOR DISCUSSION

Supervising Principal Edward V. Walton, of the Springfield Township schools, was unanimously elected secretary of the Union County Principals' Association, at a meeting held Thursday night at Van Court's Inn, Roselle. County Superintendent Dr. J. J. Savitz was among those who attended the session. The new course of study was discussed, principally the subject of geography. Dr. Savitz gave a practical talk on the defects of the grade teachers in the ordinary presentation of that subject.

Dr. Savitz declared that after years of teaching pupils cannot interpret the commonest facts of physiography, nor account for many of the most interesting and familiar facts of climatology. He deplored the superficiality of preparation and the ignorance of suitable material and aids that are shown by so many grade teachers. Dr. Savitz urged the principals to encourage their teachers to de better and more effective work in geography by teaching the pupils to understand the nature of their geographic environment.

Dr. Savitz inquired carefully into what is being done in the way of medical inspection of school children in the different municipalities of the county. The fact was brought out that most of the districts have employed physicians to perform the work for the present school year.

The question of remuneration was discussed, and it was found that in most cases the cost of inspection was from thirty to fifty cents per pupil, although in one case the rate fell as low as twenty cents.

The reorganization and increase of the Union County Pedagogical Library came up for consideration. It is proposed to raise $100 which will be duplicated by the State. After the new books have been purchased, it is likely that the library will be placed in the county superintendent's office in the courthouse, at Elizabeth, where it will be available to principals, teachers and boards of education. It is the intention to make the library more helpful and useful in the future than it has been in the past.

Principals were present from Unionville, Roselle, Springfield, Roselle Park, Linden, Cranford, Westfield, Kenilworth, Scotch Plains, Garwood and Lyons Farms.

ASSOCIATION SUSTAINS MOON'S POLITICAL WORK

Joseph D. Moon, president of the Union County Association of the Jr. O. U. A. M., was practically vindicated last night by that association's committee on legislation for his action in causing a circular to be issued in the name of the organization requesting members of the order to vote against the Republican nominees for the Assembly. It is said that the committee alleges that it has in its possession a letter from State Council Secretary Miers in which he in effect approved of the idea of issuing the political appeal. The alleged letter cannot be obtained for publication, butit is said to contradict the rebuke administered by Mr. Miers to Mr. Moon in a letter written by the former just before the circular in question was spread broadcast.

The association met last night with Somerset Council, which had received a letter from Cranford council making charges against Mr. Moon for introducing practical politics in the other. The charges were returned without action with the explanation that Mr. Moon is not a member of Somerset council. He is a member of Benevolent council and according to members of the order it is expected that charges will be preferred before that council.

DEATH OF MISS THOMPSON BRINGS SORROW TO MANY

Miss Eleanor A. Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Thompson, of 307 East Second street, died yesterday afternoon, after an illness dating from last July. Miss Thompson was a native of this city and was very popular among a large circle of friends. She graduated from the High School at the head of the class of '06, winning the highest honors, the Amanuensis prize, one striven after by all the students. She took the Commercial course and after her graduation entered the employ of the General Electric Company, of New York city, where she remained until she became ill.

Miss Thompson was a lifelong members of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Sunday-school and was active in the work of the church. Besides her parents, two sisters and a brother survive Miss Thompson. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2:30 from her late home. Rev. Charles S. Kemble, pastor of the church, will conduct the services and the interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

"FOREST MASQUE" DANCE AT HOME OF MRS. KNIGHT.

Mrs. J. H. Knight, of Park avenue, entertained fourteen friends at a "forest masque" last night. The rooms were converted into a veritable forest and looked handsome with the arrangement of fantastic lights and the novel decorations.

The dance was given in honor of Miss Cody L. Thompson, a sister of the hostess. At midnight a delicious supper was served. All the costumes were of an elaborate character and the usual merriment followed the unmasking.

NEPHEW WILL PREACH ON GENERAL HOWARD'S LIFE.

Lessons from the life of the late General O. O. Howard, the brave commander known in history as "The Christian Soldier," will form the subject matter of a sermon to be preached tomorrow night by his nephew, Rev. Lawrence Riggs Howard, at Hope chapel. The pastor's theme will be "A Christian Soldier," and his sermon will be more in the nature of an address. The evening service will begin at 7:45. Rev. Mr. Howard's subject at the morning service will be "Fight With Sin."

They Will Not Laugh.

"Whenever I try to make a speech everybody laughs."

"I know how to fix that."

"How?"

"Try to say something funny."—Cleveland Leader.

Trouble for Pa.

"Where do they wind you up, Miss Skreeker?"

"Wind me up?"

"Yes; pa said you sang mechanically."—Houston Daily Post.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the Congregational church tomorrow morning. In the evening there will be a special musical half-hour with chorus and solos, and a short talk by the pastor on "Two Shipwrecks."

ENEMIES OF GAME FISH.

Destructive Work of Cormorants, Heron and Gulls.

The common herons are, to my mind, one of the most destructive agents of fish life, living as they do entirely in the vicinity of fresh water and fishing not only in lake and stream, but in estuaries as well. To the herons must be of course added two other kinds of birds equally destructive to our fisheries, gulls of various sorts and the cormorants (green coromorant or shag), and the only extenuating circumstances I can possibly see in favor of the latter birds is that fortunately the bulk of their kind keep on the salt water.

However, I may add that I have seen a cormorant eject a trout of twelve inches in order to facilitate flight, and I have also seen other cormorants so gorged with sea trout as to be unable to escape without great difficulty, and one was knocked on the head by an angler while in this condition. In these instances the birds were probably ten miles from the sea.

As regards gulls, the damage done by them to fresh water fisheries is undoubtedly great, and only a few weeks ago I watched a gull (herring gull) at work in a trout stream, and a herring gull is capable of easily swallowing a trout larger than a herring. Now what is the remedy, and I do not for one minute suggest or wish for extermination? What I would suggest is that all rivers and estuaries controlled by fishery districts should be kept as clear as possible of cormorants in particular, and these birds would soon leave any particular district if much disturbed; at any rate, drive them out to sea, as owing to the depth of water once outside they would be much less detrimental.

Gulls have their uses in clearing a harbor of garbage, etc., and act as scavengers, and they do not dive, but when they stray from the paths of rectitude, as is often the case, and go inland and attack our trout streams a charge of shot is the best corrective. Herons too are easily scared and would soon leave a district if much disturbed, but the shag or cormorant I would give no quarter to personally under any conditions, and I believe that not long ago the Exe fishery authorities gave a reward of one shilling for every cormorant killed.

As a proof of the destructive powers of sea birds, I once shot an adult great northern diver and took from it five freshly sfallowed fish, each fish being about five inches in length, and of the kind locally known as "stingers." The full amount of fish at this rate taken by one bird during a day can therefore be left to the imagination; but in any case must be enormous.—Fishing Gazette.

PIN NOVELTIES.

Jewelers have crystallized the graceful lines of Psyche's wings in some attractive pin novelties for dainty neckwear. They represent four light wings of pearl which follow the outline only. In little settings delicate stones glint and shine in contrast, giving an effect of a spotted butterfly.

So light and airy are these clasps that their ability is hard to realize; but they perch over a fluffy tulle or lace bow with a firm hold, and fly from their fastenings only at the wearer's wish.

BRITISH FRUIT MARKET.

Hull Has Special Facilities for Receiving Foreign Shipments.

Consul Walter C. Hamm, at Hull, writes that during August delegations of growers and exporters of fruit from France and Belgium visited that English port to inquire into the market for fruit and the facilities for handling it. The consul mentions the following points for the benefit of American fruit growers:

Two delegations came from France and one from Belgium. The fruit crop in both countries this year is reported to be very large, and producers and dealers are seeking foreign markets for their surplus. They have come to Hull because it is considered the best importing centre for fruit in Great Britain, outside of London. Hull has special facilities for receiving fruit from abroad and distributing it over the central and northern half of England. For example, on August 16 one vessel arrived with 12,000 barrels of pears, 6,000 sieves of plums, 6,000 packages of bilberries, cherries, etc., 14,000 of gages, plums and pears from the continent. It is stated that the railroads in southern France are assisting in the sending of these deputations to England in order to aid the exporters in finding a market for their products, and getting their return in freight carriage.

Apricots have been arriving in England in large quantities from France, where the harvest is said to be unusually heavy and the shipments correspondingly large; plums are also said to be a record crop. France raises a large variety of fruits of all kinds and exports large quantities to other countries, the surplus this year being exceptionally large.

A ship recently arrived in Hull direct from Santa Marta, Colombia, with a consignment of 25,000 bunches of bananas, the first consignment of such fruit direct to this city. Usually bananas have been distributed from Liverpool or Manchester through central and northern England. It is believed, however, that Hull offers a much more convenient point for such distribution. If the present effort succeeds a considerable trade in this fruit will be built up between Hull and South America.—Consular Reports.

GERMAN EMIGRATION.

Wanderlust Now Declining in Empire—Population Going Up.

It is admitted on all sides, writes Counsul-General T. St. John Gaffney from Dresden, that Germany owes its present commanding position among the nations of Europe to its high birth rate. Of recent years there has been a surprising decrease in the volumn of emigration; in fact the German Empire has the lowest emigration returns of twelve countries of Europe. Mr. Gaffney presents the following comparisons:

In 1908 the emigrants from Germany numbered only 19,88[illegible], which was 11,81[illegible] fewer than in 19[illegible]7. For the first time since the German Empire was founded, in 1871, the number has fallen below 20,000. The Franco-Prussian war was followed by an economic crisis, and the people emigrated in great numbers until in 1881 the number of emigrants had grown to 202,900 for that year. Then the number began to decrease yearly, until in 1893 an average of 100,000 was reached. But after 1893 the German industries began to develope at a great rate, and the people were not driven to seek new homes across the seas. In 1894 the munber of emigrants fell suddenly to 40,964, in 1895 to 37,400, and to 33,820 in 1896. From 1897 to 1907 the yearly mean average was 27,526, or 0.47 per cent. of the population. Altogether since 1871 the German Empire has lost 2,750,000 people by emigration, or as many people as can be made good in four years by the excess of births over deaths.—Consular Reports.

APPLE RECIPES.

Apple Snow—Peel and grate two large apples and put them aside. Whip stiff the whites of two eggs with a pinch of salt, then add gradually six tablespoonfuls of sugar, beating it well into the egg, alternating with a tablespoonful of the apple til all the sugar and apple are used. Continue to whip until the snow has risen to some height. If preferred the pulp of cooked apples may be used and the snow may be quickly and lightly browned.

Apple Cheese — Apple cheese makes a good tart or cake filling. Peel, core and quarter half a pound of apples and grate the rind of a medium sized lemon. Place a pound of sugar in an earthenware pan with a quarter of a pint of water, and add the apples and lemon. Simmer this for about an hour, then add the juice of two lemons and let it boil for ten minutes, stirring continually.

Apple Souffle—Boil three ounces of rice in a pint of milk till tender; mash it to a pulp, line a cake tin with it and place it in the oven till quite firm and set. Turn into a dish and fill the frame with a souffle made as follows: Stew five apples, sweetening and flavoring them with a little cinnamon or clove. Beat the yoke of three eggs with an ounce and a half of butter and mix them with the apples. Set on the fire for a few minutes in order to mix well together. Let the mixture then stand in a basin for a short while, add the froth, and mix all together. Fill the rice frame with this and bake till a golden brown.

This makes a simple, old-fashioned dish which is both tempting and wholesome. Pare, core and quarter some apples overnight, and place them in a fruit casserole with half a pound of sugar which has been previously dissolved in a teacupful of water. Let them get well heated, then draw the casserole to the side of the stove, taking care that the lid fits closely. Leave all night and the apples will be quite tender in the morning.

GAY FARMS OF JAPAN.

Acre or Two in Extent, Made Up of Bright Little Patches.

Land is so scarce in Japan and the people are so numerous that a farm rarely consists of more than an acre or two. These little farms are divided up into tiny fields.

During the season of the year in which we made our journey, says a writer in the Montreal Standard, one of these fields was filled with sprouting barley, light green in color; another field—perhaps the next—with vetch, a lavender-colored, clover-like fodder.

A neighboring field was covered with a dark green grass, from the seed of which a lamp oil is manufactured; another with the pale yellow flowers of the mustard, and scattered here and there fields with what looked like a variety of lily—some white, some red, some yellow, but all equally brilliant.

Then to get the complete picture you must imagine patches of flowering azaleas dotting the roadside; towering, round-topped camelia trees breaking the skyline with frequent spashes of bright green, usually in the shade of these trees houses with white-plastered walls and red tiled roofs; about the more pretentious of these houses white-plastered walls, above which appeared a profusion of palms, roses and strange native flowers, and in the doorways or the garden walls kimonoclad Japanese girls—the kimonos as many and as gaily colored as the gardens that framed them.

PLAN TO RE-ORGANIZE THE FRATERNAL LEAGUE

Local pin knights are keenly interested in the reorganization of the Fraternal League which is set down for Monday night, November 15. The tourney last season was successful in every degree and according to Johnny Campbell, the local tenpin impressario, the coming season's tourney is bound to eclipse in interest all bowling competitions of past years in this city.

The competing teams last year included the Elks' quintet, Miantonomah Tribe, I. O. R, Saengerbund, Woodmen of Westfield, Wetumpka Tribe of Red Men, Perseverance Lodge, K. of P., and the Plainfield Bicycle Club. Of these teams the Elks and Miantonomah teams are sure of entering again, with the Saengerbunds and Westfield Woodmen as probable entries. Interest is also alive among the Knights of Pythias, Wetumpka Red Men and the cyclists.

On the other hand the Knights of Columbus are certain to enter one team, and possibly two. Raritan will enter a team and the Plainfield Ponies will also present a strong front. It is also possible that the Pond Tool Works will also be represented in the competition.

The close finish last season in which the Elks and Miantonomah tied, and the former won in the roll-off, is remembered by all local pin knights.

CRANFORDITES PROTEST AGAINST EXTRA FARE

The residents of Cranford have petitioned the township committee, protesting against the exaction of three cents extra for a fare from Elizabeth to any point in the township beyond Walnut avenue, on the trolley, and it brings up an old grievance of long standing.

The claim is made that the fare should be five cents only to any part of the township. From a reading of the franchise ordinance the matter does not appear at all clear, it is said, but there does seem to be no doubt that the company is regularly overcharging by collecting ten cents from Cranford to Plainfield, while the franchise provides for a seven cent fare.

The whole matter is in the hands of the township counsel and it is hoped that the question may be settled amicably for all time. If the contention that a five cent fare from Elizabeth should carry a person to any part of Cranford goes, this means Centre street, Garwood, as that was the township line when the franchise was granted.

YOUNG MEN'S HEBREW CONVENTION TOMORROW

The first annual convention of the Young Men's Hebrew Association will be held in Eisner's Hall, 94 Market street, Newark, tomorrow. Delegates from various locals of the order from Plainfield, Trenton, Camden, Woodbine, New Brunswick, Hoboken, Jersey City, Paterson and other New Jersey cities will be represented. The convention will be presided over by Rabbi Solomon Foster.

Other speakers who will address the meeting besides Rabbi Foster and Mr. Kanengieser will be Charles Elin, Benjamin A. Kaufman, Faulk Younker, Samuel Rothberg, of the Plainfield Y. M. H. A., and President Louis Levy and Treasurer George Polaner, of the Newark organization.

FIRE THREATENED OLD SCOTCH PLAINS HOSTELRY

Walpole's Hotel, at Scotch Plains had a narrow escape from destruction by fire early yesterday morning. Shortly before 5 o'clock the family weree awakened by the smell of smoke. An investigation found a small blaze in one of the clothes closets, which would soon have been a serious conflagaration. Several pails of water were used to extinguish the fire. The cause of the fire is unknown unless it was caused by mice and matches which were in the pocket of some of the clothes.

SHE MARRIED "THAT THING."

Says She Did So Because He Gave Her $150.

The statement that she married her husband because he gave her $150 was made in the county court at Elizabeth yesterday by Mrs. William Weisman, of Cranford. She rushed up to Prosecutor C. Addison Swift, asking him to divorce her. Mrs. Weisman, who lives with her sister in Elizabeth, said that she had been sorry ever since she married.

"Everybody laughs at me," she said, "and they all say 'How did you come to marry that thing?"

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A large furnace having burst at the Whitney Glass Works, Glassboro, a large number of men have been thrown out of work.

Arrivals of thousands of ducks in bays and inlets around Atlantic City is a sign of coming winter, according to old weathermen and gunners.

The three-year-old daughter of Joseph Butterworth, of East Millville, was run over by a grocery wagon Thursday, and no hopes are entertained of her recovery.

At the annual convention of the Cumberland County Christian Endeavor Society, in Millville, on Wednesday, William Moncrief, of Bridgeton, was elected president.

Fire of a mysterious origin caused about $500 damage to the fancy goods store of Joseph Nochimson, of 37 Hamburgh avenue, Thursday. The store was gutted, both by fire and water.

The local committee of Atlantic City has made plans to visit President McCrea, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, to request restoration of the 150-trip ticket books during the winter.

Ventnor is to appropriate $15,000 as the first step toward securing control of the beach front outside the Boardwalk for a city park, the same as that being carried out in Atlantic City.

Charged by W. S. Le Tourneau with permitting his horse to go three days without food or drink, William Davison, of Oaklyn, was fined $10 and the costs by Justice Huyett, of Camden.

Rev. Dr. John D. Countermine, of Philadelphia, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Hammonton Presbyterian church, and will preach there for the first time on Sunday, November 14.

Mrs. Louisa Wood, who shot and killed her husband, James, at the Camden Country Club, where he was steward, will be placed on trial at Camden next Monday. She will plead self-defense.

The body of the man found in the river off North Cramer Hill last Saturday was Thursday identified as that of Paul Marmakis, thirty years old, of Burlington, who has been missing for two weeks. Relatives know of no reason why he should have taken his life.

Persons arrested after today in Atlantic City will be taken to the police station in a new $5,000 automobile, which will be delivered at the end of the week. The old automobile has been retired through wearing out. Atlantic City is said to be the only city in the State that uses automobiles as patrols.

Eleven-year-old Harry Reif has the odd habit of breaking his right leg. Harry lives in Gloucester, and attends the Cumberland Street Public School. Coming down the school steps Thursday, he slipped, and snap went the bones of his leg. Twice before he broke the same leg under nearly similar circumstances.

A mistake in instructions that resulted in failure of reformers and their detectives to appear before the grand jury at May's Landing to testify in Sunday selling cases prevented consideration of the 200 cases. Members of the grand jury declared their readiness to consider the cases, which were postponed until the presence of the witnesses can be secured.

Prominent business and professional men of Atlantic City, who had paid for membership in a local "nest" of the National Order of Owls, were given a jar Thursday, when the national body informed them that no money or other notice had been received that an Atlantic City lodge had been formed. The local organizer has disappeared, and the "nest" is to be dismantled until they can straighten out the tangle.

A crosstown trolley line that will have ferry connections and tap the commercial centres is one of the aims of the Business Improvement Association of Camden, and a committee has been named to lay the proposition before the officials of the Public Service Railway Company. The present crosstown line is such in name only, and the merchants feel satisfied that they can show the company that their plan will be beneficial to the corporation, as well as to the business interests.

LEGAL ROW OVER THE DIET OF A PRISONER.

Unless Sheriff Kirkland orders differently, Herbert Alessi, awaiting trial for the murder of two men, will have to wait probably for many weeks before he learns whether or not his friends can provide him with food other than that served at the county jail, Elizabeth, where he now is. Alessi's application for a writ of mandamus to compel the sheriff to allow him food sent to the jail at his own expense was considered for a brief time by the Supreme court yesterday, and as a result will be sent to the Court of Errors and Appeals for a decision.

Alessi complained of indigestion and said that he wanted other food than that served at the county institution. He desired fruit and dainties. The prisoner is said to be the son of an Italian nobleman. He is accused of shooting and killing two men in Peterstown last summer.

It is probable that before the question regarding the food is settled in the Court of Errors Alessi will be tried and convicted or freed.

Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains come from sick kidneys.

'Twould save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Plainfield people endorse this:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says:

"About three years ago I was suffering severely from kidney trouble. There were dull, heavy pains in my back and in the top of my head. I also had dizzy spells and I was subject to chills. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and I began their use. They promptly drove away my trouble and I have had no symptom of a return since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Lew Fields' famous production of "The Midnight Sons," at the Broadway theatre continues as the most phenomenal spectacular success of years. With its company of more than 200 people, its many wonderful scenes, including the one greatest scene of all, which shows the entire interior of a theatre with an audience attending a performance, it easily takes rank as the most amazing revelation of modern stage craft as applied to musical productions ever attempted. Among the leading members of the company are Maud Lambert, Lotta Faust, Lillian Lee, Florence Martin, Gladys Moore, Linden Beckwith, Hazie King, Maybelle Meeker, Billee Seaton, George Schiller, Joseph Ratliff, Harry Fisher, Denman Maley, George Monroe, Taylor Holmes, Yernon Castle and Gus Baci. Regular matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays. Best seats Wednesday matinees $1.50.

A first night record for curtain calls was made at the end of the second act of "Israel," Charles Frohman's production of the new Bernstein play at the Criterion Theatre in New York. Exactly thirty times, as counted by the critic of one of the morning papers, was the curtain raised and the actors were compelled to bow their acknowledgements until at last from pure weariness the audience relaxed its applause and the happy but exhausted actors were allowed to withdraw to their dressing rooms. Perhaps a better way of measuring this extraordinary burst of enthusiasm and approval is by the statement of the time it lasted. At the lowest computation, there was a full ten minutes of consecutive applause.

Of all the exclusive little group of men whose names are associated in the public mind with the writing or production of modern drama, that of David Belasco alone stands out in unique and picturesque isolation. About none other of these men has there been so much said, so much written, and about none other of them is there really so little known. Indeed, one might almost say that the character and personality of David Belasco have become legendary, and that quite in spite of the fact that unlike the heroes of most traditionary romance, David Belasco is not only still alive and very much alive at the age of fifty, but is in reality just entering the heyday of his brilliant career.

GENERAL DISAPPROVES "HIKES" OF BRIGADE.

Although Brigadier-general Dennis F. Collins, of the Second Brigade, in his forthcoming report will praise the journey afoot of the Second Regiment under Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan, to Sea Girt last summer, he will oppose any repetition of the "hike" on the ground that the benefits derived do not justify such a severe physical test of the soldiers.

General Collins will recommend that instead of such marches afoot there should be biennially, for the period of ten days, the entire brigade in camp, so that there should be opportunity for field work and practice marches. This would enable the brigade commander to have his entire brigade out in the field for a day or two at a time and give every one the training necessary to hardened troops in the field. He believes that this practice, which would include the care of men both in the preparation of rations and in medical attendance, as well as every other duty of the soldier, would be of immense benefit to the National Guard, without over-taxing the men with long distance marches under bad weather conditions.

RAILROAD ASSESSMENT FOR 1909 IS $281,214,158.

Trenton, Nov. 6.—The State Board of Assessors has filed with the State comptroller a schedule of the valuations of railroad and canal property for 1909. The total assessment is $281,214,158, an increase of $8,934,168 over last year. The total tax levied is $5,068,345, an increase over 1908 of $426,813. The local taxing districts will receive $1,337,340 and the State $3,751,004. Under the present law there will be applicable for general States uses $1,037,335 of the latter amount, and the remaining $2,713,669 will be distributed for public school purposes among the various school districts.

The aggregate assessed valuation of the larger railroad systems operating in the State is as follows: Pennsylvania, $86,349,835; Central, $56,465,327; Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, $48,866,714; Lehigh Valley, $23,958,942; Erie, $23,585,746; Philadelphia and Reading, $11,408,240; New York, Susquehanna and Western, $7,655,664.

It is expected that Wickliffe B. Sayre, elected Democratic member of the Elizabeth Board of Education, will be chosen president of that body upon its organization, January 1. He left the board three years ago, after fourteen years' service. There are seven Democrats and five Republicans on the board. Mr. Sayre is sergeant-at-arms in the Court of Chancery, Newark, a position he had held for twenty-five years.

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

A step was heard on the stair. It approached the door.

"Here she is," said the diver, his eyes alight with joy.

The door opened, to admit Margaret Lawrence, her neat nurse's uniform partly hidden under a dark coat.

She was not so tall as Jenny. The two women formed, indeed, a striking contrast. Margaret was dark and healthy looking, carried herself well and had the tranquil assurance of movement and speech of her profession. Jenny, her golden hair piled in a disorderly mass on top of her head, her cheap black dress unfastened at the throat, had the discouraged, indifferent ways of the woman whom poverty has already conquered.

Margaret gave Philip a dazzling smile, nodded cheerily to Jenny and said:

"Good morning."

Philip took her hand, pressed it and said:

"How beautiful you look this morning!"

"You foolish boy—have you been thinking of me?"

Philip, who had bent forward as if to kiss Margaret, shrank back, turned around to Jenny and said:

"I beg your pardon—I forgot. Margaret, I want you to know my old friend, Jenny Moran—Miss Lawrence."

Jenny nodded.

"Happy to make your acquaintance," she said, but her tone was hostile.

She could not bear to see these two together.

"Sorry that I cannot stay," she added, "but I must be at the factory at 8."

Margaret looked at her, a little astonished at the curt tone in which the girl spoke, but she answered readily:

"I will write down the instructions for the treatment of the child."

"All right," said Jenny, almost insolently. "Goodby."

She stared for a moment into her unconscious rival's eyes, then left the room, slamming the door behind her.

"She's a little crude sometimes," explained Philip apologetically, "but she has a good heart."

Their eyes met; Jenny was forgotten.

Philip drew Margaret, unresisting, into his arms, against his mighty chest.

She looked up into his eyes and offered him her tenderly smiling mouth. He kissed her fondly, reverently, thankfully.

The woman was the first to return to the present and the work at hand. She softly, regretfully, freed herself from his clasp.

"This is most unprofessional. I am here to look after a sick child."

She glanced about the room.

"Where is the patient?" she asked.

"In there. Do not go in yet, Margaret."

She temporized, half unwillingly.

She sighed a little to herself at the untidy tenement house room and contented herself with saying:

"This is one of John J. Haggleton's tenements, is it not?"

"Yes. He is Moran's landlord. You should hear him talk about him—the robber!"

"And this is 'lung block,' where there is so much consumption?"

"It is."

"And that little child is coughing already? No wonder—in such an atmosphere!"

She seated herself in Jenny's chair by the table, Philip taking the one he had occupied when the poor girl had made her confession to him.

"Just think!" he began. "We meet in a boarding house where I belong and you do not. Naturally I fall in love with you because you are a splendid, beautiful girl—yes, you are—and all of a sudden—bang!—you have prom-ing house?"

[illegible]

"Because you are a lady. You never lived in a boarding house before, did you?"

"No."

"You were never brought up in the expectation of having to earn your own living?"

"No. My father was ruined in business, and I had to choose between marriage and earning my own living."

"I knew it," said Philip with quiet conviction. "I—I never loved a woman before, and this—your love means everything to me. I am only a workingman, but I am going to rise. It's in me. I know it, and if you will trust me"—

"I do trust you Philip, dear."

"I feel that I can do anything if I have you to work for—anything! I have had a wonderful feeling of power lately since—I have come to love you—Margaret. I will gain the big prizes for you—the money prizes of this world."

"I do not want money, Philip. That is why I took up nursing, because my family would have insisted on my marrying a stupid idler who happened to be rich. Listen, dear. I love you because you are working for something better than money—because you have high ideals and because you give time and thought to helping the poor."

His face glowed.

"We will help the poor in a big way, you and I, before we get through," he promised her.

"That's what makes me love you, dear," she repeated.

A whistle sounded in the street. Philip stood alert.

"That's Gentle's signal," he announced—"you know, dear, my friend at the boarding house?"

"He has a fine face. I like him."

"He has been like a father to me. I owe everything to him. My real father"—

He broke off abruptly, his face clouding over.

Gentle entered, took off his cap and bowed to Margaret. He was a man some fifty-five years old, of middle height, stockily built, and tanned by exposure. He was simply dressed in a blue pea jacket, dark trousers and heavy boots.

He was a diver, like Philip, who had learned under his guidance the trade of which he was now an acknowledged master.

The girl gave him her hand.

"I have just seen the captain," said the old diver, turning again to Philip. "He says you can have the day off. I told the captain this was a special day for you."

Gentle looked at Margaret with an apologetic smile.

"Does Mr. Gentle know?" she whispered to Philip.

"Oh, yes; I know, Miss Lawrence. Philip has no secrets from me—and such a secret. My children! You know," he added in explanation to the girl, "he is like a son to me."

"Then I will be like a daughter," she rejoined promptly and sweetly.

"My daughter Margaret!" Gentle exclaimed. Then he added reverentially: "It was the name of Philip's mother. She would be very happy at the choice her son has made."

"Gentle," Philip broke in, "I wish you would tell Margaret about the night when you first saw my mother."

They sat down.

"It was twenty-two years ago," began Gentle haltingly, "a wild night and bitter cold. Mrs. Binney (I have boarded with her for more than twenty-five years)—Mrs. Binney and I were playing checkers in the basement sitting room when all of a sudden we heard the bell. 'Sakes alive, who's that?' said Mrs. Binney. And when I opened the door, there stood a woman in the storm, holding a little boy by his hand, and she was white as death. 'God have mercy,' said I, 'what are you doing out in a night like this?' 'We are in great trouble,' said she. 'Come in,' said I, 'in the name of God!' And in they came, and I saw that the little boy was so cold that the tears were frozen on his face. That little boy was Philip. He was then barely four years old."

"And to this day I have never heard what sent my mother out into the storm," Philip added.

"She never told you?" Margaret looked thoughtful.

"She died with her secret unspoken unless"—the young man turned to his friend and looked at him inquiringly—"unless— Gentle, I have sometimes thought that my mother told you her secret."

"She told me a little, Philip. There were things which she did not wish you to know."

Philip looked grave and asked peremptorily:

"Is this thing you are keeping back something that this girl who is going to be my wife ought to know?"

"It is not."

Philip gave a sigh of relief. Turning to Margaret, he explained:

"It is something about my father—some trouble between him and my mother, isn't it, Gentle?"

"Don't ask me about your father, my boy!"

Here the little girl Emmy entered the room from Jenny's sleeping closet, crossed it without paying any attention to the three grownups, grasped a chair and began to drag it behind her.

"You little tot!" exclaimed Margaret. "What do you want that chair for?"

"I's going to be Benny's yacht."

"Oh, my patient—I forgot him!" exclaimed Margaret remorsefully.

She got up, grasped Emmy's dirty little hand and darted through the door.

Philip inevitably gravitated toward the door through which Margaret had disappeared. As he closed it behind him Gentle heard him say, "Let me help you put things to rights here."

A few moments passed with Gentle looking expectantly out of the window.

He heard a honk and at the same moment saw a powerful motorcar turn the corner of Market street—a rare apparition there, attracting no end of attention and far from friendly comment. A heavy, slow stop on the stairs, a woman's shrill voice giving a direction, then he said distinctly:

"This way, Mr. Haggleton."

CHAPTER III.

"JOHN J."

GENTLE looked curiously at the man who entered the room, glanced sharply around it, and then fixed a pair of cold, commanding, penetrating eyes upon him.

So this was Haggleton—the "John J." of daily parlance, the master of oil fields and coal fields, of iron mines and railroads and steamship lines, of banks and trust companies; the man whose power was felt in Europe and in Asia as in America; the chosen subject of the bitterest attacks of social reformers and revolutionaries; the man who could afford to fight the government of the most powerful country in the world on terms of equality.

"John J."

Gentle saw before him a burly man of sixty, gray haired, with a bristling gray mustache waxed at the ends, a man dressed with unobtrusive taste.

But it was the face that commanded his attention. The steely eyes had held him from the first. He now noted the stern brow, with the fold between the eyebrows; the iron jaw, the lines at the corners of the grim mouth, the straight, short nose, which suggested Kitchener.

But the old diver, accustomed to picking strong, healthy men for the dangerous work of which he had charge, saw something else which the cartoonists failed to suggest in their drawings. He saw as plainly as John J.'s famous physician that the millionaire was not a well man. The pallor of his face, the color of his eyeballs, the wrinkled circles beneath them, the momentary scantness of breath, all this told its tale to Gentle.

Haggleton's eyes flashed a little as he growled:

"Of all filthy places!"

"It's one of your tenements, Mr. Haggleton," said Gentle pointedly. "I wanted you to see it."

"You did? That's not the point." Then, briskly, "You said you had papers to show me."

"So I have, so I have!"

Gentle pointed to a chair.

"I have very little time," continued the master of millions aggressively. "My auto is waiting, and my yacht, too, with guests aboard. I told you that I sail within an hour."

"On a long cruise. I read it in the papers. That's why I called on you yesterday."

Haggleton's eyes were everywhere. They kept Gentle under constant surveillance. His secretary was at the head of the stairs without, his mechanician in the hallway below. He had given no orders, but he knew this. Utterly fearless, he yet did not intend to be caught in a trap.

"I came because what you told me you knew is important, if true. Where are your proofs?"

Gentle drew a bundle of papers from the inner pocket of his pea jacket. Haggleton took the first letter, opened it and glanced at it. He shot a curious glance at the respectable looking workingman seated opposite him and opened a second one.

This he read carefully, the pallor of his face increasing as he read. But his hand did not tremble. Blackmail? Oh, well, he would see about that!

He said at last:

"My wife! It's her handwriting. Then you knew her?"

"I knew her for years."

Haggleton bent forward, the bundle of papers crushed between his clinched hands. A rapid, nervous twitch of the left side of the face was the only outward expression of his feelings, but to those who knew him it would have signified much. Gentle sat perfectly silent, waiting for him to speak again.

A burly man of sixty.

"Margaret!" murmured Haggleton musingly, tenderly. "Margaret! After twenty-two years!"

He mastered himself with an effort, and sat up straight in his chair, the commander of men again. There was a battle before him, a battle over a secret, and for a secret—the solution of the mystery of his private life.

His first question was asked quietly, almost indifferently:

"How was my wife living when you knew her?"

"In the boarding house where I was. She had a little money, but it did not last long. Then she tried to work, but—it was not easy, and—I—was earning good wages, and—I helped her."

Haggleton's mind seized upon this point and registered it in its usual orderly manner. The attempt to establish a pecuniary claim had come earlier in the interview than he had expected.

"You say you helped her?"

"Yes."

"Did she ask you for assistance?"

"No."

"Then why did you help her?"

"Because I loved her." And lower still he added, "I wanted her to marry me."

"Good God!" Haggleton exclaimed.

"That's how she came to tell me her story," continued Gentle.

"What did she tell you?"

"She said," returned Gentle distinctly, "that you were cruel."

"To her?"

"In your dealings consumed with greed for money. That is why she left you."

Haggleton ruminated upon this.

"And that is why she left me."

He thrust the thought away from him.

"Was she—was she living alone?" he asked.

"No; she had with her a child—your son."

The millionaire leaned back in his chair. Yes, this man was no impostor. Thus far he had told a straight story. His desire to know the truth which he had sought for twenty years, and his accurate judgment of the man before him counseled him that it was safe to proceed with less caution now.

"Why did she steal my son and hide him from me?"

"To save him from your influence. He was her son too. She wished him to be an honest man."

"Who says that I am not an honest man?"

"Your wife said so."

Haggleton became impatient.

"I want to know about my son," he commanded imperiously. Then, with a break in his voice, "Is he—is he alive?"

"Living and well!"

"My son!" he added in an eager whisper. "I want to see him now!"

He mastered the softened mood and became his usual strong self again.

"Where is he?"

"You will see him presently."

Haggleton's first suspicion suggested itself again.

"Oh," he said, "you want to make terms! You want money?"

"If I wanted money, Mr. Haggleton, I should have asked for it long ago. I have known this for twelve years. I sent you word of her death."

"Ah, it was you! You covered your tracks well. It is you who have kept my son from me for twelve years!"

"It was his mother's wish—her command!"

"Her command? Then why have you brought me here? What the devil do you want?"

"Let me finish. Your wife saw want and suffering face to face, and it was her dream that some day your son should make atonement for his father's wrongdoing."

"Atonement?"

Both men had risen now, facing each other with growing excitement.

"Yes, atonement with your money, by the right use of it. Some day, when he was strong enough, Philip was to meet you, to know you as his father. That day has come."

Haggleton said snappishly, jeeringly:

"I see. He is to show me my evil ways, and I am to be converted. Rubbish! You have made a prig of him!"

"I have made a man of him—such a man as his mother wanted him to be."

"What does he do? What can he earn?"

"He is a skilled workman with the Atlantic Wrecking company—a master diver. He earns from $8 to $15 a day. He stands six feet in his stockings, he measures forty-eight inches around the chest, and he has an arm like an iron bar."

"You don't say!" Haggleton was smiling, his eyes gleaming with pride. Gentle continued:

"And he has a will of his own, and ideas!"

"Ideas? What sort of ideas?" There was a sudden suspicion in the question.

"The ideas his mother gave him—ideas of justice and kindness. She was a noble woman. She did not believe that one man should make slaves of thousands and take their earnings. Neither does Philip."

"Philip! She kept his name."

"She kept his Christian name with the name she assumed. She called him Philip Ames."

"You pumped socialism into him," fumed the millionaire. He added scornfully, "I'll soon change that."

"What I have taught him is little," said the diver quietly, and added, with confidence, "but what life and misery have taught him he can never forget. I tell you he is a man!"

"He is my son—the son of John J. Haggleton—my only son—with great things to do in this world!"

"Exactly! The destiny his mother chose for him!"

"I mean he will have great interests to protect, a great fortune to handle," protested Haggleton, adding contemptuously, "He won't care for your petty theories when he knows who he is?"

At this moment the door of Jenny's room opened, and Philip entered briskly. He gave a careless glance at Haggleton, murmured, "Excuse me a moment," and began to search for something, rummaging in boxes, opening drawers, and grumbling to himself, his back to the two men.

FIRE RAGING IN STATE RESERVE.

Newton, Nov. 6.—After two days' hard fighting local fire wardens have succeeded in stopping the progress of the forest fires which have been sweeping the New Jersey State Reservation of 5,400 acres in the Blue Mountains, northwest of Branchville Borough.

About 400 acres were fire-swept before the progress of the flames was stopped, and thousands of dollars' worth of young timber was destroyed.

It is not known how the fire started. It is believed that a fire started by deer hunters on Tuesday night, while camping in the mountains awaiting the opening of the shooting season Wednesday morning, was allowed to spread beyond control.

Had the fire not been gotten under control early yesterday the high wind which started shortly after sunrise would have swept the flames over the entire reservation and the loss would have reached into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

BUILDS $40,000 BARN.

Kessler's Structure Most Expensive in North Jersey.

Park Ridge, Nov. 6.—A local contractor has just completed the most expensive barn ever built in this section. It is owned by Julius Kessler.

The barn is located on his country place in River Vale, three miles east of here, and cost $40,000. It is built entirely of concrete.

HOBOKEN FACES WATER FAMINE.

Park Ridge, Nov. 6.—The lack of the usual amount of rain during the past two years is being severely felt in this section. Wells that have not failed in more than twenty years are dry. Woodcliff Lake, the reservoir from which the Hoboken and Hackensack water supply is taken, is lower than at any time since it was built, five years ago.

The reservoir is divided by a highway. The upper section is more than half dry. The water in the lake has dropped eight feet below its normal level.

The municipal electric light plant of Park Ridge borough, which was built to be run by water power of Pascack Creek, is now operated by an auxiliary gasolene engine and power from Mayor Mittag's factory, as the stream is too low to supply the necessary power.

ASSEMBLYMAN CAUSES DOCTOR'S ARREST FOR LIBEL.

Charging him with issuing a libelous circular, Assemblyman James Baker yesterday caused the arrest at Jersey City of Dr. A. Conrad Pfanenenschmidt, who was one of the supporters of Assemblyman Frederick Otto at the last election. The circular, which bore the signature of Dr. Pfannenschmidt, accused Baker of voting for measures against the interests of the people.

Assemblyman Otto has acknowledged that he was responsible for the circular. Assemblyman Baker said he would go before the Hudson county grand jury next Tuesday and ask for the indictment of both Otto and Dr. Pfannenschmidt.

17 YEARS UNDER GROUND.

Brood 22 of the So-Called Locusts Growing Under Our Feet.

One of the insect marvels is the life story of the cicada, commonly and erroneously called the seventeen-year locust. The famous brood twenty-two appeared in the summer of 1902. It extended over a territory from Long Island west to Wisconsin and south to Georgia. No harm is done by these insects, except that the females lay their eggs in bunches in the soft twigs once in seventeen years. The next visitation of these insects is due in 1919.

It is interesting to note that brood twenty-two has a generation of youngsters developing right under our feet, says Country Life in America. They are seven years old this year and have ten years yet to grow before they come to light as winged adult insects.

The life story of a generation begins when the females flock to the treetops and lay their egg masses in the twigs. In a few weeks the eggs hatch and the fat, antlike larvae wriggle out and fall to the ground. Immediately they burrow below the surface and establish themselves each alone in a little chamber near the root of some plant.

In the years of inactive life that follow the insects feed upon humus—possibly also on sap from rootlets. The front legs are developed into tools like cutting jaws for burrowing and getting food.

The insect moults its skin five times during its life underground. These changes occur during the second, fourth, eleventh and fifteenth years. When the seventh year is reached ambition of a new sort is born. The creature, now a pupa, crawls out of this special exit into the open for the final moult.

DR. HALLERON DIES TALKING TO FRIEND

"Well, good-bye and God bless you," said the Rev. Dr. Daniel Halleron, pastor of the Eighth Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, yesterday, as he parted from his life-long friend, Frank Clark, of 72 Colden street, Newark. A second later Dr. Halleron turned an agonized look toward his friend, slowly sank to the ground and died.

Dr. Halleron was 68 years old and was one of the best known clergymen in the Newark Conference, where he has been engaged in religious work for the last thirty years. He was in the best of health and engaged in making a call on members of his congregation when he was fatally stricken.

The two men had been talking in the yard of the stable owned by Mr. Clark. When he realized what had happened Mr. Clark summoned two physicians, who found all signs of life extinct. County Physician William H. McKenzie gave it as his opinion that Dr. Halleron had died of apoplexy.

During his ministerial career Dr. Halleron has served in the following churches: From 1878 to 1879, the Methodist church in Quakertown 1880 to 1882, the Second church, of Rahway; 1883 to 1885, Trinity church, of Newark; 1886 to 1888, Franklin Street, of Newark; 1889 to 1892, St. Paul's church, in Jersey City; 1898, Methodist church in Port Jervis; 1889 to 1900, Halsey Street Church, Newark; 1901, Grace church, Paterson; 1902 to 1907, Elizabeth district. He had been pastor of the Eighth Avenue church, Newark for the last two years.

Dr. Halleron was born in Ireland. He came to this country and entered the ministry while a young man He served a short pastorate in Maine, after which he took a course in the Drew Theological Seminary. Then he began his labors in the Newark Conference, where he remained until the time of his death.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, one of whom lives in Newark, and by two daughters, both of whom reside in Newark. The preparations for the funeral, which are in charge of the Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlburt, superintendent of the Newark District, will be completed today, after a conference with the survivors. There will be no services in the Eighth Avenue church tomorrow, with the exception of the Sunday school exercises.

BOYS ROB OVER 50 SLOT GAS METERS.

Three pupils of No. 20 Public School in Danforth avenue, Jersey City, yesterday were held for the Juvenile Court on charges of breaking, entering and larceny. They are Samuel Bloom, 15 years old; Edward Witt, 12 years old; and Charles Heckendon, 12 years old. The arrests took place in the school, which the boys were attending, and were made by Detective-Sergeants Collins and Furey.

The police declare the boys are at the head of a gang that has robbed upwards of fifty quarter-in-the-slot meters in the Greenville section and in Bayonne. They also assert that young Bloom had at least $25 in his pockets at the time of his arrest for spending money. They admit that most of their information came from a 6-year old boy. Witt is said to have confessed.

The police say that quarter-meters in the vicinity have of late been robbed of over $200.

FLAY SNEAK THIEF WITH BROOMSTICK.

Miss Rose Brooks, and her sister, Mrs. Frank H. Stanford, of 1171 East Grand street, Elizabeth, fought a sneak thief with a broom yesterday after he had made an attempt to rob their home while they went to get him some food. Dodging a shower of blows he fled from the house.

Another robbery was committed some time after midnight Thursday, when the home of Captain John G. T. Shoe, 709 Jefferson avenue, was entered and considerable jewelry stolen. Like the other thefts committed recently, entrance was gained by prying open a window. The police are endeavoring to locate the perpetrators of this latest theft and also the others who committed depredations since Sunday last.

PIANO MERGER LITIGATION.

Seeks to Compel Company to Surrender Stock.

Trenton, Nov. 6.—The American Piano Company has filed a bill in Chancery to compel Ernest J. Knabe, Jr., and William Knabe, formerly owners of all the capital stock of the Knabe Company, to surrender capital stock in the American Company amounting to $131,379.

The American Piano Company was formed by a merger of the Knabe Company, Chickering & Sons and the Foster-Armstrong Company, of New York. Stock in the new company was to be issued on the basis of the assets of the constituent companies, to be determined by appraisal.

The bill charges that as a result of fraudulent representations made on behalf of the Knabe Company their net assets were invoiced at $1,787,269, instead of their true value of $1,655,529.

Chalmers-Detroit Stock Car "30" Wins Massapequa Cup in the Vanderbilt Cup Race.

This car driven by Matson, covered the 126 miles of the race in 129 minutes, an average speed of 59.7 miles per hour. This establishes a new world's record for light cars.

The previous record was 55.5 miles per hour, made by another Chalmers "30" driven by Bert Dingley.

Saturday's great performance is further evidence and support of the claim that the Chalmers Detroit "30" is the best car in the world at the price—$1,500. The "30" took the lead in the first lap and was never headed. It lapped every other competitor.

In two seasons the "30" has been entered in seven road contests of National and International repute, it has scored two thirds, one second and five firsts.

There is no other car at any price with such a record for consistency.

THE CHALMERS-DETROIT "40"

In the race for the Vanderbilt cup had a lead of nearly a full lap at the end of the twentieth lap, with only two laps to go to finish. For fourteen laps out of twenty this car was leader by a safe margin—the car doing the circuit with the regularity of a clock. After four hours of better than a mile a minute, racing against many of the fastest and highest priced foreign, and American cars, the medium priced "40" was well in the lead.

William Knipper, who handled the car so brilliantly, had never been in it until he took it to the starting line Saturday. He was assigned to drive it at the last minute, after Dingley's turn over on Thursday put him out of the race.

Knipper and his mechanic were both strange on the car and this caused them the race.

They failed to replenish oil at the proper time, and as a result a crank shaft bearing became overheated from friction and put them out of the race, just when victory seemed certain.

But to lead a big field of the best cars made for 240 miles of the 278 mile race proves the high quality of the car which did it.

The Chalmers Detroit "40" has again demonstrated that it is supreme in its class.

It sells for $2,750, and it is the utmost value at the price.

DR. STILLMAN RETIRES

Former Plainfielder, Stevens Professor, Placed on Carnegie Foundation.

AFTER 31 YEARS OF SERVICE.

Brother of William M. Stillman—Stevens Institute Paper Praises Him For His Work.

Dr. Thomas Bliss Stillman, M. Sc., Ph. D., professor of engineering chemistry, and a brother of William M. Stillman, of this city, after thirty-one years of teaching at Stevens Institute has retired under the provisions of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Stevens Institute of Technology being on the accepted list of the Foundation.

Dr. Stillman is well-known in this city, where he lived for many years He is the son of the late Dr. Stillman, for so many years Plainfield's leading physician and who was so much interested in public school matters here.

Dr. Stillman, after studying a year at Alfred University, entered the scientific department of Rutgers College in 1870, having obtained a State scholarship by competitive examinations at Elizabeth. While in college he held exceptionally high rank, receiving membership in Phi Beta Kappa and securing two of the three prizes offered at the commencement.

During the summer following his graduation, he was engaged upon work in connection with the zinc properties at Franklin Furnace. He pursued a special course in analytical chemistry at Rutgers and assisted in instructing in the analytical chemistry department in the fall of 1873.

In the spring of 1874 Dr. Stillman received his appointment in the chemistry department at Stevens Institute, under Prof. Leeds. He continued teaching in this department until the latter part of 1876, when he accepted the offer of a relative to send him to Europe for a two years course in research chemistry under Fresenius, the father of analytical chemistry, in his private laboratory at Wiesbaden, Germany.

After returning from Germany, Dr. Stillman took up his work at the Institute as instructor in qualitative and quantitative analysis and in 1882 moved his private laboratory from New York city to the Institute.

President Morton offered Dr. Stillman the professorship of analytical chemistry in 1886, and he accepted, receiving also the chemical work of the department of tests. Since that time Dr. Stillman has worked hard and faithfully as the head of the department of engineering chemistry.

Industrial and research chemistry has been the doctor's specialty and he desires to confine himself solely to those objects. Dr. Francis J. Pond, A. M., Ph. D., formerly associate professor in the department of engineering chemistry, has been appointed professor to fill Dr. Stillman's place and he will be assisted by J. J. Morgan, B. S., and L. H. Backer, M. E., as instructors.

The Stute, the college paper published at Stevens Institute, in its last issue has the following to say editorially about Dr. Stillman:

"In retirement of Dr. Stillman, Stevens Institute loses a man whose good qualities will cause him to be remembered as long as there exists a department of chemistry. The advancement of that department during his time of service stands as a great monument to his memory.

"All who came in contact with him, professionally or socially, were immediately impressed with his strong personality, his loyalty to his work, and his whole hearted cordiality. In short, he is one who, as a man, a teacher and a friend, will forever hold the honor and respect of the students of Stevens Institute."

Musicale for Worthy Charity.

A private musicale will be given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lipsett, 32 Myrtle avenue, Thursday night, at 8:30 o'clock for the benefit of a fresh air work near Ithaca, N. Y., in which Mrs. Lipsett is interested. Clifford A. Braider, of this city, will have charge of the program. Miss M. Florence Nicholls will be the pianist, Miss Edith Rubel, of New York, violinist and Miss Anne Browne, of New York, the soprano. Miss Jessie Utter will be the accompanist.

R. Wilson Derby's Fine Position.

Robert Wilson Derby, formerly of this city, but now of Cleveland, O., has resigned his position as baritone in the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, to accept a similar position at the Methodist Cathedral, the largest Methodist church east of the Ohio. Mr. Derby has a particularly fine voice, which has attracted considerable attention.

MURPHY'S STATEMENT

State Chairman Proposes New Party Creed Taken as Declaration of His Candidacy.

HE HITS AT GOVERNOR FORT.

Former Governor Opposes Direct Primary Law and Election of United States Senators by the People.

Former Governor Franklin Murphy of New Jersey, member of the Republican National Committee and chairman of the Republican State Committee, who cherishes the hope that the Legislature chosen a year hence will select him as the successor to John Kean in the United States Senate, in a letter printed yesterday gives what he believes to be principles for a sound political creed. The first article of his creed is the immediate repeal of the present direct primary nominations law. The second opposes the selection of United States Senators by the people.

"I believe that every officeholder that owes his position to the fact that he is a party man should contribute annually to the support of his party. And this applies to every officeholder, including the judges of our highest court, governors, mayors and the great number of salaried employes, who owe their living to their party identification."

Mr. Murphy looks upon the results of the recent election in New Jersey as a vindication for the organization, for he says:

"What a day it has been for the blatherskite! From the highest official to the lowest, their blatant noise has resounded, accomplishing, let us hope, some good, but at a great cost.

"Because some corporations are dishonest all corporations have been put on the defensive, and to utter a word in favor of corporations has been sufficient to consign one to outer darkness. Matters have gone so far that membership in the Ananias Club is regarded as an honorable distinction, and its diploma is hung in our best room and pointed to with pride.

"Those of us who have been camping out for a while and have folded our tents and returned to our homes should not be afraid now to state our belief squarely and strongly."

Mr. Murphy's opinion of the direct primary law is as follows:

"The direct primary law is the most alluring and insidious device ever invented to take the power of nomination for office—the most important foundation stone of our political structure—out of the hands of a representative convention of the people and place it in the hands of a few men, who will use that great power as they see fit.

"And it is done under the cry that 'the people must rule.' That is why so many are reluctant to attack it. They do not want to be misunderstood, and they stand with all their strength for the principle that really and truly the people must rule. Yet they see that under the primary law it is not the people but the few who rule.

"The direct primary is a delusion and a snare. It is worse. There is nothing that was hoped for from the direct primary that without it cannot be accomplished by personal service."

In his letter the State chairman also refers in sarcastic terms to Governor Fort.

FINE ORGAN RECITAL AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Another large congregation gathered in Grace Episcopal church yesterday afternoon, many of those present being attracted by the program offered by Organist S. Frederick Smith for his sixth recital. Mr. Smith provided a delightful half hour of music, rendering gems from some of the best composers in a manner calculated to enthral music lovers. Rheinberger's sonata in G minor was the first selection played and as said before, it was rendered in an effective thoroughly artistic manner peculiar to Mr. Smith.

The entire list of four selections was played so as to leave nothing to be desired but more of the same beauty.

Thanksgiving Eve Service.

Under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist, a special musical service will be held at the First Presbyterian church, Thanksgiving Eve, November 24, when the quartet choir, assisted by a chorus of twelve trained voices will sing "The Vision of St. John," by Coombs. There will be solo work for Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto, and Otto Knauer, tenor. The public will be invited.

Township Meeting.

The North Plainfield township committee will hold a meeting at Watchung on Thursday afternoon, at which time the borough sewerage proposition will be discussed.

HEBREWS TO ORGANIZE

Several Hundred Attend a Big Meeting to Discuss the Plan.

PLAINFIELD IS REPRESENTED.

Much Enthusiasm Shown at Newark Convention—A Committee Is Appointed.

Several hundred delegates from all parts of New Jersey were present in Newark last night at the first annual convention of the newly formed Young Men's Hebrew Association of New Jersey, which is composed of the associations of that character in many cities of the State formed during the last few years. Plainfield was well represented. The gathering was held in Eisner's Hall, at No. 94 Market street, and was presided over by Rabbi Solomon Foster, of the Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, of Newark, who made an address telling of the great good which it was hoped to accomplish by the taking of further steps for the permanent formation of a State wide organization.

Delegates were present from Trenton, Camden, Woodbine, New Brunswick, Plainfield, Perth Amboy, Elizabeth, Hoboken, Jersey City, Passaic, Paterson, Newark and several smaller places.

Both Rabbi Foster and Mr. Koneigeiser explained the object of the State association.

Other addresses were made by Charles Elin, a Newark lawyer; Benjamin A. Kaufman, Felix Younker, of New York, secretary of the Young Men's Hebrew Association of Manhattan; Samuel Rothberg, of Plainfield; Louis Levy and Dr. George Polaner, of Newark.

There was enthusiasm throughout the meeting and plans were completed for the carrying out of the whole scheme of State organization which had been tentatively adopted for presentation to the convention. After the business meeting there was a luncheon. A general committee is in charge of completing the affiliation of all the associations in the State.

TRANSFERS ARE MADE IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

An expected shakeup and a wholesale transfer of men to different houses interests the members of the local fire department up to a high degree. Rumors of the coming shakeup have been current on the street since last Wednesday when Chief Doane announced the appointment of Captain George Mills to assume command of Hose Company No. 3 in the West End to succeed Captain William Townley, who was shifted to the new East End house. It was also expected that the new transfer order would also effect Captains George Feiring and James Daley, but so far this shift was not made.

There were two more transfers recorded on Saturday. Yens Claasson, of headquarters, was switched to Hose Company No. 3 and Wesley Dunn, who was formerly stationed in the West End, was dispatched to the East End house.

Speaking on the transfer question the chief stated: "None of the captains' locations are permanent; they are liable to be switched to different houses at any time." From this it is taken to mean that a much different policy will be in vogue in the department in the future. It is also taken to mean that the men are also in line to be changed from house to house at the behest of the chief and fire committee.

Hallowe'en at Marconnier Chapel.

A pleasant Hallowe'en sociable was held Tuesday evening last at the residence of Rev. J. Tucker Stansdale, for the benefit of Marconnier chapel. There was a good attendance, though the rain kept some away. Appropriate games, refreshments and the decorations made all happy. The sum of $6.40 was realized through an offering.

Catch Illegal Voter.

Harold Hill, colored, who has been charged with illegal registration in New Brunswick, was apprehended in Westfield this morning and taken to New Brunswick. It is said that a number of arrests will soon be made on similar charges.

POST OFFICE CHANGES

Stamps to Be Sold Until 9 o'Clock at Night After December 1.

OTHER IMPROVEMENTS THERE.

Superintendent of Carriers to Be Appointed—Good Work of Postmaster Bird.

Several changes will be inaugurated at the local postoffice beginning December 1, which are sure to be appreciated by the many patrons of the office. The changes which will make it possible for people to purchase postage stamps as late as 9 o'clock in the evening, are the result of a trip of Postmaster Elias H. Bird to Washington. He explained the fact that the business of the office is increasing rapidly and was able to convince the postal authorities of the necessity of the change.

Another change secured by Mr. Bird is the appointment of a superintendent of letter-carriers. There are now twenty-four carriers attached to the local office and the business is of such large proportions that it requires a superintendent to give his time to that department. Mr. Bird has not yet announced who will receive the appointment. Mr. Bird has been congratulated upon the success of his efforts, which means that the local mail service will be more up-to-date than ever before.

BURGLAR NABBED AT SOUTH PLAINFIELD

Thomas Fields, aged fifty, was arrested Saturday night in the Lehigh Valley Railroad yards by Constable William Reilley. He is wanted in a number of places for burglary. A grip containing a complete set of burglar's tools was in his possession. Fields i well known in almost every city in the State.

He has been connected with several robberies in South Plainfield. He was taken to Phillipsburg, where he is wanted by Detective Chief Haynes. Chief Kiely has asked that Fields be turned over to him after the local authorities are through with him.

P. S. C. TO CONSIDER SO. PLAINFIELD AGAIN

It has been hinted that at the next meeting of the trolley department of the P. S. C. the question of extension of the line from this city to South Plainfield will come up. Just how much possibility there is for such extension cannot be predicted, but it is said that some of the officials are in favor of it. The project as stated unofficially is for a private right of way instead of by the highway. Efforts in the past to extend the line outside the city limits have met with opposition from Midlesex freeholders whose consent was needed for a franchise to use the highways.

It was stated some time ago that the trolley company did not want to extend the lines in that vicinity without a perpetual franchise, and since then very little has been heard about the subject until now.

BLOCK HAS HIS TROUBLE; PROMISES TO BE GOOD

Blaming domestic troubles for his fall from grace, Joseph Block was given a chance by Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning to go away and behave himself. Mrs. Block appeared against her husband to press the complaint. She said through an interpreter that Joseph had been in the habit for the past five weeks of coming home and beating her while under the influence of liquor.

Block alleges that his wife showed a preference for the society of a boarder and that was the reason he took to drink. Thursday night he took exception to the boarder's presence in his home and put him out. Trouble followed with the result noted above.

Judge Runyon advised the couple to let their son be the preserver of peace in the family and took occasion to say that the Hebrew colony in this city have the finest record for sobriety of any of the foreign element. Joseph promised to be good, now that the boarder had been eliminated.

ENGAGEMEMT ANNOUNCED

Miss Louise Saunders Gives Brilliant Luncheon for Miss Marion Hall.

NOVEL FEATURES ENJOYED.

"Cat Out of the Bag" Tells of the Bethrothal of Miss Hall and Jac. Van Deventer—The Guests.

Miss Louise Saunders, daughter of William L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue, gave a brilliant and novel luncheon at her home, today, at which time the engagement of Miss Marion Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, of Belvidere avenue, to Jac. VanDeventer, of Woodland avenue, was announced.

The spacious dining-room, where the luncheon was served, was lavishly decorated for the happy event, the table being handsomely garnished in an appropriate manner. A novel method was adopted to make the announcement of the engagement. After the young people were seated at the table, a maid entered the room with a large burlap bag and placed it in the centre of the table. When the string was cut out jumped a large cat and about its neck was fastened two heart-shaped cards bearing the names of Miss Hall and Mr. VanDeventer.

Another pleasing feature was a large leghorn hat, used as a centerpiece, which was filled with pink roses. When this was lifted numerous tissue paper slippers were found filled with confetti and Miss Hall was showered with this by her friends. The favors were miniature kittens about their feet being fastened little bags, emblematical of the large burlap bag. During the festivities a wedding march was played.

The guests were Mrs. J Hartley Mellick, Miss Anna Garrigues, Miss Helen Timpson, Miss Mabel Hooley, Miss Ray Hooley, Miss Verna McCutcheon, Miss Frances VanDeventer, Miss Elizabeth Flanders, Miss Florence Stewart, Miss Josephine LaTourette.

UNIQUE BARN SOCIAL; MISS RAYBERT ENTERTAINS

One of the jolliest and most unique socials held in many a day was that which took place at the residence of Charles M. Raybert, of East Second street, Saturday night, when Miss Raybert entertained friends to the number of eighteen from Brooklyn, New York and this city.

A picnic in the woods could have been no more natural than the picnic held in the dining room of Miss Raybert's home. The floor was strewn with straw and the walls decorated with oak boughs, variegated leaves and branches artistically arranged. The novel preparations were for a "barn" social, a feature of which was the trip to the "barn." The refreshments were prepared in baskets and bundles of all descriptions which the guests carried on the trip. Upstairs, downstairs and around the house until they finally landed in the room prepared for the picnic.

Merriment reigned supreme after the goal was reached and the games played evoked the heartiest laughter, everyone joining in with zest and appreciation of the opportunity for pure fun.

MRS. McAFEE DID NOT SURVIVE SECOND PARALYTIC STROKE.

Mrs. Mary McAfee, widow of the late Sylvester McAfee, died this morning at her home, 113 Oxford place, from the results of a second stroke of paralysis, in her sixtieth year. Mrs. McAfee suffered a stroke about a year ago, but had recovered her usual health and was preparing to attend a social Saturday evening when she was stricken.

Mrs. McAfee came here from Annandale about five years ago to make her home with her son Robert, an employee of Otto Arens, on Rahway road. She leaves two sons and two daughters, one of the latter living in North Carolina. One daughter, Miss Grace, is a member of Trinity Reformed church and several grandchildren attend that Sunday school.

The arrangements have not yet been made for the funeral, but announcement of them will be made tomorrow.

WILL BUILD A CONVENT

Father Bogan Says Work on Structure Will Begin in the Spring.

TO RAISE FUNDS HERE NOW.

The Site Not Yet Selected but Will Be Announced at an Early Date.

A new convent, modern in construction, and replete with increased accommodations for the local Sisters of Charity and other church purposes, will be erected by St. Mary's parish next spring. Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, made the announcement today and he stated that the plans of the structure are now under consideration.

The site of the proposed building is yet unsettled but it will probably be erected at the corner of Liberty and West Fifth streets, which is the corner lot on which St. Mary's Assembly, formerly the Washington public school, is situated. But according to Father Bogan, it may occupy the site of the present convent, corner of West Sixth and Liberty streets, which is directly opposite the entrance to St. Mary's church. Should the latter site be selected the present building which is used for convent purposes will be removed to some other property in this city owned by the church.

Plans are now underway for the raising of funds to pay for the new building. The initial move has been made by the various societies of the congregation and which are concentrating their efforts toward the holding of a mammoth fair and bazaar in St. Mary's Assembly rooms during the latter part of this month. The dates for the event will be fixed at a joint meeting of the societies this week.

A friendly rivalry exists between the societies that will assume the leading part in the affair but all the details will be arranged in a few days, according to Father Bogan. Of the six societies interested in the movement the T. A. B. society will unite with the Young Ladies' Sodality, the Knights of Columbus and Children of Mary will combine interests, while the Ancient Order of Hibernians and Ladies' Auxiliary will unite interests.

As announced at the services yesterday, one of the features of the bazaar will be a competition for a $100 commercial course in Drake's Business College. This will be in the nature of a voting contest and the winner will have an option to take either a day or night course. It will be open to all former pupils who left school without taking up a commercial course. The scholarship is given in aid of the new convent fund by J. H. Fogarty, principal of the institution.

NUPTIAL KNOT TIED IN BRIDAL COUPLE'S HOME

At their newly furnished home on Westervelt avenue on Saturday evening Miss Nancy Ottalie Lockert was united in marriage to James Alexander Simpson. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, in the presence of a small assemblage of friends of the couple, in the midst of tastefully arranged decorations of southern smilax and chrysanthemums.

The bride was prettily gowned in white crepe metior with pearl trimmings. She also wore a veil and carried a shower boquet of lillies of the valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Olga Lockert, as maid of honor. She was attired in a creation of cream crepe de chine with gold lace trimmings. Paul Paulsen, a cousin, gave the bride away in marriage. Joseph Dunham was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Simpson left town on Saturday night for an extensive honeymoon through the southern States. The former is well known in New York railroad circles, being employed in the transfer department of the Union Pacific Railroad, at that corporation's offices in New York.

Lecture on Palestine.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 16, give the first of a series of illustrated lectures on his trip abroad. The subject of the first lecture will be "Palestine," and the pictures will be those taken by Dr. Herring while abroad. Admission will be free, but a silver offering will be received.

DRAKE ESTATE A MYTH

American Heirs Can Hope for Nothing from the Alleged Fortune.

MRS. DUNN IS IN ENGLAND.

No Unsettled Chancery Cases Amounting to More Than $75,000 Left.

Contrary to the expectations of many who are interested in the mission of Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, who recently went to England to attempt to recover for the American heirs of Sir Francis Drake some of the supposedly great accumulations of wealth the plan can hardly have the desired results.

Recently articles have apepared in various newspapers ridiculing the belief that any such estate exists and it remained for the New York Sun to make a final and decisive statement of the chances of anyone ever recovering anything from this source. The following taken from the London correspondence of the Sun of yesterday explains fully why those who have expected something from the mythical estate will be disappointed:

"A despatch from New York announces that Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, of Plainfield, N. J., is now on her way to England for the purpose of commencing a suit on behalf of her son, who was a descendant of the famous Sir Francis Drake is, it is alleged, entitled to the Drake estate, now in Chancery and "estimated to amount to the sum of $125,000,000."

It is interesting to note that several years ago, when the "Drake millions" were first discovered, not less than 146 descendants of Sir Francis were promptly forthcoming among American citizens. One estimate at that time put the value of the estate at $185,000,000. Inquiries concerning these 'millions" have been arriving in England ever since, and so much trouble has been given the American Embassy in London that a printed circular is now sent to all seeking information. This document is very much to the point, as these extracts will show:

There are no large unclaimed estates in Great Britain.

The vast sums constantly spoken of as "dormant in Chancery" or "awaiting claimants in the Bank of England" are purely imaginary and are only too often the invention of swindlers who obtain money for the prosecution of fictitious claims to these fictitious fortunes. The funds in Chancery open to claim are few, average less than $1,800 each (two only approaching $75,000), and most of them would inevitably consume their own value in the expenses of recovery.

The fullest proofs of genealogy are demanded, are always exceedingly difficult and expensive to maintain, and where as is usually the case the family records have been confused by removal to the United States, are often impossible to establish.

Also the statutes of limitations almost invariably bar recovery. The passage of twenty years—often of a far less period—is as a rule sufficient to destroy the clearest right.

I have therefore earnestly to advise you against incurring any expense unless your claim is based on the clearest documentary evidence; but especially I must warn you against remitting money to advertising agencies for the recovery of estates. These are often grossly fraudulent and many of their promoters—such as those who invented the "Towneley" claim—have at last, after years of successful fraud, been convicted and punished. In general you will do well to send no money for such purposes to any one who is neither personally known nor reliably recommended to you."

An Old-Time Publication.

Among the old-time publications held by Plainfielders as souvenirs, is a copy of the "New Jersey Advocate and Middlesex and Essex Advertiser," owned by Jeremiah Van Winkle, of East Seventh street. The issue is on June 28, 1831, and although published at Rahway, contains news of much interest to Plainfielders. It is printed in the old-fashioned style, so curious to present-day readers. James A. Bennett was the proprietor of the paper.

HEAR SPECIAL MUSIC AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Special music marked the services at the Congregational church last night. An augmented choir led by C. L. Lewis rendered anthems and special hymns and Mrs. Bender sang a solo. Rev. Charles F. Goodrich preached about the only two shipwrecks mentioned in the Scriptures, that of ships of Tarshish and the disaster which overtook Paul at Crete.

Mr. Goodrich said that if newspapers had been published in the years a century after the death of Solomon there would have gone forth scare heads announcing the terrible loss of life which accompanied the wrecks of the fleet of Ahaziah and Jehosephat. The fleet of specially built ships sailed from the eastern coast of Arabia to bring to the king the gold of Ophir, but they were never heard from. This wreck was presumably due to the alliance between the Good man and the evil one which Ahaziah had formed. The sinking of Paul's ship could not be attributed to such a cause as while Paul was a disciple of Christ the others aboard being prisoners and men who had not yet made up their purpose to openly defy God.

Paul was there by the Providential ordering of his life and through his influence saved the lives of all on board, so that no life was lost although the ship sank. No one in business can afford to disregard the religious side of things. While "honesty is the best policy" is a splendid maxim, "religion is the best policy" is a better one. All the motives of association for ages past prove that without a fixed purpose and that purpose allied with the doing of right nothing succeeds. "Let your ships return to port with the unsearchable riches of Christ rather than the sordid cargoes of gold."

BUTTERICK PATTERNS and THE DELINEATOR FOR NOVEMBER

NEW JERSEY IS NOW THIRD ON THE LIST

In preparation for the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association, which will be held at the end of November, Secretary Frederick E. Elliott has been compiling a complete list of State associations and clubs affiliated with the national body. The growth in State associations during the past year has been particularly marked, there now being associations in thirty-one States, this including, however, the Hawaiian Association.

In respect to membership the New York State Association leads with 4,518 members, the Pennsylvania Motor Federation coming next with 3,113 and the Associated Automobile Clubs of New Jersey third, with 2,156.

Six other organizations have a membership of over 1,000—Minnesota, Ohio, southern California, Illinois, Massachusetts and Connecticut. Among the large number of clubs affiliated with the national body, the latest statistics show that forty have a membership of over one hundred. The Automobile Club of Buffalo heads the list with 1,850 members, followed by the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club of this city, with an even 1,800, while the Automobile Club of Philadelphia is just short of 1,000.

The automobile clubs of Chicago, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Long Island and Rochester each have over five hundred.

Cold Slaw.

This is a creole dish and very delicious. Cut very fine a quarter of a head of firm white cabbage. Put it into a covered dish, pour over it one-half cupful of vinegar, one-half tablespoonful of salt and toss it about lightly with a fork. Into a skillet pour one-half scant cupful of milk, a teaspoonful of butter and one-quarter cupful of sugar. Beat one egg light. Let the milk come to a boil, add sugar and butter, allow it to cook until a custard is formed, then pour over the sliced cabbage. Allow it to become very cold before using. As vinegars differ, do not use so much if very strong.

Both Pleased.

Swift—Jones and his wife seem to be very fond of musical comedy.

Smith—Yes, indeed; his wife goes to see what the women in the audience have on, and Jones goes to see what the girls on the stage have off. —Troy Budget.

A MISSIONER FROM JAPAN

Sister Mary Louise, Superioress of the Catholic Sisters, Here.

JAPANESE QUICK TO RESPOND.

Visit to St. Mary's Church Yesterday Gave Satisfactory Results for the Work.

In the person of Sister Mary Louise, Superioress of the Catholic Sisters, of Yokohama, Japan, St. Mary's congregation had a distinguished visitor yesterday. Sister Mary Louise, during her visit to this city, was the guest of the local Sisters of Charity. Her mission here was to raise funds for the support of an orphan's home in Yokohama, in which she is deeply interested. Her visit to St. Mary's yesterday netted $100 to the fund. The liberality displayed by the local parishioners was considered remarkable in view of the fact that the total collections of the day at the different masses, about $480, was the largest monthly collection in some time.

A Daily Press reporter, who interviewed Sster Mary Liouse before her departure from town this morning, discovered her to be a highly educated and very fluent talker. She is about forty-five years old and is a master of the Japanese, American, Italian and French tongues. She stated that she has been in the United State collecting for the Yokohama orphans fund for six months and that she is going to return to her native land about April 1.

In her talk with the Press' representative she related several interesting incidents concerning religious work of all denominations in the Flowery Kingdom. In her own words she referred to that country as a "fair field with no favors."

"The conditions are favorable to all denominations," continued Sister Mary Louise, "it is just a matter of making the truth known, a good example speaks far more forcibly than words."

Sister Mary Louise also commended the policy of the Empereror in glowing terms for his recent edict which gives permission to the natives to embrace whatever faith appeals to them. She also illustrated the progress being made by the empire under religious freedom. The Catholic church, she declared, had been under a severe handicap until recently, but now that faith is making fast headway.

In describing the work connected with the Orphan's Home, in which she is interested, Sister Mary Louise, said her labors brought her into contact with 10,000 or more needy cases. "I am greatly pleased with the reception and kind treatment received at the hands of American Catholics and I can truthfully say, I do not believe there is a nation exists that responds so quickly to missionary pleas," she added as about to take the train.

Fake Health Officer.

Chief of Police Kiely warns the public that there is a fake health inspector doing the rounds in this city with the evident intention of robbing the unwary. He is described as being about five feet six inches tall with brown hair and eyes, smooth shaven and extremely polite. Housekeepers would do well to ask for the credentials of any one representing himself as an officer of the city Health Department and to refuse admittance to him without it.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

There is probably no more tickled man over the results of the borough election than Mayor Harry Swackhammer. The defeat of Starker and Wyckoff was largely due to his activity in working for the Republican nominees. Although a Democrat, Swackhammer is just now one of the central figures in local G. O. P. circles. Swackhammer attributes his action in knifing the local Democratic candidates was due to the fact that they "bucked" him on nearly every question during his administration. "I swore that I would get them on election day," said Swackhammer, "and I got them good and hard."

Boroughites are greatly interested in the proposed sewerage system to be adopted by North Plainfield. Sentiment here is strong for sewerage and there is no chance for a hitch when it comes to the borough uniting with North Plainfield in the matter. Mayor Swackhammer is well posted on the new proposition as he labored hand in hand with the North Plainfield Commission during the past year.

SALOON THE BIG ENEMY

Declares Rev John Y. Broek and Drunkenness the Modern Sin.

LINCOLN'S PROTEST QUOTED.

Appeals to Christian Men to Take the Burden from the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Declaring that the saloon is an enemy to good citizenship Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, preached a powerful temperance sermon to his congregation last night. Dr. Broek, in the course of his remarks, declared he was opposed to the rum traffice in every form, whether 'a hotel, cafe, tavern, a coffee house, or a plain beer saloon." During the sermon he also quoted the views of Abraham Lincoln and Von Moltke, the great German statesman. Dr. Broek based his sermon on the text "For the drunkard and glutton shall come to poverty." In part he said:

"Drunkenness is no modern sin and the dramshop is no modern institution. It is as old as Noah and possibly older. Undoubtedly it inflamed the human race before the flood. The lamentable thing is that each succeeding generation has been poisoned and bitten by this vice and has suffered from this dreadful woe.

"The vice is running riot today. Solomon's faithful but horrid likeness of the drunkard is as true today as it was thirty centuries ago, when it was written. The woe of drunkenness is eating the marrow and bone out of society under assumed names. I am opposed to every form of the dramshop. Under whatever name it may be called, a hotel, cafe, tavern, a coffee house, dramshop or a plain beer saloon, it is the same old vice doing business at the same old stand, crushing life blood out of humanity, destroying the home and ruining souls.

"The verdict of the world's greatest statesmen is opposed to the dramshop. Abraham Lincoln said: 'Reasonable men of the world have long since agreed that drunkenness is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of all evils among humanity.' Von Moltke, the German statesman, says: "Beer is a far more dangerous enemy to Germany than the armies of France.'

"The dramshop is a menace to society and to public morals. Good citizenship is not a product of the dramshop. The dramshop produces drunkards, make imbeciles and fills up the poorhouses. The dramshop is one of the greatest causes of crime. It is estimated that 750,000 men and women pass through our jails and prisons each year. The cost of crime in the United States is $600,000,000 a year. It is further estimated that the largest percentage of crime is caused by the dramshop.

"The idea is ridiculous that the dramshop is essential and necessary for the success and prosperity of a city. Think of the growing tendency for temperance throughout the United States. It is for the best interests of a city to have sober, decent, self-respecting citizens.

"In brief, temperance is raising the standard of men all through this land, in minor offices and every walk in life.

"The breaking up of the curse should not be left to a brave band of Women's Christian Temperance Union workers. It is a man's job and Christian citizens should take hold of it."

Risky Providence.

"Have you got your house insured, mum?" asked an insurance agent at Guildford last Saturday, insinuatingly.

"No," replied the lady, indifferently.

"Then what if it caught fire?"

"Oh, well, we just trust in Providence."

"But that's an awful risk," said the agent. "You had better trust to the Boggs Fire Insurance Company, which I represent, mum."—Tit-Bits.

Queer Company for Lawyers.

A correspondent calls attention to the following title of act No. 239 of the Michigan public acts of 1907: "An act to provide for the lawful taking of suckers, mullet, dogfish and lawyers from the waters of the Sturgeon River in Houghton County, Michigan."—Law Notes.

Too Modern.

"It seems to me that young Scroggles is a little too progressive."

"How so?"

"He is having his family crest remodeled and insists upon replacing the crossbow on the coat of arms with a rapid-fire gun."—Cleveland Leader.

Gave 'Em Battle.

"I presume," sneered the cottager to the returning fisherman, "that all the big fish got away?"

"Yes," answered the angler, "but some of them had to resort to every technicality to do it."—Detroit Free Press.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

A new pipe organ, purchased at a cost of $3,100, has been installed in the Methodist church at Swedesboro.

There is scarcely an acre of ground in Gloucester county that is not placarded with caution notices to gunners.

Rev. W. E. Allen has resigned the rectorship of the St. John's Episcopal church, Salem, to take effect December 15.

Bayonne's Board of Education has established a class made up of incorrigible children. Miss Heinze is the teacher of the class.

Mayor Ellis, of Camden, Friday appointed Frank West, colored subpoliceman, as a regular to succeed former Policeman Kaplan, discharged from the force.

Representative Eugene F. Kinkead, accompanied by Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, has gone to Lakewood, where they will spend several days in rest.

Despite Professor Godfrey's statement that he has not resigned, nor does he intend to resign from the principalship of the Walnut Street School, Salem, the Board of Education elected Miss Emma Burt, of Woodstown, to the position.

Marcus N. Carroll, one of the detectives connected with the Camden county prosecutor's office, is in the Medico-Chi Hospital, Philadelphia, after undergoing a delicate operation. Word from the hospital last night was to the effect that his condition, while serious, was favorable to an early and complete recovery.

Rev. Dr. A. G. A. Buxton, who has received a unanimous call to become rector of St. John's Episcopal church, Camden, and whose resignation was accepted by the vestry of St. Mark's church, Lewistown, Pa., has received another call from the vestry of St. Matthews' church at Sunbury. The new offer carries a larger salary, and Dr. Buxton has not yet decided what his ultimate destination will be, but St. John's vestry say Sunbury cannot have the Lewistown rector at any price.

Several relatives of Rev. T. C. Parker, pastor of the Methodist church of Lakehurst, died recently in quick succession, each of them leaving him a substantial bequest. In consequence he has resigned his position as pastor and moved to Swainton, Cape May county, where the property is located, and will devote his time to the settlement of the estates. Rev. Dr. John Mandley, district superintendent, is arranging to have the pulpit filled until the next meeting of the New Jersey Conference in March.

John W. Barr, a justice of the peace of Camden, was taken into custody Friday by Constable Hires at his office, opposite the courthouse, on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Schmitz, on a charge of embezzlemen. The complaint against Barr was made by David V. Meyer, of Finderne, Somerset county, who alleges that between August 15, 1909, and the present time, when Barr was acting as his agent, the latter collected $515.69 in rents of property he owned in Camden. Barr was taken before Justice Schmitz, who held him in his own recognizance. Barr says it is all a mistake. It is said that a number of Barr's checks, now in the possession of the complainant, will figure in the case.

SWAYZE TAKES THRUST AT SHORE CONDITIONS.

Lawyers and visitors in the Supreme Court room were amused one day last week by a brief colloquy between Justice Swayze and J. Wharton Stokes, of Atlantic City. Mr. Stokes was renewing before the full court an application for a certiorari under the landlord and tenant act which had been refused by one of the justices, with leave, however, to apply to the court in bank. During his argument Mr. Stokes remarked:

"Atlantic County has been ignoring the act of 1895."

"The court is fully aware," remarked Justice Swayze, "that Atlantic county has been ignoring several of the acts on our statute books."

"Yes," replied Mr. Stokes "but we understand perfectly well that in Atlantic county we are outside the State of New Jersey."

"Atlantic county may have occasion to change that understanding before long," was the parting thrust of Justice Swayze before Mr. Stokes resumed his argument.

At Proctor's.

The vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre this week will be one of the most expensive yet engaged for the playhouse, including all headliners. Today, tomorrow and Wednesday there will be The Michaelangelos, European rag-picking and novelty artists; Harvey & Harvey, grotesque artists; Francis Elliott, character impersonator and Milton's dog circus. The bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday includes Frank Mayne & Co., in "The Tipster," Maud Muller, songs and dances; Moran & Moran, comedy pair and the famous Alabama Comedy Four. There will be a change of films d'art every day.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet tomorrow night.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O U. A. M., will hold a musical in its lodge rooms tonight.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., will hold a regular communication tomorrow night.

CURRENT VERSE

Italy.

Our Italy's the darling of the earth—the treasury, piled
With reveries of gentle ladies, flung
Aside, like raveled silk, from life's worn stuff—
With coins of scholars' fancy, which being rung
On workday counter, still sound silver-proof—
In short, with all the dreams of dreamers young,
Before their heads have time for slipping off
Hope's pillow to the ground. How oft, indeed,
We all have sent our souls out from the north,
On bare white feet which would not print nor bleed,
To climb the Alpine passes and look forth
Where the low murmuring Lombard rivers lead
Their bee-like way to gardens almost worth
The sight which thou and I see afterward,
From Tuscan Bellosguardo, wide awake,
When standing on the actual, blessed sward
Where Galileo stood at nights to take
The vision of the stars, we find it hard,
Gazing upon the earth and heaven, to make
A choice of beauty.

—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

Bondage.

I am the slave of day,
And underneath the sun
I play my part with stubborn heart
Until the day is done!
I do the pretty task,
I earn the grudging pay,
And none can guess I wear a mask
Indentured to the day.

But when the sun has set
And labor ends again,
How easy to forget
The walks and ways of men!
Deep in my heart I seek
The lilac and the rue,
The white rose and the rose of red;
The memory of you.

What though the miles divide,
What though the years are past?
Across the night I dream aright,
And am myself at last;
A bondsman of the day,
While day is on its throne,
The secret stars all know I am
Your slave, and yours alone!

—Reginald Kauffman, in Smart Set.

The Helpless Ones.

I have to weep o'er stories that they print in magazines,
So full am I of sympathy with all those woeful scenes
In which the authors mix the folks—poor souls!—that they put through Such dreadful complications full of misery and rue.

In real life you can help a man, no matter what his pain.
'Tis possible to lift him up onto his feet again.
If he does wrong, there's hope ahead, if some one points the way,
Or if he's plunged in darkness you can lead him to the day.

But in the magazines, alas! there's no escape at all.
Once printed, bound and published and spread upon a stall,
Their doom is sealed forevermore, and of their bitter cup
They drink, and drink, and drink and drink, till some one burns them up.

—Wilberforce Jenkins, in Smart Set.

The Man Who Sulks.

The world has little pity and few favors to be spent
For the man who is disgruntled and sits sulking in his tent;
If your ventures have not prospered do not idly curse your luck,
But get out and make the people wonder at your manly pluck.

Men will never come to coax you, if you hang back in despair,
To have courage and keep trying to put off the frown you wear;
They will not arrange new chances to replace the ones you lose
While you hunt a gloomy corner clinging to a case of blues.

They are foolish self-cheated who keep harping on their woes
After they have been defeated, thinking all men are their foes.
And the praise the world is willing to bestow is never meant
For the man who is disgruntled and sits sulking in his tent.

—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago Record-Herald.

The Thunderstorm.

A moment the wild swallows like a flight
Of withered gust-caught leaves, serenely high,
Toss in the windrack up the muttering sky.
The leaves hang still. Above the weird twilight,
The hurrying centers of the storm unite
And, spreading with huge trunk and rolling fringe,
Each wheeled upon its own tremendous hinge,
Tower darkening on. And now from heaven's height,
With the long roar of elm trees swept and swayed,
And pelted waters, on the vanished plain
Plunges the blast. Behind the wild white flash
That splits abroad the pealing thunder-crash,
Over bleared fields and gardens disarrayed
Column on column comes the drenching rain.

—Archibald Lampman.

If I Were King.

If I were king—ah, love, if I were king—
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your scepter and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair;
Beneath your feet what treasures would I fling—
The stars should be your pearls upon a string,
The world a ruby for your finger ring.
And you should have the sun and moon to wear
If I were king.

Le these wild dreams and wilder words take wing,
Deep in the woods I hear a shepherd sing
A simple ballad to a sylvan air,
Of love that ever finds your face more fair;
I could not give you any goodlier thing
If I were king.

—Justin Huntley McCarthy.

Each Other.

Let us help each other;
This day must we try;
Wait not for another,
Time is flitting by.

Let us cheer each other—
Give the ready smile;
Thinking of another
Shortens every mile.

Let us love each other,
'Tis a rule of gold;
When we love another,
Love doth us enfold.

—Helen Elizabeth Coolidge.

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"I wish," he said, half aloud, "that the scoundrel who owns this place had to live in it. I'd like to make him sleep in that room. Where the devil is that hammer?"

The moment Philip found the hammer and departed Haggleton said excitedly:

"You need not tell me! I need no proof. I know—the eyes, the chin, especially the eyes! For twenty years I haven't slept without seeing those eyes!"

He started impetuously for the door, but Gentle intercepted him.

"Stop!" he commanded. "Not yet. If you speak to him now, you will regret it."

"He is my son, he is mine! He sails with me on my yacht within an hour!"

Gentle stood before the door with outstretched arms.

"Wait," he continued. "You don't know all yet. Here, read this."

He produced an envelope from his pocket and handed it to Haggleton, who snatched it from him and opened it impatiently. It contained two papers. Haggleton glanced at the first one hastily, then suddenly sat down.

"My God!" he whispered.

"Now you understand how things are between us," said Gentle.

"My wife made this document on her deathbed?"

"With a clear mind. The doctor attested it."

"A copy of the order I gave that night." Haggleton's tone was strangely subdued as he looked at the second paper.

"The original is in a safe place," said Gentle. "Don't offer me money for it," he added warningly. "It is not for sale."

"What are you going to do with it?"

"You would not want Philip to read it?"

"No! A thousand times no!"

"Then I will use it to increase your patience. You must be content, Mr. Haggleton, to see your son and be with him on my terms!"

CHAPTER IV.

FATHER AND SON.

"YOU say that I must be content to see my son and be with him only on your terms?" he asked.

"You understand that you must not make yourself known to him until the moment comes?"

"Yes, but how can I see him or be with him if he doesn't know who I am?"

"That is easy enough. Show an interest in the problems of poverty, tenement house reform, and Philip will spend his days and nights with you."

"No, no," protested Haggleton; "I want him to take an interest in my affairs, which will be his. He cannot begin too soon. And I am going away on my yacht. Time is pressing."

"Philip will be here when you return from your cruise."

"In three months? 'Ah, you have never had a son! He is going with me on that cruise."

"It cannot be," answered Gentle. "I must put my promise to his mother before your feelings. I have trained him for a battle with you—a great battle that's coming now. And I will see that you start fair."

"Battle—what battle?"

"A battle," continued Gentle impressively, "between your money and his high purpose. You will try to tempt him—I know it. You will try to make him hard and worldly. That's why I have waited until he was a man, his character formed. Even now he's only twenty-six, and—he is your son."

Philip entered at this moment.

"I have been trying to make that room fit for the little kid to sleep in," he said. "It is a pigsty. Oh, that scoundrel Haggleton! Miss Lawrence says the children should both be sent to the hospital."

"I want you to know a friend of mine, Philip," Gentle said—Mr.—Mr. Jackson. Mr. Jackson is interested in tenement house problems."

The young man held out his brawny hand to "Mr. Jackson," who shook it heartily.

"Pleased to meet you, sir. You have struck the right place for tenement problems. This is 'lung block.' The man who owns it is just starting on a cruise in his million dollar yacht."

"You mean Mr. Haggleton?" asked that worthy expectantly.

"Yes—John J. The doctors say he needs a change. I wonder what his tenants need?"

Haggleton looked around the room once more, taking in every evidence of neglect and dirt. Then his glance fell upon the mantelpiece, with two elaborate but grimy timepieces.

"You wonder what John J.'s tenants need?" he said drily. "I should say that the ones who live here need more soap and not so many marble clocks."

"Philip," said Margaret, half opening the door and looking through it, "where is the croup kettle?"

He handed it to her, closing the door. Haggleton asked with interest:

"Whom have you got in there?"

"She's a trained nurse and—she's the girl [illegible]

"[illegible]

[illegible]

debly made him like the man a little better.

Philip then asked:

"Are you a friend of Mr. Haggleton, Mr. Jackson?" he asked. "Do you know him?"

"Why—er—yes."

"You know him," repeated Philip, half incredulously—"personally, I mean?"

"Mr. Jackson is associated with Mr. Haggleton in business," explained Gentle; "he has been helping him in some schemes for tenement improvement."

"I'd like to tell Mr. Haggleton a few things about tenement improvement!" the young man burst out.

"What, for instance?" asked the pseudo Mr. Jackson.

"I'd tell him," he vociferated, "that he owns blocks and blocks on the lower east side that are in such a lovely state that he might as well be running a factory for turning out"—

Gentle made a restraining movement, checking Philip, who ended impatiently:

"Oh, what's the use?"

"No; go on," urged Haggleton. "I am here to learn. You said 'factory for turning out'—what?"

"Thieves and drunkards and wrecks of women!" thundered Philip. He clinched his fists and shook them above his head:

"My God! Why cannot you rich men be decent?"

"I suppose reformers care nothing about money!" said Haggleton sarcastically.

"Even reformers have to live."

"Listen to me, young man." Haggleton was in grim earnest now. "There isn't a reformer in this country who wouldn't stop reforming d——d quick if he found it was hurting his pocketbook."

Philip flared up again.

"That's false!" he shouted. "Besides, it has nothing to do with the question. The question is, Where do you get your money, you rich men? Do you earn it? Do you dig it out of the ground? No. You get it by the toil of men, by the tears of women and children. You get it by grinding human beings down to starvation wages and taking the rest, millions and millions that belong to the workers, but go into your fat pocketbooks because you're strong and cruel enough to take

"I impose secrecy upon both of you."

it, and that's how you get such places as 'lung block' and such monsters as John J. Haggleton."

Haggleton's secretary, a man of middle age, stuck in his head.

"Pardon me," he said. "Mr. Haggleton, you've only a few minutes if you want to sail with this tide."

Haggleton hardly raised his voice, his face barely changed, as he bit out the words:

"When I want you I'll send for you, Grimes."

The man retired hastily. Gentle looked uneasy. But Philip's next words recalled him to the new turn affairs had suddenly taken.

"Are you," said the young man in blank amazement—"are you John J. Haggleton?"

"That's my name."

"But"—he turned in bewilderment to Gentle—"did you think that his name was Jackson?"

"No, Philip. But there was a reason for introducing Mr. Haggleton in that way."

"A very simple reason," Haggleton explained smoothly. "I want to study tenement conditions without newspaper notoriety. Now go on with what you were saying. And, mind you, continue to be frank. I am here to learn."

"I will be frank, Mr. Haggleton. My answer to you is, What's the use? You can't settle the problems of poverty while your yacht waits."

"I can give certain orders, can't I? I can authorize certain improvements. Talk quick."

But Philip only shook his head.

"That's the way with you rich people," he commented in deep discouragement. "You think that you can settle anything and everything by signing a check. Well, Mr. Haggleton, that is your great mistake—of all of you. You can't do it. The only real help for the poor comes through love. And you cannot pay some one to love for you. You might as well pay some one to eat for you, or breathe for you, or sleep for you."

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

DEFEATED BOUND BROOK

Plainfield High School Eleven Won a Well Played Game.

THE SCORE WAS 11 TO 5.

Bound Brook Good on the Defensive—P. H. S. Fine on Offensive—The Contest in Detail.

The Plainfield High School football team defeated Bound Brook High School at Bound Brook, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 11 to 5. At the end of the first half Bound Brook was ahead by the score of 5 to 0, which showed that Bound Brook was playing a far beter game than was expected. In consequence P. H. S. had to do some hitting in the second half.

Overton and Smith played the star game for P. H. S., while Ricketts and Phillips did splendid work. One of the ways in which Bound Brook made its gains was by a side formation in which they circled around the man with the ball and practically rolled them over the line.

The game started with P. H. S. kicking to Bound Brook. The man went down on the 25 yard line and they soon lost the ball on a fumble. P. H. S. then tried line hitting and ended by losing the ball on a forward pass.

Several times P. H. S. had the ball very near the goal, but was held for downs. Bound Brook was held for downs in the last part of the first half and kicked. Plainfield got the ball on the 25 yard line, but lost it on a fumble. Bound Brook then kept up line hitting until they made a touchdown. No goal was kicked.

Bound Brook next kicked off and P. H. S. rushed the ball to the 15-yard line and then tried end runs, but time was called. In the second half, Plainfield kicked off and Bound Brook was held for downs on the 25 yard line. In a very few minutes P. H. S. rushed the ball down the field and Overton made a touchdown through the line. No goal was kicked.

Bound Brook kicked off again and Nash ran the ball to the 30 yard line. P. H. S. lost the ball on a fumble, but soon regained it. They tried a successful pass to Doane, gaining 15 yards. They then made about 20 yards by a trick play and next settled down to line hitting. This was kept up until a touchdown was made. Phillips kicked the goal.

Plainfield next kicked off to Bound Brook. They lost the ball on the thirty yard line. P. H. S. then got busy and rushed the ball to the 10-yard line. Just as they were going to make another touchdown time was called. The lineup:

P. H. S.	Bound Brook.
right end.
Van Zandt	Koechlem
right tackle.
Thompson	Fails
right guard.
Bristol	Schure
centre.
Ramsey	Mason

Carr	Biglow

Doane	Rose
left end.
Nash, Overton	Gillespie
right halfback.
Rifferts	Baxter

Ricketts	Osnato
left halfback.
Overton, Smith	Feston

Time of halves, 20 and 25 minutes; umpire, Phillips; timer, Woodhull; linesman, Parker.

HOLY CROSS ELEVEN MEETS WITH DEFEAT

The Holy Cross football team lost its first game of the season on Saturday, when the Dunellen F. C. won by a score of 6 to 0 on the Cricket Field. The game started with Holy Cross kicking to Dunellen, who brought the ball to centre field by end runs and line plunges. Holy Cross held for downs for several times. Dunellen made the first touchdown by Giddes, quarterback, who played a brilliant game throughout.

Holy Cross gained small distances in line plunges, but could not make end runs on account of the weight of Dunellen's back field. The visitors outweighed the borough boys, who were crippled by the absence of two of their best players. Miller, Tillotson and Vail were the stars for Holy Cross. Giddis and Nonemaker did the best work for Dunellen. Weber and Taylor, who acted as referees, seemed to favor Dunellen, especially when Vail made the touchdown.

Tillotson in the second half was badly injured by a wrenched neck, but the injury is not a serious one. A great deal of betting was witnessed on the field after the game started and this led to numerous arguments. Next Saturday Holy Cross will meet Raritan A. A., on the Cricket Field.

WATCHUNG HUNTERS FOLLOW THE HOUNDS

Members of the Watchung Hunt club to the number of about twenty enjoyed a chase after the hounds, Saturday afternoon. They met at the Westfield railroad station and covered a distance of nearly twenty miles, taking in Baltusrol, Cranford and the surrounding country and bringing up at Kenilworth Inn, from which point the riders returned home.

The going was fine and there were no spills or accidents worth mentioning. The hounds are in especially good condition at present and they had a merry chase from start to finish.

Charles W. Fisk was acting master, and among others who rode were Miss Gertrude Noe, Miss Wildey, Lewis E. Waring, Col. C. E. S. Bellows, Rufus C. Finch, John Dietrick, Ruppert Anderson, C. F. Wildey, Richard S. Waring, Hart Farlee, Frederick Bull and Cris. Cumins

BOWLING.

With the completion of the tourney in sight, the competition in Campbell's individual tourney has become interesting.

Chief Kiely and Campbell are tied for first place, with Nash, Skelly and Blatz following in the order named and with all having a chance to land the championship honors.

Campbell seems to have first average prize sewed up, having a lead of five points over his nearest competitor, Chief Kiely, with Charley Matthews in third place.

Matthews' 259 is the high individual score of the tourney.

PROVIDENCE, OF NEWARK, FAILED TO APPEAR HERE.

The officers of the Plainfield Association Football Club regret the disappointment given to its followers on Saturday when Providence F. C., of Newark, failed to put in an appearance. They will investigate the matter with a view to putting a stop to this sort of thing. It is a serious matter with the local club and a great disappointment to its supporters.

Fully two hundred people were present Saturday expecting to see a game. The club asks the indulgence of its patrons, and will do its best to make amends by booking games with the best teams. No word was received from the Providence F. C. explaining its failure to come here. The same thing occurred a week ago when the Kearney F. C. also failed to come to Plainfield.

Billiard Tourney Standing.

A keen fight is being waged for honors in the 150-ball billiard tourney being conducted by the Plainfield Association football club, in its rooms on South Second street. Seven contestants are now tied for first place with three wins each as follows: Tom Douglass, Fred Cross, William McCoombs, Samuel Sutton, J. Jimmerson, William Spalding and A. Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Lane, of Pluckemin, Somerset county, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Ella Lane, spent Saturday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Vroom, of Stone street.

N.P.H.S.—BATTIN GAME ENDS UP IN WRANGLE

North Plainfield and Battin High School football elevens played to a standstill at Elizabeth on Saturday afternoon, and to top off a fierce battle in which honors were about even, the contest terminated in a wrangle in which Captain Conroy of the borough eleven called the locals off the field. Neither team had scored and the row occurred over a dispute three minutes before the close of the scond half. According to the rules North Plainfield High forfeited the game to the county seat warriors by a 1 to 0 score.

Captain Conroy claims that the borough team was the victim of two raw decisions in the second half. The dispute which ended the game hinged on the last play. Ross, the Battin quarterback, tried for a field goal on North Plainfield's twenty-yard line. Ross made the kick all right, but the officials disagreed as to whether the ball went over the goal in bounds or not. One half of the officials claimed it did, while the other half declared vice versa. After a lot of haggling Captain Conroy refused to continue the game.

Captain Conroy also claimed another rough deal in the early part of the second half, when Harry Smith got possession of the pigskin on a trick play and passed it to Conroy. Two Battin players got in the way of the ball and it fell to the ground. Conroy, however, made a pretty run and again secured the ball and ran it for a touchdown. Referee Snyder, however, declared the play illegal and penalized the boroughites fifteen yards. There was also a big kick on this decision but play continued until the second dispute.

In the first half both teams waged a hard fight but neither was able to gain an advantage. There was a lot of pretty forward pass manouvers by Pierson Bailey and Scott, but the locals were unable to penetrate the Battin line. The lineup:

N. P. H. S.	Battin.
Townley	Boller
Pierson Bailey
right end.
Dunning	Craig
right tackle.
Zeglow	Cammann
right guard.
Stiglitz	Grossman
centre.
Lindsay	Hanson
left guard.
H. Smith, Abrams	Wingat
left tackle.
Percy Bailey	Davidson
left end
Scott	Ross
quarterback.
Stine	Bretim
right halfback.
Conroy	De Rasmas
fullback.
C. Smith	Lloyd
left halfback.

Umpire, Walter Hamilton; referee, Snyder; time keepers, Charles Lee, Wingat.

Harry Baylor's Clever Win.

Hugh Gormley's Harry Baylor won the Claret Cup over the hurdles at the meet of the United Hunt on Saturday at Belmont Terminal, L. I. Baylor had four opponents and carried 185 pounds, but he was rated along nicely until the stretch was reached when he was let down and galloped home a winner by a length with lots to spare.

POPULAR BRAIDING.

There is ample opportunity for braid on the princess dress. Almost every form of this popular gown offers some space for clever and interesting braiding, whether the gown be loosely or closely fitted. The pleats appearing on the lower portion in no way interfere with decoration, because the front panel and the bodice, or cuirass, portion are usually plain, as a whole, and positively in need of ornamentation.

Braid will nudoubtedly be the favored trimming, because it is more easy of accomplishment than embroidery, and also more durable for the plain blue serge, which is exceedingly popular.

The dark-blue serge dresses, in one piece, for the young girl from 14 to 18, can hardly be improved upon. The best types of them are decorated with black soutache or else with the very narrow braids in combination with a flat one-inch braid.

Fur will in no ways displace braids, because the two are most harmonious; many a handsome dark-blue suit in Paris shows the two side by side. The Russian blouse coat suit is trimmed in its usual way with a band of braiding down the left front and with narrow edges of fur showing from beneath it. The collar and sleeves are similarly treated, while the buttons are cloth-covered and braided.

I know of no cloth suit more possible to the amateur than this Russian blouse braided and fur-trimmed. The fur-edged turban worn with it may be either a velvet or cloth-topped affair held together by one black fur fox head.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, of South Second street, are entertaining Miss Annie Owen and Miss Annie Pritchard, of New York.

Mrs. James Clark is visiting her son, Frank L. Clark, in her old home, 404 West Seventh street. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. street are with her.

GLADIATORIAL GREEKS RESIST MODERN GANG

Assaulted without provocation, two Greek bootblacks employed at the stand on the corner of Somerset street and West Front, used a broom to repel boarders Saturday night with the result that there was a pretty scrap in which a gang of hoodlums were scattered and one of the Greeks had his jaw punched so that he could not eat yesterday. While the two young men were cleaning up their place preparatory to closing up Saturday night, the gang tipped a pail of water over them, and when they remonstrated they were set upon by the bunch and punched.

Patrolman Nolan heard the disturbance and hurried over to investigate. The Greeks explained in broken English. In the meantime one of the bootblacks saw one of the tormentors passing on Front street and gave chase. He was assisted in this job by Patrolman Nolan and Roundsman Higgins and Sergeant Overbaugh. Thomas Linus was the man caught, and in court this morning he implicated James Conway, Neal Scott and two others who will have to appear on Saturday morning to explain to Judge William Runyon.

He has given a number of lectures before high schools and is considered a very intelligent lecturer. An offering will be received for the Missionary Fund of the Christian Endeavor society.

Police Court Notes.

James Caulifield, of Jackson avenue, was arrested Saturday night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct by Patrolman Nolan and Payne. Judge Runyon gave Caulfield a little fatherly advice and allowed him to go.

A quartet of youthful train riders were brought to police headquarters at 2 o'clock this morning having been caught leaving a Central Railroad freight at the Grant avenue station. When asked what they were doing on the track at that hour in the morning the spokesman of the party said they had been given a free ride by the conductor of the train and they were told to get off the caboose there because the train went no further. The excuse was good nough to obtain their release.

Second Story Men at Work.

The season for the operations of "second story" men has arrived and reports are coming in from the suburban towns of their successful work among the houses at the time of the evening meal. Chief of Police Kiely believes it would be well for people to guard their houses at this time of the evening more carefully than usual. It may save property.

CAMPANARI'S PROGRAM

Famous Baritone's Selections to Be Sung Here Include Toreador from "Carmen."

SERENADE FROM DON GIOVANNI

Favorite Songs of Italy Will Be Included in Recital to Be Given November 15.

Ever since the announcement was made in these columns that Signor Guiseppe Campanari, the incomparable baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was to make his initial Plainfield appearance at one of Signor Guiseppe Campanari.

Mr. Joseph McIntyre's series of chamber concerts, speculation has been rife as to the selections the great singer would present here on Monday, November 15.

Mr. McIntyre today announces Signor Campanari's repertoire, which is replete with operatic and concert gems. All lovers of good music, and especially those who have followed the successes of New York's two great opera companies, know that Campanari, with his Toreador song, has made a name for himself in Carmen quite as great as that of Calve, the greatest of all living Carmens. This song is Signor Campanari's masterpiece and it is with pleasurable pride that Mr. McIntyre announced it today as one of the great baritone's numbers to be sung here.

Then, too, Campanari will sing Rossini's Tarantella and the serenade from "Don Giovani." Also, included in his program, are a number of old and modern Italian songs, for the most part favorites of Camparani and selected by him, well knowing that his adulence in Plainfield is not only an appreciative but a highly critical one.

This program is remarkable inasmuch as Campanari's talents, both in operatic and concert work, will be given full scope and his audience will not only have an opportunity to judge of the exquisite calibre of his voice, but to pass upon his dramatic abilities as well. He has long been known as the actor-baritone par excellence and Plainfield's most discriminating devotees of music will soon be given a chance to pass on these claims.

Special Musical Service.

The vested choir of the First M. E. church under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist, took part in a special musical service Sunday night. Bertram Tallamy sang as an offertory "Rock of Ages," and the hcoir sang these anthems: "Love Not the World," "The Comforter Came to My Soul," "O for the Wings of a Dove," and in addition Gounod's "Gallia." The service was greatly enjoyed by a large congregation.

Announcement.

I have established at my soda fountain counter a light lunch service, consisting of coffee, tea, cocoa, sandwiches, salads, etc. Ladies will find it a great convenience and their tastes and desires will be particularly catered to. Mr. Gifford W. Beers, late of the Dairy Lunch, is in charge. Rowley's Drug Store, 218 West Front street, next to Proctor's theatre.  11 9 6

KREBS DRAFTS NEW BILL

Borough School Supt. Favors More Effective Legislation for Compulsory Education.

MANY HOLES IN PRESENT LAW.

New Jersey State Council of Educators Will Discuss Proposed New Act at Jersey City on Saturday.

The New Jersey State Council of Education, composed of the leading superintendents and principals in the State, will, at a regular meeting at City Hall, Jersey City, on Saturday morning, November 13, take up for discussion a proposed revision of the compulsory education act. This revision has been drafted by the committee on school law, of which Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs of the borough schools, is chairman. The other members of the committee are J. Brognard Betts, assistant State superintendent; H. Brewster Willis, of Middlesex county; John Enright, of Monmouth county, and Superintendent Charles B. Boyer, of Atlantic City.

The proposed bill offers several important changes. Under the present law complaint can be made only to a justice of the peace, police justice or city or town recorder. It is proposed to include in this list any judge of the Court of Common Pleas or judge of a city or district court, the process to be served by a court officer. It is believed that a case conducted before a judge in open court will be more impressive and effective than if taken before a local official.

The present law provides that negligent parents shall be punishable as disorderly persons. The proposed law provides that they shall be punishable as provided in an act entitled "An act concerning disorderly persons," revision of 1898, and the supplements thereto and the amendments thereof.

Under the proposed law each district is required to appoint a truant officer. At present such appointment is optional.

The proposed measure defines a truant as follows: "Every child required by the provisions of this article to attend school, who shall be repeatedly absent from school, shall be deemed to be a truant, and shall be proceeded against as such."

The ages to which compulsory attendance shall apply, and the provisions for exemption from attendance by the board of education, are unchanged.

NEEDLEWORK GUILD MEETS

Women of Crescent Avenue Church Ready to Distribute Clothing to Needy.

MANY INSTITUTIONS HELPED.

Organization in Healthy Condition—Officers Re-elected for the Coming Year.

The annual meeting of the Needlework Guild of the Crescent Avenue church took place yesterday afternoon and in the absence of Mrs. John B. Dumont, the president, Mrs. Ryder, the vice-president, took the chair. Reports of the past year's work were received and accepted. The society is in a flourishing condition and has a small balance in the treasury.

According to the presiding officer a wrong impression has got abroad that the organization has received more garments than it can dispose of. Mrs. Ryder in speaking of this said that the impression is altogether at variance with the facts. More articles are needed, especially underwear for both children and adults. At least 3,000 garments can be used to advantage among the poor and other institutions and there is no wish on the part of the members to limit anyone so disposed to add to the gifts which will be so much needed during the coming winter.

When The Daily Press reporter visited the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church yesterday afternoon he found six tables heaped high with useful garments, including inner and outer wear for women and children, the distribution of which was begun today.

Among those who benefitted during the past year and from whom letters of appreciation were received were Muhlenberg Hospital, Charity Organization Society, Warren Chapel St. Mary's Convent, Hope chapel and the City Union of the King's Daughters. It is expected that the distributions of clothing, sheets and pillow cases will be even larger this year than last and of course larger contributions are looked for from those who are in sympathy with the work. Many of these things find their way to the half-clad mountain whites of Tennessee.

The election of officers of the local association has concluded rapidly, the former incumbents being retained in offices, Mrs. Dumont president, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. John Edgar Corlies. The vice-presidents elected were Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Miss G. Wilcox and Mrs. F. D. Warren. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $30.33 on hand, of which $10 was voted to be sent to the parent organiaztion.

BONFIRES AROUSE THE DUNELLEN AUTHORITIES

Dunellen police authorities are directing their efforts to capture a gang of youths who have been terrorizing the residents on the outskirts of that borough of late by setting fire to leaves in the streets and fields. The practise has been going on for several weeks but it was not until last Saturday that the authorities became thoroughly aroused over what threatened to be a damaging blaze.

On that day the fire department saved from destruction about fifty cords of wood near the Washington avenue bridge, the property of C. S. Coriell. Boys who were in that vicinity near noon set fire to a quantity of dried leaves and in a short time the flames spread to the pile of wood. An alarm was sounded and the Defender Fire Company responded promptly. After several hundred feet of hose was put in commission the flames were extinguished. Nearly a couple of cords of wood were destroyed.

Night fires have also been of frequent occurence. A borough ordinance provides against bonfires of any descriution after sundown. Mayor Swackhamer declares that if any of the violators of the ordinance are apprehended they will be severely dealth with.

MRS. DUPEE SUCCUMBS TO A BRIEF ILLNESS

Mrs. Josephine Hubbard Dupee, widow of the late George P. Dupee, died this morning at her late home at 29 Washington avenue, after a brief illness. Mr. Dupee was taken ill on Friday, and as no serious results were anticipated, the fatal termination of her illness caused a big surprise among her large circle of friends in the borough and this city.

Mrs. Dupee was a member of Holy Cross church in which parish she had been an indefatigable worker for years. She was born at Clinton, Oneida county, N. Y., in 1846. In 1874 she married her late husband, and after residing in New York for a couple of years, Mr. and Mrs. Dupee removed to the borough. Two years ago Mr. Dupee, who was a prominent New York business man, passed away.

Four sons, Charles, the former noted Yale athlete, and George H. Dupee, survive the dead mother. The funeral service will be conducted at the Holy Cross church at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and the interment will be made at Hillside.

LAWRENCE KERWIN IS ARRESTED FOR ASSAULT

Constable Robert L. Pierce, of New Market, yesterday served subpoenas on Lawrence and John Kerwin to appear before the Middlesex county grand jury to answer to a charge of assault and battery preferred by Edward Burke of this city. Mrs. Elizabeth Bolan, Drs. P. B. Cregar and H. K. Brennan, of this city, were also summoned as witnesses. Kerwin furnished bonds for his appearance.

Several weeks ago, the complaint asserts, Lawrence Kerwin assaulted Burke at the former's place on West Fourth street, which is situated in Piscataway township, just outside of the city limits. Burke had a couple of ribs broken in the melee and was recently released from Muhlenberg hospital. Mrs. Bolan, it is said, witnessed the scrap. Burke was attended by Drs. Cregar and Brennan.

Kerwin until a couple of years ago kept a saloon but owing to frequent rows at his place the Middlesex court has since refused to grant him a liquor license.

VALENTINE M'LOUGHLIN GETS DUBLIN LEGACY

Valentine McLaughlin, a Dunellen barber, is a happy man these days. On Saturday last McLaughlin received information that a relative in his native town of Dublin, Ireland, had died and bequeathed to him about $23,000 in cash. McLaughlin took a half-day off yesterday and visited town to look up the ocean line timetables for Dublin, where he plans going to collect his legacy.

McLaughlin left Dublin when a small boy. He came to the United States and settled in Chicago, and seven years ago he struck Dunellen, where he has since been located, working at his trade of tonsorial artist in the shop of Assessor John H. L. Peters.

McLaughlin did not lose his bearings when informed of his good luck. He did not give up his job as hair and whisker trimmer, nor does he intend to give up his means of livlihood until he is cocksure of getting the $23,000. Should he decide to go to Dublin, he announces that he will simply take a vacation; if he decides not to go he will employ an attorney to investigate the case and look after his interests.

He was loath to talk about his intentions when in town yesterday. "There is one thing I will do if I land the coin," said McLaughlin; "I will surely own a good ball team next season. I'll give Dunellen fans the best article of baseball they ever saw."

"You'll get married, too, of cause?" inquired his inquisitor.

"Not on your tintype," replied McLaughlin. "I've been a bachelor for forty years and I guess I can go forty years more without a wife."

New Apartment House.

Mrs. Matilda E. Squires has filed an application with Building Inspector Doane for a permit to transform her property at 724 Watchung avenue into a three-story brick apartment house. The alterations will entail an expenditure of $8,000. The plans passed the requirements of the State building department in Newark and they are likely to be approved by the local building authorities.

RATS IN THE HAY LOFT

They Nearly Frightened Jackson to Death; was Collapsing When Rescued.

NEIGHBORS WERE SCARED, TOO.

Street Commissioner Barrett Relieves Shouting Negro in North Plainfield Barn.

Regent street and vicinity, in the borough, is generally considered to be a quiet neighborhood, but from 8:20 to 8:50 o'clock last evening there was an exception to the general rule. It was all due to the misfortune of Gus Jackson, a colored driver in the employ of Street Commissioner J. Y. Barrett, getting lost in the hay mow of the latter's barn.

Barrett delegated Jackson to go to the mow and get a bundle of straw on the eastern end of the barn. It was the negro's first trip to the hay depository and he ascended the stairs minus the service of a lantern. It was dark as pitch and Jackson floundered about in the hay in a vain attempt to locate a bundle of straw.

As the hay loft covers a space of about 60x90 feet it was not long before Jackson lost his bearings. He labored without sounding an alarm until a couple of huge rats descended from the rafters and collided with his head. This proved a too chilly proposition for Jackson and he immediately began to exude loud wails for help.

Jackson has a powerful pair of lungs but not for half an hour did he attract the attention of a pedestrian. By that time several of the neighbors had heard the frenzied yelps of Jackson and soon a score had gathered outside the barn. Visions of a cold blooded murder and other weird crimes filled the sidewalk brigade with fear and trembling. Nobody had the courage to approach the barn.

Relief did not come until Street Commissioner Barrett returned to the scene. He surmised what the trouble was and hastened to the barn. His shout to Jackson was answered by the imprisoned negro.

"I am lost boss, hurry up git me quick, 'cause de rats will soon eat me up."

Barrett lighted a lantern and ascended to the hay mow where he discovered the frenzied negro in a state of collapse half buried in the hay.

When Jackson partly recovered his equilibrium over the sight of his employer and the rays of the lantern he made a mad leap to the latter.

"Praise de Lawd, I am delivered at last, boss. I dun thought I was a goner for good. Lead me to the light. I will neber go up dar in dat hay mow agin."

A few moments later when Jackson reached solid earth he made a wild dash and ran directly home. Up to 10 o'clock this morning he had failed to report for duty.

PLAINFIELD CLERICUS HOLDS MEETING HERE

The Plainfield Clericus, comprising the clergy of the Episcopal church of this city, the borough, as well as surrounding nearby towns, was entertained yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. W. H. Neilson, of East Ninth street. The clergy were first invited to lunch on at 1:30, after which Rev. T. A. Conover, of Bernardsville, presented a paper on the topic of "Religious Education." The paper suggested new and approved methods and favored rather the inductive than the deductive method of religious training.

The paper was listened to with unusual interest and was followed by an informal discussion. There were about sixteen members of the Clericus present. Rev. Harris C. Rush, of Somerville, is the president, and Rev. Clarence C. Sylvester, of Somerville, the secertary. The next meeting will be held at the home of Rev. Dr. Otis T. Glazebrook in Elizabeth, on Monday, December 6.

The Cafe Chantante which was held last week at the Park Club under the auspices of the Silver Cross Circle of The King's Daughters, was a great succes financially. The gross receipts were $490 and the net about $375. Several rquests were made to have the affair repeated for the benefit of the Plainfield Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis, but instead the Silver Cross Circle has voted to contribute $100 to this work.

COUNTY VOTE COMPLETE

Board of Elections Announce Vote for Assemblymen, Clerk and Register.

THOMPSON HAS HIGH COUNT.

F. H. Smith's Majority 3,815, and James C. Calvert Polled 4,220 More Votes Than His Opponent.

The Union County Board of Elections today completed the official count of the votes for the Assembly, county clerk and county register in the county. It shows that Lloyd Thompson, Republican candidate for the Assembly, was the high man on the Legislative ticket, polling 11,774 votes. This is gratifying to Mr Thompson as a well directed effort was made on the part of the Jr. O. U. A. M., to bring about his defeat.

Assemblyman Augustus Schwartz, also Republican, was next highest with 11,721 votes and Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce received a total of 11,331 votes.

On the Democratic Assembly ticket Franklin Halliday was high man with 8, 604 votes; Abram Morris next with 8,497 and Joseph Hague received 8,162 votes.

James C. Calvert, Republican candidate to succed himself as county clerk received a total of 12,332, against 8,112 polled for Kenah, the Democratic candidate, giving Mr. Calvert a majority of 4,220.

Frank H. Smith, Republican candidate for county register, to succeed himself, received a total of 12,124 votes, while his Democratic opponent, Schlotterer, received 8,209, giving Mr. Smith a majority of 3,815.

The board is still in session, but will probably finish up its business tomorrow.

DUNELLEN PAINTER GETS IN A PECK OF TROUBLE

Robert Tappen, a Dunellen painter, was arrested in that borough today by Marshal James Benson, and after a hearing before Justice Campbell, he was held in $500 bonds to appear before the Middlesex county grand jury on the charge of malicious mischief.

Tappen, it is asserted, got into his present trouble by trying to vent his personal spite against Henry Wrage, another Dunellenite, because the latter refused to give him the contract for painting his house.

Tappen, from all accounts, resorted to a novel method in getting revenge, by destroying a number of young trees on Wrage's property. The depredations occurred several nights ago. Wrage swort out the complaint this morning.

EUGENE P. EDWARDS GIVEN BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

A surprise was rung in on Eugene P. Edwards, of 255 East Second street, last night, when a party numb ring a score of his friends caught him leisurely reading his evening paper after supper. The occasion was Mr. Edwards' fifty-third birthday.

After the invaders had made known their purpose Mr. Edwards descended to the parlors and entered into the enjoyment provided with spirit. He received a Masonic charm as a gift from his wife. After enjoying an informal program of music and parlor games, the party adjourned to the dining room, where Mr. Edwards assisted in the cutting of a fifty-three candlepower cake. The party broke up just after midnight after enjoying a very pleasant evening.

MR. ACKERMAN TO FIGHT

Union's Senator Will Insist Upon Right to Be Majority Leader.

WILL PROBABLY WIN FIGHT.

"I Am in This Fight to a Finish," He Declares in Answer to David Baird, of Camden.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, who, according to all the rules of fair play, should be the majority leader of the coming Senate, but whom David Baird and certain others have set out to defeat, is fighting mad, and intends to stay in the contest for the Republican leadership until the last Senator has voted. When the Union county Senator was asked about the contest yesterday he said:

"When I was chosen leader by the eleven Republicans Senators in the closing hours of the last Legislature I looked upon it as practically a pledge that I was to be the choice of the Senators then present for leader in the coming Senate, and I intend to hold them to it. Certain influences have been at work against me, I am told, but I think the members of the Senate are capable of selecting their own officers without the aid of outsiders. I am in this fight to a finish."

The influences which are working against Senator Ackerman are David Baird, who, it is said, hopes by preventing the selection of Senator Ackerman as majority leader to deliver a blow at the candidacy of John Kean for re-election to the United States Senate. Baird, it is said, hopes that by brining this about he can then be elected to succeed Senator Kean as a means of "vindication" for the refusal of Governor Fort to reappoint him to the State Board of Assessors.

Baird counts on holding all the South Jersey Senators in line against Senator Ackerman, his choice for the leadership being Harry Leavitt, cashier of ex-Governor Stokes' bank at Trenton. But in this he is likely to be disappointed, because at least three of the Senators from that section of the State have already pledged themselves to the Union county Senator. It is also probable that two of the newly elected senators will be for Senator Ackerman. One of them, Professor Prince, of Passaic, it is said, will surely be for the Union county man, as it is not probable that he will cast his first vote with the leaders, thereby giving the impression that Vivian M. Lewis, the Republican leader of his county and a candidate for the nomination for Governor, is a part of the State House "ring."

Another influence working against Senator Ackerman is tracked to the liquor interests of the State.

A despatch from Trenton this noon says that Senator Ackerman had declared that he would fight to the last ditch. In a conferences this morning Senator David Baird said that Senator Ackerman would receive the support of all the South Jersey members and it looked at that time as though the Union county representative would win out.

Assemblyman Pierce announced that if he was in the way of Senator Ackerman's success he would gladly step aside and put no obstructions in the way of the Senator. The feeling throughout the corridors was that Mr. Ackerman would win.

In the lower House the candidates for the presiding place include Peter Vredenburg, of Monmouth; E. K. Moore, of Passaic; and Harry T. Ward, of Bergen. The contest between these and Assemblyman Pierce promises to be close and exciting.

Senator Ackerman told a representative of The Daily Press this morning that he did not go into the fight voluntarily, but was urged to do so by older members of the Senate, but that he would stand for no outside dictation as to his methods and acts.

Mr. Ackerman also said that he recognized that Mr. Dryden was a great business man and will never forgive him for not supporting him for the United States Senatorship and is consequently opposed to Mr. Ackerman's leadership, but that fact will not alter Mr. Ackerman's determination to secure the coveted honor. Mr. Ackerman also said he would call a caucus early in December.

The subject for the remainder of the hour will be a double one: "Power Through Christ? I Can Do All things," and "What Can I Do for Our Church?"

A good sized audience assembled Sunday evening at the Salvation Army to hear Capt. H. B. Saunders, of Scotch Plains. The service was very interesting and impressive from start to finish. The captain was assisted by several workers from the Scotch Plains Baptist church, which sang a beautiful quartet entitled "Behold Him Standing at the Door."

At Proctor's.

The new show at Proctor's theatre this week upholds the record of being the best at the lowest prices. The Michelangelos, greatest of European artists, make beautiful and marvelous pictures of rags and tin cans and clay work with astonishing rapidity. Harvey & Harvey, are conceded to give the funniest act on earth and it is a scream and cure for the blues or that down and out tired feeling. As a female impersonator, Miss Frances Elliott ranks with the best and from her gowns the women can secure novel ideas. Milton's dog circus will be appreciated by the little folks [illegible]

WHY SALVES FAIL TO CURE ECZEMA.

They Clog the Pores—Only a Liquid Can Reach the Inner Skin.

Since the old-fashioned theory of curing eczema through the blood has been given up by scientists, many different salves have been tried for skin disease. But it has been found that these salves only clog the pores and can not penetrate to the inner skin below the epidermis where the eczema germs are lodged.

This—the quality of penetrating—probably explains the tremendous success of the only standard liquid eczema cure, oil of wintergreen as compounded in D. D. D. Prescription. After ten years of cure after cure, the world's leading skin specialists have accepted this as the true eczema cure.

We ourselves do not hesitate to recommend D. D. D. Prescription at $1.00 a bottle, but for the benefit of those who have never tried the prescription, we arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special large trial bottle at 25 cents on a special offer now. This first bottle ought to convince every sufferer, and, at any rate, it will surely take away the itch at once.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Court Washington, Foresters of America, of Gloucester, is making arrangements for a reunion at which State officers will be present, on November 18.

Edward De Brown, who was killed at Port Jervis last Thursday night by falling from an Erie train, formerly lived in Paterson. So far as is known, the man has no relatives in that city.

Members of St. Mary's R. C. church, Gloucester, Sunday formed in procession and marched to St. Mary's cemetery, where the pastor, Rev. Charles Geis, performed the ceremony of blessing the graves of departed ones.

Many descriptive and decorative floats will appear in the industrial parade in Camden, tomorrow, under the direction of the Business Improvement Association, representing practically every product of the manufacturing establishments of the city. In connection with the parade the fire department will celebrate its fortieth anniversary.

Women almost crowded the parishioners out of the Men's church in Atlantic City last night, when a special service was given to allow the women to see the workings of the institution. Wives and sweethearts were requested to remove their hats by Rev. Sydney Goodman, the pastor, while moving pictures illustrating sermons and addresses were being shown. The "family nights" are to be given monthly.

Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze, in Jersey City, has appointed Cornelius J. Cronan, Francis J. McCauley and Frederick W. Bierz commissioners to appraise the lands of Emma Cuenin and Pasquale Cardone, located on the easterly side of Bergenline avenue, between Thirty-eighth and Thirty-ninth, North Bergen, which are required by the Hudson County Park commissioners for the new county park in the northern part of Hudson county. The commissioners are to file their report before January 15 next.

Sunday marked the forty-ninth anniversary of the organization of the Tabernacle M. E. church, Third and Pearl streets, Camden. There was an interesting feature, in the shape of the treasure box that was laid in the corner-stone of the original building, at Third and Vine streets, which had recently made way for a row of modern dwellings. In this box were papers of general interest, which were viewed at Sunday morning's services by the congregation and many visitors. A sermon was preached by Rev. J. D. Bi[illegible] pastor.

THE YOUNG GIRL'S CAPE.

Even though capes have been worn during the last summer for afternoon and evening, the cool days recall to many minds the fact that opera capes should be added to their wardrobes. The young girl needs a cape as much as her older sister; her dresses are very precious and dare not be crushed by the sleeves and weight of a coat. But her cape should be made in a style suitable for a young girl, and not loaded down with expensive decorations.

If the cape is to have hard wear, a color not too somber, yet durable, should be chosen. A soft, deep garnet or a dark shade of green or blue would make an attractive yet serviceable cape.

The best material to use for such a wrap is a light-weight broadcloth or a diagonal serge.

Buttons for Trimming of Gowns.

Buttons are more a trimming this season than a necessity. Some of the tailored suits have such handsome buttons that they may be classed as dress accessories. They come in many shapes, high flat-topped and semi-globular styles being the newest. Metal rimmed, antique gold and jet effects are also smart. In braided and crochet buttons one sees an intermingling of tiny beads as a new feature.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Golfers over Boston way are looking forward to the time when they will be able to boast of a new eighteen-hole course that may compare favorably with any in New England. The new course will be at the Belmont Country Club, and the plan is to have everything ready for a formal opening in the spring.

One advantage which the Belmont course will have over older ones is that everything will be done along the most up to date lines from the start. In the old days clubs began in the wrong way, and since then many of the leading ones have spent thousands of dollars in efforts to keep pace with the times. The club already has a membership of two hundred, comprising many prominent Bostonians.

The rolling country, with its luxuriant turf, is well adapted for golf. Eight greens have already been treated and "put to sleep" for the winter. In total length the plans call for a playing distance of about sixty-five hundred yards, rather long even in this hard hitting age.

A comparison of the cards returned in the open tournament at the Country Club of Atlantic City last week, as against previous gatherings there, shows a decided tendency on the high side. The scores, as a rule, averaged from three to ten strokes higher, and were it not for the fact that the course, because of recent scientific trapping, had been made that much more difficult, the quality of golf furnished would have to be stamped as mediocre.

Even if the course was several strokes harder because of the many extra traps and pitfalls, it will take more than that to explain the indifferent golf played by Walter J. Travis. The metropolitan champion, to be sure, did win the medal in the qualifying round with an 82, but this did not represent good golf. In fact, the Garden City man made several mistakes, quite unlike the Travis of old. They were mistakes, however, that have been noticeable with him in a majority of his matches this season. Why he should have lost his erstwhile machinelike game is a question which possibly even Travis himself cannot answer.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The famous Brothers Byrne, the recognized leaders of pantomimic comedy in this country, will give their successful play the new "Eight Bells," at the Plainfield theatre matinee and night, November 29. This production is entirely original and in a class that stands alone. There are no similar performances in this country. The piece throughout savors with new things that have never before been presented to the public. The Byrnes Brothers are artists of a high standard as pantomimists and acrobats are unexcelled. Nothing in the acrobatic line is too difficult for them, and the ease with which they accomplish the most difficult feats is marvellous to behold. The brothers are sufficient in themselves for a show, but wisely allow others who have claims to recognition to help in the merry-making. They have an inexhaustible fund of novelties in the way of stage paraphernalia in the new "Eight Bells," and there is no limit to trick scenery, marvellous mechanical effects and new pantomime tricks, which keep the audience's attention riveted to the stage at all times. The carriage ride and its mishaps, the funny revolving ship, the animated statues, and the John Byrne troupe of acrobats in new and novel feats are all great laugh producers and ideas that originated from the brain of this clever quartette of pantomimists.

"Such a Little Queen," in which Elsie Ferguson is starring, and the latest effort from the pen of Channing Pollock, once press agent, but who now is the subject for the press agent's paragraphs as a successful playwright, will be presented at the Plainfield theatre November 24, under the direction of Henry H. Harris. In his new comedy, Mr. Pollock has allowed his work to lean towards romance, and at times border on fantasy. But he has evolved a wholly delightful tale relating how the girlish Queen of Herzgovina and the young king of Bosnia were compelled to leave their high positions in their respective realms and fly to the land where kings and queens, except for the proverbial tinge in their blood, are no better than clerks and stenographers. And to prove this statement, Mr. Pollock makes the king a clerk and the queen a stenographer, both endeavoring to keep the wolf from their royal thresholds by occupying these positions. Their experiences and struggles in New York business offices form the basis of the story, which Mr. Pollock tells in four charming acts. The cast which will be furnished by Henry B. Harris, includes, besides the star, such well-known players as Eleanor Lawson, Menifee Johnstone, Francis Byrne, George Barnum, Frank Gilmour, Louis R. Grisel, Stanley G. Wood, Carl Sauermann, A. W. Neuendorf, Kraft Walton, Marion Little, Gertrude Barrett, and Jessie Ralph.

HIGH CLASS ATTRACTIONS COMING TO PLAINFIELD

Among the many high-class attractions to appear at the Plainfield theatre in the near future are Daniel Sully, the inimitable Irish comedian, in a new play. The Brothers Bryne, pantomimic artists in their newest version of "Eight Bells," Lyman H. Howes' moving pictures showing the dash to the North Pole and wonderful areplane races; also E'sie Ferguson in "Such a Little Queen," which has been at the Hackett theatre, New York, since the opening of the present season, and is still playing there to crowded houses.

Thomas Jefferson in "Rip Van-Winkle," will be an attraction on Thanksgiving Day. Mr. Jefferson is well-known here and the fact of his having been here several times will not make any difference in the reception he will be accorded as "Rip VanWinkle," is one of the few plays of which the theatregoer never tires.

Miss Blanche Bates in "The Fighting Hope," Chauncey Olcott & Co., "The Thief," by Henry Bernstein, which was seen here last season and which has scored such a remarkable success throughout the country; "The Traveling Salesman," in which the ups and downs of the traveling drummer are delightfully portrayed; J. E. Dodson in "The House Next Door," which played all last season at the Gaiety theatre, New York, are other strogn attractions booked for the near future.

There will also be Denman Thompson's "The Old Homestead," The Henry Miller Associate players in "The Servant in the House," which has been hailed as one of the greatest plays of the present century and Al. G. fields and company of one hundred minstrels, which was seen here last season, and which the play-going public pronounced as one of the best minstrel organizations in America. A little later in the season, Charles Klein's latest play, "The Third Degree," will be presented at the local theatre. The fact that the playhouse has been closed for the past week or so should insure a hearty welcome for the strong attractions booked.

Will Observe Third Anniversary.

The Rescue Mission will observe the third anniversary of John LeMatty as superintendent, with a special program tonight at the W. C. T. U. rooms at 7:45 o'clock. Several pastors of the city will be present to make addresses. A social hour will follow. All are welcome.

MRS. H. D. CORBUSIER ELECTED HEAD OF MOTHERS' ASSN.

The Plainfield Mothers' Association held its first meeting of the season yesterday afternoon, when the resignation of Mrs. E. J. Hamilton, as president, was presented and accepted. Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier was elected to fill the vacancy. The resignation of Mrs. Andrew J. Gavett as first vice-president and Mrs. Fitch as chairman of the bureau of speakers were also read and accepted with expressions of appreciation of services rendered the association. Mrs. William Sandford, Jr., is the second vice-president.

It was suggested that from time to time the association should cause to be published in the Plainfield daily newspapers articles or addresses on the care and raising of children, and that leaflets along these lines should be reprinted and distributed throughout the city. The meetings of the association will be held monthly during the winter.

D. C. Smalley Begins Operations.

David C. Smalley, owner of the property on Park avenue and Fourth street, adjoining that of the railroad, started a gang of men at work there yesterday for the purpose of carrying out extensive improvements as planned. In all about twelve stores will be erected. Some of them will be on Park avenue and along the driveway leading from Park avenue to the eastbound station of the railroad and the balance will be on the strip extending from a point near the old police station to Fourth street. A spacious concrete walk will be laid in front of the new building.

John Shirley.

John Shirley passed away in Muhlenberg Hospital this morning following a brief illness with pneumonia. Mr. Shirley was well known in this city where he resided for nearly twentyfive years, and worked at his trade as machinist. He is survived by a wife and a young son, and three brothers, Theodore J., Charles and Harry. He was a member of Court 1,144, Independent Order of Foresters. The funeral will be held from the home of his brother, Theodore J. Shirley, 430 Orchard place.

He was a native of Bucks County, Penn., and came to this city three years ago, where he resided with his son, Warren Walp. The dead man is also survived by a daughter, Miss Martha Walp, of New York. Arrangements have not yet been completed for the funeral but interment will be made at Quakertown.

CHRISTIAN SOLDIER'S LIFE

Story of Gen. O. O. Howard's Life as Told by His Nephew, Rev. L. R. Howard.

FOUNDED HOWARD UNIVERSITY.

Military Activities Did Not Prevent Christian Endeavor Among All Classes of People.

Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel, delivered an eulogy of his uncle, the late General O. O. Howard, on Sunday evening, of which the following is an extract.

The text for the sermon was from Psalm 18:32-25. "The God that girdeth me with strength * * * He teacheth my hand to war * * * Thou also hast given my the shield of thy salvation and thy right hand hath holden me up, and thy gentleness hath made me great.

This words, said the speaker, might almost have been the life motto of General Howard, the Christian Soldier. Favorite themes of his addresses were, "Loving kindness," and "The Father Love of God." This was a reflection of the strong influence on his life of his experience of the divine love. In truth it was God's gentlenes that made him great.

At thirty-two years of age Howard was a major-general. He was twice wounded by Minie balls and once by a piece of shell, and at Fair Oaks, after leading a successful charge and having two horses shot under him he was obliged to submit to the amputation of his right arm. In the four years of the Civil War he was in over sixty engagements, being successively advanced all the way from the command of a regiment to that of the great army of the Tennessee, with which he defeated Hood before Atlanta; the same army with which Grant captured Vicksburg, and which was with Sherman on the March to the Sea.

With no interval of rest General Howard was hurried from the field, in response to one of Lincoln's last requests, to take charge of the immense task of caring for the four and a half millions of liberated slaves. Considering the prejudice against the race, and the turmoil of political conditions the task was one of unparalleled difficulty. Nevertheless, hundreds of schools and Sunday schools were established, thousands upon thousands of homeless wanderers were started on the way of self-respecting manhood, and the efforts of a large group of philanthropic societies were carefully directed toward the continuance of the work by the time the seven years life of the Freedmen's Bureau was closed by Congress as suddenly as it had been begun.

Again without a day between tasks, not even time for completly rounding out and finishing up the work of the Freedmen's Bureau, the young officer was hurried off to the west on a peculiarly difficult and dangerous mission, to a rebellious band of Apache Indians, in which he succeeded remarkably. This was the first of many important dealings with the Indians in which he gained the same sort of result.

Finally, when after years of incessant activity for the nation, the time came for the General to retire, there was even then no resting from public service. He remembered how President Lincoln had said to him during the war: "Howard, if you come out of all this horror and misery alive, and I pray God that you may, I want you to do something for those Mountain people that have been shut out of the world all these years." Consequently, when most men expect to enjoy a life of well-earned leisure, Gen. Howard plunged into the almost heart-breaking task of raising money for a great educational institution, and for the ten years before his death was incessantly at work on this last great task of love.

To have founded Howard University alone, the great negro school in Washington, which is the most conspicuous remaining result of his work in the Freedmens' Bureau, would have been enough to have set any man's name high among those who have served their fellow-men. To have added to that another university, established by his labors when past seventy years of age, is surely an astonishing achievement. Lincoln Memorial University, at Cumberland, Gap, Tennessee, is the old soldier's tribute of layalty to his great Chief, as Howard Nniversity is the monument to the faithful performance of the task laid upon him by that loved leader in his youth.

But all these things together do not begin to count up the sum of Gen. Howard's claims to greatness as a Christian soldier. His activities in the way of religious service, from the time of his conversion to his death, were such as most laymen usually think of as possible only to a Christian minister. He constantly visited hospitals, comforted the sick, and sat by the dying. He established Sunday schools and even raised most of the money for building a great church. He preached and he prayed, even as he fought and labored, in public and in private, wherever there seemed an opportunity to do good and help his fellowmen.

Among the outstanding Christian characterisites of the general, Mr. Howard named the following illustrating each with various interesting anecdotes from his uncle's life, or quotations from his writings.

First, was his self-control. One illustration of this was his behavior under criticism. A second trait was his sympathy. There could be no pain or sorrow in the lives of those whom he could reach which he did not wish and try to meet with help and comfort. His treatment of the Negro and the Indian was largely controlled by this strong Christian trait, and several striking instances were told in illustration of it. Then were named and illustrated, his generosity toward his rivals, his noble fearlessness under the greatest variety of dangers, and finally, his "religiousness," or positive Christian faith and activity.

The General once said his ultimate philosophy was very simple, as seen in practise: "Study the Scriptures; read them daily; have family reading and prayer; ask God's blessing at meals; spend the Sabbath in seeking spiritual benefit; try every day to make somebody happier and better; go to the meeting for prayer, to meet the great King and put in with others our petitions."

At the close of his autobiography General Howard wrote: "My part in the world's work will soon be finished. If I know my strongest desire, it is that all people, and especially all children, may receive into their minds and hearts that teaching which shall make for their present and future good, which embraces attainable knowledge and loving kindness, whose pattern is in the life of Jesus."

In conclusion, the speaker made a simple appeal for lincoln Memorial University and circulars with stamped envelopes were distributed, by which small contributions could be sent toward this last monument, not only of President Lincoln, but of the Christian Soldier, General Howard also.

SEWAGE QUESTION STIRS DUNELLEN TAX PAYERS

While Dunellen taxpayers are a unit toward the proposition of uniting with North Plainfield in a sewerage system, the plans of the borough solons in reference to the sites for the location of the disposal plant and bed is not likely to go through without opposition.

It was learned today that the Watchung Water Company, of Dunellen, while not antagonistic to a sewerage system, will oppose the establishment of the plant on all of the three sites under consideration. The water company is opposed to the location of the beds at the points designated in the resolution fathered by the sewerage commission for the reason that its wells are situated quite near Greenbrook in the vicinity of Sebring's Mills.

The objection, will be made on the grounds that the sewerage would be passing through the ground too near the company's well, which would place the streams in danger of contamination. The company furnishes water through its pipe lines to Dunellen, New Market, Piscataway township and Bound Brook.

Another objector is said to be Mrs. Helen Brown, owner of Brown Hall, or the old Rice place. This property is considered one of the most valuable in that section. It is of the old mansion type and was erected about twenty-five years ago by lawyer Patrick, who is now serving a life sentence in Sing Sing prison for the murder of Robert Rice, the old millionaire, for whom he acted as counsel. This property is said to be worth $40,000 and is near the Trust and Cramer farms, the latter being adjacent to the Brown farm on the west.

Dunellen residents as a rule favor the Zolenach farm as the ideal site for the plant. It is also understood that the Watchung Water Company and Mrs. Brown have no objections to offer provided that site is selected.

Tax Collector Isaac Stites, who is one of the most energetic advocates for a sewerage system in Dunellen, sounded his views yesterday to a Daily Press reporter in the following words:

"We want sewerage in Dunellen here bad enough but we don't want to place it in our backyard. We want to put it where it would do the least injury." Mr. Stites entertains the opinion that the Zolenach farm is the ideal site for the plant.

Will Give Missionary Address.

Rev. Francis E. Higgins will give an address in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tomorrow night on his work as a missionary of the home board among the lumbermen of the Northwest. An account of Mr. Higgins and his work was given in Harper's Monthly July last, by Norman Duncan. The church considers itself fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Higgins for an address at this time.

Juniors Enjoy a Musical.

After the regular business session of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., last night, the members enjoyed a musical program given by the Chrysanthemum Musical club, composed of members of the Council. It is composed of eight harmonicas, two mandolins and one flute. The music was greatly appreciated and an excellent program was rendered. William F. Richards is the director of the club.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The committee for the Sacred Heart parish fair this week are working hard to make it a success. The following officers were elected at a meeting of the St. Francis T. A. B. Cadets held Sunday: President, John L. Miller; vice-president, Joseph N. Harlow; corresponding and recording secretary, Andrew L. McDonough; financial secretary, John A. McDonough; treasurer, Patrick A. McDonough; sergeant-at-arms, John Hogan; marshal, Frank Phillips. The following new members were taken into the organization: John McDonough, Paul Geary, Martin McDonough, Robert Hamilton, William Reilley, Daniel Soffield and Peter McDonough.

The South Plainfield Football Association defeated the Clinton Avenue Club on the latter's grounds yesterday by a score of 27 to 0. The local club's line-up was invincible, the South Plainfielders keeping the ball in their heavier opponents territory all through the game.

Mrs. H. Mundy has removed to the house on Lehigh avenue recently vacated by F. A. Lindaberry and family. Mrs. Mundy has purchased the property from C. McDonough, of North Plainfield.

William Teeple has just recovered from a slight illness and is now back in school.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs Joseph Sankow Sunday night.

Mrs. John Hogan visited out-o-town friends yesterday.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Capt. H. B. Saunders, of Washington Valley, who is actively engaged in young people's work in connection with the Baptist church, made an address at the Sunday afternoon meeting of the Salvation Army, Plainfield.

William H. Lee intends to have his bowling alleys overhauled and put in first class condition. There is some talk of organizing a local bowling team in town, and an attempt will be made to revive the sport in town.

Mrs. George Stillger, who was taken suddenly ill Sunday night, remains about the same but little improvement being noticed

Joe Long, who has been seriously ill at his home on Stanbury avenue, for several days, is reported as improving.

Mrs. Augusta Miller, of Front street, has returned from a visit with relatives and friends in Newark.

Mrs. James Middleditch, of Trumbull Court, Plainfield, was the guest of friends in town Monday.

Mrs. George A. Clark has returned from a visit with relatives at Finderne.

(Additional suburban news on page 2.)

MISSIONARY BOXES FROM TRINITY'S CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church has completed the packing of a large missionary box and two barrels and they have been sent on their errands of mercy and love. One large box goes to Rev. George Neimeyer and family, of Simmit, Cook county, Ill. He was a warm friend of the father of Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and is doing a good work.

One of the barrels has been sent to Rev. Isaac Messler, of Rinstad, Kentucky, and the other barrel to the Schofield School, Aiken, S. C. The box and barrels were well filled with valuable clothing and other articles of use, all of which will make glad the hearts of the missionaries.

HIS LOVE NOT REAL ARTICLE

Protestations Proved False When Woman's Wit Put Glib Admirer to the Test.

A reporter ventured, on John D. Rockefeller's seventieth birthday, to question him about his very remarkable present, a jar of petroleum butter, the latest by-product of Standard Oil that the remarkable Standard Oil chemists have evolved.

Mr. Rockefeller, however, would not discuss the petroleum butter. He shook his head, laughed, and said:

"Young man, I am ignorant about this butter. I am as ignorant as the man in the fable.

"There is a fable, you know, about a man in an eastern city who followed a lady about the bazars and shops a long time. Finally she turned and said:

"'Why do you follow me?'

"'Because,' he answered, 'you are very beautiful, and my soul goes out to you in love.'

"The lady smiled and said:

"'But I am not half so beautiful as my sister there.' She pointed to the fountain in the square. 'Look at her, filling her water jar. She is a vision of loveliness. Go, then, and make love to her.'

"The man took the lady at her word. He hastened to the fountain. But the maiden filling the jar there was very, very ugly, and he returned and said, angrily:

"'Your sister beautiful! Why did you tell me such a falsehood?'

"'Ah, but why,' said the lady, 'did you tell me a falsehood first?'

"'But I didn't,' said he. 'When,' he added, 'did I?'

"'When you told me you loved me,' said the lady. 'For if it had been true that you loved me, you would never have gone off to make love to another woman.'"

Britain's Gift of Peace.

The indispensable foundation for the working out of any principles of government is internal peace, and peace is the greatest of the blessings that British rule has bestowed upon India. The ravages of invaders, the horrors of civil war between state and state, race and race, creed and creed, have utterly ceased. An occasional clash between Mohammedans and Hindus, easily and promptly quelled, is nowadays all that disturbs the tranquillity of a continent once the unceasing prey of strife and disorder. But beneath the truce imposed by British power the old hatreds and passions are still straining, and it is a curious example of human inconsequence that the Bengalis, who have done most to impair the strength of the British Raj, and who have ever agitated for its abolition, would be the first to suffer were it to be overthrown.—From Sydney Brooke's "British Rule in India" in the Century.

No Danger.

Much sobered by the importance of the news he had to communicate, youthful Thomas strode into the house and said, breathlessly:

"Mother, they have a new baby next door, and the lady there is awful sick. Mother, you ought to go right in and see her."

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "I will go over in a day or two just as soon as she gets better."

"But, mother," persisted Thomas, "I think you ought to go in right away; she is real sick, and maybe you can do something to help."

"Yes, dear," said the mother, patiently, "but wait a day or so until she is just a little better."

Thomas seemed much dissatisfied at his mother's apparent lack of neighborly interest, and then something seemed to dawn upon him, for he blurted out:

"Mother, you needn't be afraid—it ain't catching."—Cosmopolitan.

Good at Addition.

Sammy's mother talked to him long and earnestly about the poor marks he had been getting in his work at school. She painted in alluring colors the career of the little boy who studies his lessons and gains the love and respect of his teachers. She went even further; she promised him a whole dime, all for his own. Sammy seemed impressed.

That afternoon he returned from school fairly dancing with joy.

"Oh, mother!" he shouted, "I got a hundred!"

"Sammy!" cried his delighted mother. She hugged him and kissed him and petted him and—gave him a dime.

"And what did you get a hundred in?" she finally asked.

"In two things," replied Sammy, without hesitation, "I got 40 in readin' and 60 in spellin'."—Everybody's.

The Same Dimensions.

The bride-to-be had the air of one who is unreconciled to the existing state of affairs. "Can't we take a wedding trip, as we'd planned?" she asked, plaintively.

"Not just now," said the young man, "on account of my partner's illness."

"I thought it would be such fun taking that six days' journey in the cars!" she sighed.

"Well, now, see here," said the young man. "If you take the flat I looked at yesterday, it'll be just the same as living in the parlor car stateroom, except that the scenery won't change."—Youth's Companion.

His Preference.

Knicker—Wouldn't you like to wake up to find yourself famous?

Newpop—No; I'd rather have the baby go to sleep to find itself obscure.

WHY HE'S SO GOOD.

"There is a little boy in our neighborhood who never whistles."

"Most unusual."

"He never beats a toy drum, never uses a sling and never throws stones through window panes."

"Truly, a remarkable child!"

"Furthermore, he has never been seen to make faces at elderly people, never fights and no matter how many circus parades may be passing from time to time on a near by street, he never runs away from home."

"I didn't think there was such a boy in the world. I should like to see him."

"Oh, his good qualities are very easily explained. You see, the boy I'm talking about is a marble boy, and he presides over a fountain on Mr. Bleeker's lawn."

He Was Real Mean.

Miss Golding—Here's your ring. I have decided that I can never be your wife, so the engagement is off and I shall expect you to return everything you may have in your possession that belongs to me.

Mr. Hamlin—All I have is a lock of your hair and photo. I don't suppose you care anything for the photo, but the lock of hair you will no doubt want to preserve as a souvenir.

Miss Golding—As a souvenir of what

Mr. Hamlin—Of the time when you were a brunette.

The Sorrow of It.

The jokesmith sat at a table. On his hands he rested his head, and after trying to think a think this is what he said: "Alas, my brain tank's empty! All thoughts seem to have fled. It's funny I can't remember the jokes I think of in bed."

A TERRIBLE THOUGHT.

"I was just thinkin' how terrible it'd be if my birthday an' Christmas came on the same day. My!"

Wise.

The wise man thinks before he speaks,
And if you will
But take his hunch you'll do the same
And then keep still.

His Mania.

Tjarks—What is Flyer doing around that rural legislator?

Bjenks—He's trying to lobby a bill. Flyer has the airship craze strong

Tjarks—And what kind of a bill is he trying to lobby?

Bjenks—A bill to compel farmers to spread feather beds over their farms when they see an airship descending.

Stood the Test.

"Mamma, why don't you want me to play with that Kudger boy?"

"Because, dear, I know the family. He hasn't good blood in him."

"Why, mamma, he's been vaccinated twice, and it wouldn't take either time."

Realism.

Critic (as the composer plays his last piece)—Very fine, indeed. But what is that passage which makes the cold chills run down the back?

Composer—That is where the wanderer has the hotel bill brought to him.

Coeducation.

"But," asked the first coed, "why did you elect to take up the study of German instead of French?"

"Oh," replied the other, "the German professor was so awfully handsome, you know."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Hardly.

"Here is a list of the hundred worst books."

"I'll bet you one thing."

"What?"

"The pocketbook isn't mentioned there."

Kitchen Repartee.

"What's the matter?" queried the dish pan. "You look as if you had that tired feeling."

"Yes, and I feel it," replied the coffee mill. "I had another turn this morning."

He'd Help.

Caller—Sir, I am collecting for the poets' hospital. Will you contribute anything?

Editor—With pleasure. Call tonight with the ambulance, and I will have some poets ready.—Judge.

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

The young man waited for a moment as if searching his mind for a closing argument. Then with a flash of inspiration he concluded:

"You've got to do your loving yourself."

Haggleton started, looked at him intently, shifted his gaze to Gentle's face and repeated thoughtfully, slowly:

"You've got to do your loving yourself. I never thought of that."

Haggleton paused, then went on:

"A man with the right stuff in him can win out against poverty just as well today as he ever could."

"A man like Moran?" Philip's voice was incredulous.

"Who is Moran?" asked Haggleton.

"Your tenant here."

"He had a small oil business in the west," explained Gentle. "Your system absorbed it. Now he's a baker's assistant."

Haggleton got up again and walked around the room.

"Moran can't be much good if this is the way he keeps his place."

"He's half sick." Philip was impatient now.

"So am I half sick, and more than half. I have been half sick for twenty years. Upon my word, I believe that half the work of the world is done by men who are half sick."

Then he asked briefly:

"How much does Moran earn?"

"Nine dollars a week."

Haggleton made another turn of the room.

"If I only had time," he muttered to himself. And he added, lower still, "I'll have to do my loving myself."

The thought had found its conclusion in the millionaire's brain.

"See here," said Haggleton briskly, squaring his shoulders, tightening his jaw and assuming a combative attitude—"see here, you two. Are you willing to let me prove my contention in my own way?"

"That a man with the right stuff in him can win out against poverty just as well today as he ever could—is that what you mean?" asked Philip.

"Yes."

"I am willing," said Gentle significantly.

Haggleton nodded emphatically.

"I don't quite understand," Philip began cautiously.

"Get me some paper. I am going to send orders to the captain of my yacht—that he sail at once, as arranged, only I shall not be on board."

"He is to sail without you?"

"Without me, and he is to keep away from wireless telegraph apparatus, ports of call, yacht club stations. He is to have no communication with any one, if possible. You understand me, Mr. Gentle?"

"I think I do, Mr. Haggleton."

"I impose secrecy on both of you," continued Haggleton, now blazing with energy.

"Then you are not going on the yacht?" hazarded Philip.

"No, my young reforming friend. I am going to stay here. I am going to win a little bet I have made with your friend, Mr. Gentle. And I am going to show you what John J. Haggleton would do if he had to hustle in a tenement without a dollar."

CHAPTER V.

HAGGLETON AT WORK.

"I WILL start fair," said Haggleton briefly to Gentle. "I will keep nothing but the clothes I stand in—and $2. That's what I started with the first time. Moran started with more than that. Two dollars will suffice for me. My clothes I can sell and buy a suit more fitting for a penniless man looking for a job. The difference in price I will add to my capital. You will have to explain me to Moran and make him take me as a boarder. I am Mr. Jackson, a small business man ruined by the trust."

Then he added to Philip:

"Call my secretary."

The man entered hastily.

"I wish to be alone with Mr. Grimes for a few moments."

Philip and Gentle withdrew.

"Sit down," motioned Haggleton.

Grimes looked at his watch. "The yacht was to sail in twenty minutes," he remonstrated. "You will lose the tide."

"I'm not going on the yacht."

"Ah! Then I'm to countermand the sailing orders?"

"I mean that the yacht goes, but I stay here—here in this tenement. I'm going to live here."

"Am I to sail on the yacht?"

"Of course. You will take my orders and see that they are executed. I shall write a note for the captain, telling him to carry out exactly the instructions already agreed upon."

"For a three months' cruise?"

"Yes. See to it that the news does not get out that I am not on board. Down here there's not one chance in a thousand that I will be discovered, and—Grimes, I have another reason for wanting every one to think me aboard the yacht."

"Another reason besides—besides your—"

as those fellows know I'm away they'll start some new devilry against me, and"—he leaned forward—"it might be amusing and profitable to be right here in Manhattan watching them."

Haggleton opened the door.

"Come in, please," he called.

Gentle and Philip entered.

The old man sat at the bare wooden table and rapidly wrote his instructions. Then he sealed them and addressed the envelope. "There; I think that's all," he concluded, giving it to Grimes, who departed.

A remarkable change had come over Haggleton. His eyes were alert, his face firm, but good natured. He seemed pleased with himself and with things in general. Philip observed this with surprise.

Haggleton looked Philip straight in the eyes.

"I have told you that I am going to show you what John J. Haggleton would do if he had to hustle in a tenement."

He now turned to Gentle and began to fire rapid questions at him. Moran? A morose man, who ascribed his failure to the iniquity of a trust. Quite so. After his first failure he had simply stopped struggling? Just so. He was a baker's assistant? Could he get "Mr. Jackson" a place in the bakery? Mr. Jackson thought that he would like to have a try at the bakery business. Jenny? Hard working, but overwhelmed by her dispiriting environment and the privations of poverty. Just as he thought.

Joe Caffrey? Shiftless? Unmoral? Well, well! Joe must become their charge.

In ten minutes John J. knew all he cared to know. As in the organization of his gigantic undertakings, so now here, in this hovel, he had begun by gauging the possibilities of those with whom he would have to deal. He had watched his son and seen the look of interest, growing into admiration, upon his face. Yes, he had made a good beginning.

Haggleton rose and took a final turn of the room.

"When I came here nearly forty years ago," he announced, "this was a clean district. Now it is a dirty one. American cleanliness has been submerged by foreign shiftlessness. Within a week I will have this home of native Americans as neat as a New England farmhouse."

Where was he to sleep? Joe Caffrey would be Philip's guest for a day or two? All right. That nurse had said that the children ought to be in a hospital? Gentle would see to it that they went that very day and got their father's consent? All right.

Gentle went on his mission, Haggleton accompanying him to sell his clothes and buy cheaper ones.

Jenny returned home with her basket of images and welcomed an addition to their resources in the form of a boarder who would be far less trouble than the two children and more profitable. Mr. Jackson, Philip informed her, had seen better days—in fact, until quite recently he had lived in easy circumstances.

Tired as she was, depressed by the knowledge that she had lost Philip, she began to set the hovel to rights.

Margaret Lawrence, entering from the inner room, found her energetically at work making a distinction between the box that contained the coal and the basket that held the potatoes.

Gentle returned, accompanied by the ambulance. The children were bundled off, with much excitement on their part and many farewells, Margaret—final treat exacted from her—riding with them!

Haggleton—now "Mr. Jackson"—returned soon after, having sold his expensive clothes and bought with the proceeds a simple suit, better adapted to the role he was to play.

Jenny shook hands with Mr. Jackson, whom Gentle introduced, and bade him make himself at home. Gentle went.

The new boarder was certainly handy. He took off his coat and offered to help. Without waiting for an acceptance of the offer he began. He was deferential—he had "beautiful manners," Jenny concluded—asking permission even while he set to work. In this way he brought some order into the chaos of the young woman's domestic economy. It was a mere scraping of the surface, but when it had been accomplished Jenny was firmly convinced that it was she who had made the suggestions, Mr. Jackson who had merely carried them out.

"My, but you're handy," said Jenny, glancing around contentedly at the new arrangement of the room and the various small improvements.

Sound Counsel

The following recently appeared in Leslie's Weekly, from that publication's well-known Life Insurance writer, "The Hermit:"

Newlywed, Buffalo, N. Y.—I agree with you that it is an obligation on your part to provide for your wife, so that in case of your death she will have something to fall back upon. Even if your salary is small, you ought to be able to set aside 50 cents a week as an insurance fund for her protection, and at your age this would give you a policy for $1,000. If you could set aside about $4 a week, you could insure the payment to her of over $1,200 in cash and $50 a month for life, by taking the newest Monthly Income policy of The Prudential. This policy has some remarkable features. If you will state your age and the age of your wife, and write to The Prudential Insurance Co., Department 67, Newark, N. J., a copy of the policy will be sent you for examination.

BASKETBALL SCHEDULE; Y. M. C. A.'S LINE-UP

Y. M. C. A. basketball players are putting in strenuous sessions of practise in preparation for the opening game on Saturday night with the Business Men's team. Manager G. L. Listman today issued a schedule which shows that the local five will clash with some of the strongest aggregations in the metropolitan district. There are a few open dates which will be filled later and it is possible that a contest will be booked with one of the big college teams.

There are only two holiday dates in the program but both are strong attractions. On Thanksgiving day afternoon the Millburn A. C. will be the opponents of the locals and on New Year's day, the strong Williamsbridge five will visit the local courts. No contests have been arranged for Christmas or Washington's birthday.

Manager Listman declares the outlook is rosy for a strong combination this season which he believes will be able to cope with all opposing teams. The lineup is not yet definitely decided on but it is certain that four veterans will be on the regular team. These players are Denton, Miner, Rumsey and Collier.

The position of center is still an open question but there is a likely lot of athletes striving for the place in Cahoone, Linke, Whitford, Fritts and Aalholm. The schedule follows:

November 13, Business Men, at home; November 20, Leals School, at home; November 25, Milburn A. C., at home; November 27, Elizabeth Y. M. C. A., at home; December 4, Orange Suburbans, at home; December 11, Eastern Dist. Y. M. C. A., at home; December 17, Elizabeth at Elizabeth; December 18, Milburn, at Plainfield; December 27, open; January 1, Williamsbridge, at home; January 8, Orange, at home; January 15, Suburbans, at home; January 22, open; January 29, open; February 5, Williamsbridge, at home; February 12, open; February 19, Orange, at Orange.

A. G. HOOLEY'S SETTERS NOTICED BY BELGIAN

Field and Fancy, a recognized periodical publication relating to thoroughbred dogs, in its issue of November 6, publishes the following of interest to many Plainfielders:

"The following notice of A. G. Hooley's great English setter Ch. Meadowview Rock, accompanied by a handsome reproduction of G. Muss-Arnolt's pen portrait of him, appeared in the 'L'Eleveur Belge,' the Belgian periodical devoted to doggy interests, issue of October 17, the most prominent paper on the continent devoted to dogs:

"The subject of our illustration this week is a pen sketch of Ch. Meadowview Rock, the elegant English setter of A. G. Hooley. Meadowview Rock was first shown at New York in February last, and there gained winners, also Mr. Thompson's special for best English setter in the show. Since then he has been exhibited at different shows, winning under seven different judges. He is a white coated dog, ticked lemon about the muzzle and eyes; the feet and body are not marked. His owner thinks that the drawing of G. Muss-Arnolt, which we reproduce, is one of the best and most life-like that he has ever seen. Meadowview Rock is by Sealthwaiterigg Sport of Ch. Lady Allister, and was bred by its owner. He is a very intelligent dog in the field, and is built to hunt all day with the vim and intelligence characterizing the products of the Meadowview Kennels."

SCHOOL ATHLETES RANK HIGH IN SCHOLARSHIP

This year rigid rules as to standard of scholarship for athletic eligibility have been enforced in the borough High School. An examination of the averages of the fifteen football players for October shows that not one has failed to maintain satisfactory class standing in at least three solid subjects, which is the requirement laid down by the faculty.

In the opinion of Supterintendent H. C. Krebs the remarkable success of the team this year is due to the fact that in these lightweights brains take the place of brawn.

"Holland of Today."

"Holland of Today," written and pictured by George Wharton Edwards, the artist of Franklin place, and from the press of Moffat Yard & Co., is attracting unusual attention on the part of booklovers. The book has been received here by booksellers and a large sale is reported. The book is in its third edition, showing its popularity.

S. P. C. A. OFFICER REBUKES DRIVER FOR ABUSE OF HORSES.

Mrs. Stephen G. Vanltoesen, of Fanwood, the special officer for the S. P. C. A., had her attention directed this morning to what appeared to be an abuse of a team of horses drawing crushed stone to the new Frost building. The driver thoughtlessly drove the team over a large pile of stone and one of the horses went down on his knees cutting them and also his mouth.

Mrs. VanHoesen witnessed the incident and promptly called the attention of the driver to his carelessness. She also summoned Patrolman William Messler to the scene and explained the matter to him. She warned the driver of the team not to repeat the offense or she would have him arrested. The trouble was soon remedied.

COURTS IN KANSAS STOP MILK TRUST TACTICS.

In Kansas City, Mo., on November 5, Judge John J. Park in the Circuit Court granted an order restraining milk men in Kansas City and vicinity from combining to raise the price of milk. The action follows an investigation by city officials into the charge of an alleged conspiracy to raise milk prices.

As the result of this investigation Dr. Lloyd Champlain, an assistant city milk inspector, was dismissed from the city service today.

It was charged that Dr. Champlin, who is also editor of "The Milkman," a trade journal, urged dealers to raise prices.

HYPNOTIST HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER IN SOMERVILLE

Arthur Everton, a professional hypnotist, is in jail at Somerville charged with manslaughter, and will be held for the action of the December grand jury without bail.

Everton hypnotised his subject, Edward Simpson, of Newark, and when Simpson failed to respond to the usual hand-clap an investigation showed that he was a corpse.

It is claimed that Simpson had been on a prolonged debauch previous to the hypnotic test and died as a result of alcoholism.

Several beautiful floral tributes were strewn about the bier of the dead. They included a beautiful standing wreath on a pedestal, a token from the electrical department of the P. S. C., where Miss Thompson was a valued employe. Among the other tributes were offerings from the Epworth League, Sunday-school and the Standard Bearers of Monroe Avenue church. WHERE IS JOHN KONESKI? WANDERLUST VICTIM

John Coneski, of Everett place, has asked The Daily Press to aid him in his search for his son, John, Jr., who has left home and left no trace behind him. Young Coneski was for several years a newsboy and delivered The Daily Press to a large number of customers. He is remembered as a bright, sunny dispositioned youth, although he was afflicted with wanderlust.

This is not his first disappearance, but he has never stayed away so long before. His mother is prostrated with grief over this latest escapade of her son and according to the boy's father is worrying herself to death. Mr. Coneski feels that should be the boy not return that his wife will die of grief. He, himself, showed traces of sorrow when telling of the boy's absence. He would gladly reward any one who can give him a clue to his boy's whereabouts.

The boy is seventeen years old, tall and good looking. He was neatly dressed when last seen and no one of his acquaintances has ever heard him complain of his home relations. It is feared that something has happened to the boy.

DRANK 'TILL MONEY WAS GONE; WILL BE GOOD IN FUTURE.

Mark Meaney, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, arrested for being drunk and disorderly on East Second street yesterday afternoon, said this morning that he drank so fast and so often that he did not know how many drinks he had imbibed nor what he did after he began to flow over. All he did know was that he only stopped drinking when his money gave out.

He was arrested by Patrolman Messler, who said that Meaney was too far gone to know anything and it was with difficulty that he was landed in a cell at police headquarters. As it was his first offense Judge William Runyon allowed him to go on his promise to reform.

Raised British Flag.

A telephone message received at police headquarters this morning announced that the British flag was floating at the head of a staff on the premises of Edmund L. McKenzie, on Leland avenue. The person who gave the information was incensed that the flag of Great Britain should be flaunted so boldly in the faces of patriotic Americans and asked the police to order the flag lowered. This is not an unprecedented action in this country. It is believed that the flag was raised by employes of Mr. McKenzie in ignorance of the law.

SALARY LAW EFFECTIVE

On November 15, Act of Legislature Passed Last April Will Be in Force.

SURROGATE AND SHERIFF GAIN.

County Clerk Calvert and Registrar Frank H. Smith Not Affected by Change.

Under the law passed by the State Legislature in April, 1909, there will go into effect, November 15, a change in the pay received by the county clerk and registrar of deeds.

The act is entitled, "An act to amend an act respecting the fees of surrogates, registrars of deeds and mortgages, county clerks and sheriffs in certain counties of the State, and providing salaries for such offices," approved March 30, 1906.

Surrogate George T. Parrot and sheriff Robert J. Kirkland were elected under the act approved in 1906. In lieu of fees those holding these offices throughout the State now receive salaries. The amount of salaries is regulated according to the population of the different counties.

The law did not affect the offices of Frank H. Smith and James C. Calvert because they were holding office when the original act was passed.

In counties having between 125,000 and 200,000 population the salaries of the sheriff, county clerk, registrar of deeds and surrogate are fixed at $6,500, and for counties with less than 125,000 population, $5,500.

The law says the salaries shall be paid by the county in regular monthly payments. Heretofore out of the fees received the county clerk and the county registrar received their salaries and paid their assistants.

Under the new law Frank H. Smith and James C. Calvert will receive each a yearly salary of $5,500. Their assistants and deputies will be paid by the county and the salaries will be approved by the judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

BISHOP SELECTED FOR NEWARK CONFERENCE

Bishop William Anderson will be the presiding officer at the next session of the Newark Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, the stated time for holding which is the first week in April. The Board of Bishops met on October 30 at Binghamton, N. Y., and fixed the appointments for the thirty or more conferences of the church.

It is probable that the Newark Conference will meet in Newark next year, as it has become such a large body that entertainment in a smaller, less central city is almost an impossibility. The conference last April was held in the Centenary M. E. church, Newark, Bishop Thomas B. Neely presiding.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Hypnotist Held When His Subject is Pronounced to Be Dead.

HIS MAIN AORTA RUPTURED.

Fellow Hypnotist Tried in Vain to Revive Victim—Somerville Is Stirred by Fatality.

In a state of almost complete collapse, "Professor" Arthur Everton, of Newark, is locked up in the Somerset county jail, at Somerville, facing a technical charge of manslaughter in being responsible for the death of Robert Simpson, his subject in a hypnotic exhibition given by Everton Monday night at a Somerville theatre.

Simpson lies at the Somerset Hospital morgue, where he was pronounced officially dead and an autopsy was performed. Everton said earlier in the day yesterday he was not convinced that his late subject was dead, and, continually pleaded for another chance to bring him out of the cataleptic state into which, he asserted, Simpson had fallen.

The subject had been placed on two chairs on the stage of the Somerville theatre, his head resting on one and his feet on the other, while Everton stood upon the rigid figure. When through with this experiment Everton snapped his fingers as a signal for Simpson to regain his feet, but there was no answering movement from the hypnotized man. Despite all his efforts, Everton failed to revive the man, and finally Dr. Long, the county physician, who was in the theatre, was called to the platform. The efforts of the physician proved unavailing, and Simpson was hurried to the local hospital, where doctors worked all night over him, aided by Everton, with the same result.

The physicians then announced that the man had been dead since midnight Monday night. Everton was araigned before Justice of the Peace Arthur P. Sutphen, who held him on the charge of manslaughter to await the action of the grand jury.

Dr. Long informed Everton that he was at liberty to call in any hypnotist he desired and allow him to work over Simpson. The "professor" summoned William E. Davenport, secretary to the Mayor of Newark, and a student of hypnotism, to assist him.

Hypnotism and Death.

Simpson's body, covered with a black cloth, lay in the morgue at the hospital when Davenport arrived. He went in silently and in the presence of Dr. W. H. Long, county physician; Dr. Charles H. Halstead and Dr. Francis McConaughy immediately began his attempts to revive the unfortunate man. First he felt of the body to detect any possible heart beat. Failing in this, he placed his ear to the victim's chest; then, invoking the power of suggestion, he spoke in the dead man's ear.

"'Bob,'" he said, "'Bob,' your heart action—your heart action—your heart action is beginning. It is beginning." Slowly and dramatically Davenport repeated this in the ear, then, changing histone of voice to an imperious command, he cried, sharply:

"'Bob!' 'Bob!' Can't you hear me? Your heart is beginning to beat. Your heart is beginning to beat.' Again and again he repeated this assurance to the inanimate form, while the medical men looked grimly on. Not a muscle of the body stirred and there was absolutely no sign of animation.

Again Davenport changed his methods. Leaning over Simpson's right ear, he spoke confidentially, "Oh, I say, 'Bob,'" he said, in a quiet conversational tone; "look, your heart is beginning to beat." He repeated this soothingly time after time, but without effect.

While this was going on a brilliant incandescent lamp shed its binding glow on the dead man's face, but the eyelids did not flutter. Disheartened, Davenport turned to go, but Dr. Long called him back.

"What is your opinion?" he asked.

"I did not come to form an opinion," replied Davenport.

"But we insist," said the county physician.

"Well," replied Davenport, after a pause, "he's dead."

Results of Autopsy.

At 8 o'clock last night Dr. Long, assisted by Dr. A. L. Stilwell and six local surgeons, performed an autopsy on the body of Simpson, which occupied almost three hours. Afterward the physicians issued a statement, saying that Simpson had died from the ects of a rupture of the aorta, the large blood vessel in the thorax. The autopsy also disclosed that the organs were in poor condition, due, it is said, to the effects of alcohol.

Everton has employed counsel and

SAYS U. S. NEWSPAPERS LEAD CANUCK JOURNALS

Frank S. Jones, Plainfield's pioneer linotype operator and a former employe of The Daily Press, returned to town yesterday after an absence of nearly four years, during which time he was linotype expert for the Halifax Herald, Halifax, Nova Scotia. Accompanying Mr. Jones was his wife and daughter.

In comparing notes on American and Canadian journalism Mr. Jones declared that the newspapers in Uncle Sam's domain are far more enterprising than the Canuck journals, not only in the gathering of news, but also in the general makeup of the papers. Mr. Jones explained, however, that Canadian papers as a rule, especially in the larger cities of King Edward's North American domain, are making rapid strides. This he attributes to the fact that American ideas are gradually being copied.

Mr. Jones, whose patriotism has never been questioned, declares that the United States is the greatest land of all. "Never again will I leave the land of the Stars and Stripes," said he to a Daily Press reporter. He admitted, however, that he had been accorded the best of treatment during his sojourn in Halifax and incidentally threw numerous bouquets at the Land of Evangeline. It is the intention of Mr. Jones to settle here permanently.

BAIRD NOT OPPOSED TO ACKERMAN FOR PLACE

A good deal of the opposition that has been working secretly since election day against the candidacy of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of Union county, for the majority leadership in the upper chamber of the incoming Legislature, failed to come out in the open yesterday in the gathering of legislators and politicians at "Governor's day" in the State House. As a result of this development the friends of Mr. Ackerman returned to their homes much more confident than they left them to come to Trenton yesterday to get a line on the probable organization of the Legislature.

State Assessor David Baird, of Camden, the acknewledged Republican leader of the South Jersey counties, who last week solicited several of Mr. Ackerman's Republican colleagues to vote against him for the majority leadership, was more cautious yesterday. He denied that he had anything political against Senator Ackerman, and insisted that he was not exerting influence to beat him for the leadership which the Republican hold-over Senators tacitly agreed to accord him when they voted him the titular honor in the closing hours of the last session on the elevation of Senator Frelinghuysen to the presiding officer's place.

Mr. Baird and Senator Ackerman had a brief talk together in a corner of the corridor during the day, but nothing transpired bearing on the situation. Frank H. Smith, chairman of the Union County Republican Committee, who was busy among the legislators and politicians ascertaining their sentiment toward Mr. Ackerman, said later that notwithstanding the opposition that had developed the Union county man would be continued as leader when the time came for his party colleagues to decide the question in caucus. After County Chairman Smith left the State House, Hamilton Kean, brother of United States Senator John Kean, appeared on the scene and talked with several Republican leaders.

Unless the demand for Ackerman's selection for the Senate leadership complicates matters for Union county's delegation, Assemblyman Pierce will also prove a strong candidate for either the speakership or the leadership.

It was evident that Moore, of Passaic, will not have the backing of even his own county for the speakership or the leadership, the latter post, according to his own confession, being his real goal.

Willie Day a Bad Boy.

William Day, fourteen years old, of Harmony street, appeared before Recorder Dolliver this morning charged with mischievous doings in a vacant house on Race street. Young Day was in a penitent mood and was released on parole, the understanding being that he report to Chief Weiss every Saturday night for a period of one year.

Anybody Lost a Wagon?

The borough police department has in its possession a topped butcher delivery wagon which was brought over there on Hallowe'en by a company of youthful celebrators from this city. The vehicle was evidently taken from a carriage repair shop. Chief Weiss is willing to turn the wagon over to its owner on receipt of satisfactory identification.

TO HOLD CHARITY BALL

Board of Governors to Conduct Social Affair for Hospital's Benefit.

MORE MONEY IS NEEDED NOW.

Monthly Report Shows That 103 Patients Were Treated at the Institution in October.

For the purpose of assisting in the raising of funds for general operating expenses at Muhlenberg Hospital, the Board of Governors has decided to hold the annual Charity Ball on the night of December 31. It was thought that a sufficient sum would be contributed by the people of Plainfield so that the charity affair would not be necessary, but according to the board, they have not.

When the board met Monday night considerable time was devoted to a discussion of finances. It was the sense that the people of Plainfield ought to increase their subscriptions and that an effort should be made to reach those who do not now contribute to the support of the institution. It was believed that there are many residents interested in the hospital who do not support the institution financially, and that no doubt a number of subscriptions could be secured from them, amounts ranging from $1 to $5 a year. In the meantime the Charity Ball will be given to secure funds for general operating expenses.

The report for October showed that 103 patients were treated at the hospital during that time, of which 56 were cured, 8 improved, 2 not improved and 5 died, leaving 32 patients remaining on November 1. There were 45 operations performed, and 62 regular dispensary patients, 203 daily visits, 10 out-of-door operations and 5 cases of contagious diseases. The total number of hospital days for the month was 1,224.

WHERE IS W. E. THOMAS? MOTHER IS ANXIOUS

Chief Weiss today received a request from Erwin Council, No. 44, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Irwin, Pa., for any information regarding the whereabouts of William E. Thomas, who has been missing from home for four years. The circular stated that the council has interested itself in the search for Thomas at the request of the latter's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, also of Irwin.

Thomas is 33 years old, weighs about 140 pounds, and has black hair. He lost an arm in an accident on the Union Pacific Railroad in 1898. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and saw service at Santiago with Company A, Fifteenth Regiment, Minnesota Volunteers. John S. Irwin, secretary of Irwin Council, will also be glad to receive any information as to Thomas.

MRS. DUPEE BORNE TO GRAVE BY NEIGHBORS

A large gathering of friends assembled in Holy Cross church this morning where the funeral service over the remains of Mrs. Josephine Hubbard Dupee was conducted by the Rev. George A. Warner. The service was of a simple character and confined largely to remarks by the rector who eulogized the Christian life of the departed.

There were many beautiful floral tributes, including tokens from the King's Daughters Circle, The Monday Afternoon Club, the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Cross church, in addition to a profusion of individual tributes.

Interment was made at Hillside, the casket being borne to the grave by neighbors of the deceased, Mayor Samuel Townsend, Henry McGee, Henry Phillips, Augustus Vandeventer, A. E. Faber and Charles Horne.

E. H. HARRIMAN'S LIFE

Described by Alexander Millar, One of His Most Intimate Friends.

HE WAS A RELIGIOUS MAN.

Grit and Determination His Characteristics—Loved the Little Memorial Church at Arden

The Men's club of the Congregational church with a large number of guests, listened to an entertaining and illuminative talk on the great financier, the late Edward H. Harriman, by Alexander Millar, secretary of the Union Pacific Railroad, and intimate friend. After Mr. Millar's speech the guests enjoyed listening to some vocal selections by Charles L. Lewis, and partook of the ice cream and cake provided by the club.

Mr. Millar's speech was purely reminiscent and because of his intimate acquaintance with Mr. Harriman and his long association and knowledge of the man, was able to give a clearer insight into his character and life. Mr. Harriman started without much encouragement as a clerk in a Wall street concern and in a comparatively short time began to make his influence felt in that Street. No man can do justice to Mr. Harriman, said Mr. Millar, but neither could the newspapers make a curiosity out of him. He shunned publicity.

Mr. Millar dwelt at length of the early struggles of Mr. Harriman's father, who was a clergyman, and told of the attmept he made to obtain a charge in California during the gold excitement in 1848. The elder Harriman preached at Stockton, but was obliged to leave there because of the outbreak of cholera. He finally located in Jersey City and became rector of St. George's church there.

Mr. Harriman began his life work at the age of fifty and it was a pity that he was unable to see the fruition of his labors. His work in upbuilding the decrepit finances of the Union Pacific Railroad after the panic of 1893 called forth the exclamation of the foremost men in New York "another Jay Gould has arrived." He could see farther into the future than any other man of his time.

In 1898 Mr. Harriman went to the Pacific coast and on this trip studied the needs of the railroads and formed his plans for the changes which have placed them on a firm financial basis. His roads clashed with the interests of James J. Hill, who was a power in the Northern Pacific and these two had a tussle which Wall Street still marvels at, and, although apparently worsted, Mr. Harriman is believed to have won a moral victory. Grit and determination were Mr. Harriman's chief characteristics and to these are credited his huge financial successes.

When asked how he got into politics Mr. Harriman replied that it was because he was appealed to in 190 directly from C. N. Bliss, who was managing the Republican campaign, for funds, and of the $250,000 raised at that time $50,000 was Mr. Harriman's direct contribution. Out of this campaign came the great controversy between Mr. Harriman and former President Theodore Roosevelt. If the correspondence in relation to this controversy could be published it would shed new light on the characters of the two men.

Mr. Harriman's religion was of the unostentatious type and was most frequently seen at his home and on the farm. His interest was great in the little church at Arden and here he did what he could for his employees, urging their loyalty to the chapel. Mr. Harriman was always chaste in his language and was a home loving man. The most touching thing noticed at the funeral was the tribute of real grief shown by these employees who familiarly called Mr. Harriman "Uncle How."

Mr. Millar illustrated the great works along the routes of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines with a map and drew especial attention to the building of the great cut off at Salt Lake and the reduction of grades on the Union Pacific. He also showed some very interesting pictures of Mr. Harriman and several noted caricatures, one of which showed Mr. Harriman as the "Colossus of Roads."

Mr. Millar was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his speech.

Married in July.

Roberson at the latter's home. The bride was formerly employed by Mr. Hopkins, at Watchung avenue, while the groom is a well-known local gardner.

PULLED A KNIFE ON KANE

Drunken Negro Gets a Jail Sentence for Threatening to Carve Waiter.

WANTED SOME MORE BREAD.

Wilkes Was Drunk and Created a Disturbance in Timbo's Restaurant Last Night.

Threatening to carve anyone who attempted to prevent him getting what he wanted in Timbo's restaurant last night Henry Wilkes, a negro, created a disturbance which finally landed him in a cell at police headquarters. Wilkes was drunk. Judge Runyon sentenced him to sixty days in the county jail.

James Kane, a waiter, in Timbo's restaurant, told the story of Wilkes' violence. He said the negro came into the restaurant and asked for a plate of beans, afterwards asking for a cup of coffee, a piece of mince pie and more bread. The "more bread" was the bone of contention. Mr. Kane told Wilkes that he had not yet eaten the portion of bread originally placed before him and that perhaps when that was consumed he would supply more. Wilkes was not satisfied with the promise and began to curse the waiter and swear that he would get even and invited Mr. Kane out to finish the argument.

As the men were about to go out into the yard to settle matters Wilkes drew a knife with a blade about six inches long, but his action was noticed and in a minute the negro was disarmed and landed on the sidewalk.

Constable Weaver attempted to arrest the man, but he broke away and was continuing the disturbance when Patrolman Messler appeared on the scene Messler managed to get the fighting black to headquarters, after a struggle and locked him up. Judge Runyon in sentencing Wilkes said that he was too dangerous a character to have around a peaceable neighborhood, and it was best to send him where he would be out of the way of temptation for a couple of months.

FISK VICE PRESIDENT OF PARK COMMISSION

The commission appointed by Governor Fort to further the plan of establishing a national park where Washington crossed the Delaware organized today by electing United States Senator Frank O. Briggs, of Trenton, president; Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, vice-president; Prof. William Libbey, of Princeton, secretary, and William L. Doyle, of Trenton, treasurer.

Governor Fort told the commission he had received assurances of the co-operation of Governor Stuart in the movement.

NOTORIOUS TOOL THIEF CAUGHT AT SO. PLAINFIED

The Lehigh Valley Railroad police at South Plainfield, made an important arrest Saturday night, when a man named Fields, who is wanted in many cities throughout the country for thieving, was picked up just as he alighted from a freight train. The man insisted that his name was "Harrigan," but when confronted by Robert Hamilton, of South Plainfield, he was promptly identified as Fields. While being held in custody, Chief P. S. Kiely, of this city, was sent for and he further confirmed the belief as to the real identity of the man.

The railroad authorities took the man to Phillipsburg, where he is said to have operated extensively and there he was identified as Fields.

Fields is best known as a tool thief and it is said that he has operated in Plainfield. It is believed that he left the train at South Plainfield to resume operations. As Fields is wanted in so many places, he stands good to serve a long time in jail. He is now being held a prisoner in Northampton county, Pa., where it is believed he will get a ten year sentence for his operations in that part of the State.

ARRESTED FOR TAPPING CITY WATER HYDRANTS

Thomas Burke, a contractor, living at 905 West Third street, was arraigned in the city court this morning before Judge Runyon on a charge of violating a city ordinance in taking water from a hydrant near his house. Burke's hearing was postponed until Friday morning in order to allow the police department to round up the witnesses in the case.

The continual fracture of this ordinance which makes it a misdemeanor to tap any of the hydrants in the city except upon specific permission from the fire commissioners or in case of an actual fire has roused the ire of the neighbors of Burke as well as the water company.

The complainants in this case are determined to make an example of the violator of the ordinance and as Burke, has, according to some, been the most frequent cause of complaint he will have to explain on Friday Burke said this morning that he, personally, had never touched a hydrant and as a matter of fact does not know how to open the "pesky" thing. However that may be it is believed that Charlie Barnes, the colored man who works for Burke, can shed some light on the subject when he tells what he knows of the case next Friday morning.

EVANGELIST WILLIAMS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN HERE

Bradford Williams, Bible reader and evangelist, whose Bible recitals and addresses have stirred scores of cities within the past ten years, has been secured by the Young Men's Christian Association for a week's campaign, beginning Sunday, November 14.

Wherever Mr. Williams has worked, there has resulted a religious awakening that has made for the good of the community. During the last week in September his meetings in Lima, Ohio, drew over 10,000 people. Frequently his visit to a city is followed by a city-wide revival.

He is a many-sided man, of unusual adaptability. He stimulates and encourages the church worker, inspires the Bible student, arouses the indifferent through his plain and searching message and his wonderful recitals; he is gladly heard by working men among whom some of his best work has been done. He often

BONFIRE GATHERS VICTIM

Five-Year-Old Fanny Donato Dying in Hospital as Result of Burns Today.

ONLY SLIGHT HOPE FOR LIFE.

Girl Stole Matches and Set Fire to a Pile of Straw in Rear of Father's Store.

Lying in a little white cot in Muhlenberg Hospital, awaiting death to relieve her sufferings, is five-year old anny Donato, a little black-eyed Italian girl, of the borough, who was nearly burned to death this morning, as the result of building a bonfire while at play. The victim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Donato, of Somerset street, and according to reports given out by the hospital authorities early this afternoon, the little girl is in a critical condition with only a slight chance of recovery.

Nicholas Donato, the girl's father, conducts a fruit store in the building situated between borough fire headquarters and Debele and Stahl's store. A few days ago he burned up a lot of straw packing while his daughter looked on. Yesterday he made another pile with the intention of burning it, but this morning, his daughter secured some matches without the knowledge of Mrs. Donato, ran to the yard and lighted the straw.

A slight breeze fanned the flames toward the girl's clothing and in an instant she was enwrapped in one solid blaze. Agonizing screams of the girl attracted the attention of her parents and neighbors who finally smothered the flames by the use or blankets, but not until the entire body and face of the victim had been scorched and blackened by the flames.

Dr. Zeglio was summoned and did what he could to give temporary relief to the child. At 10 o'clock the ambulance arrived and conveyed the girl to the hospital.

Mrs. Donato, the girl's mother, collapsed over the shock, and Dr. Zeglio was also obliged to render assistance to her.

ALLEGED CROOKEDNESS IN SCHOOLS AROUSES MT. BETHEL

At an enthusiastic meeting held at Mt. Bethel last night nearly 250 voters from Warren township were present. A committee of five was appointed to investigate the schools of the township. It was said that the State authorities would withdraw the State support of the schools unless something was done to correct the abuses in the system.

Residents of the township made speeches in favor of a thorough cleaning up and in one of the speeches it was said that Joel Codington had borrowed school funds to the amount of $800. It was further intimated that "Circles on the Square" would soon put the politicians who have mismanaged the township affairs where they belong.

ITALIAN "JUMPS" A FREIGHT AND BREAKS COLLAR BONE.

An Italian about thirty-five years old, employed in a section gang on the Lehigh Valley R. R. at Potter's Crossing, jumped off a freight train in front of the South Plainfield station, last night, and broke his collarbone. He was taken to his home, where he is now under treatment. He will recover.

The man has been in the habit of "jumping" a freight to ride home every night, and last night he misjudged the rate of speed the train was going. When he struck the ground he rolled over and over and was picked up in an unconscious condition. A physician was summoned to set the broken bone.

Burglar Scare at Oak Tree.

Chief Kiely and Patrolmen Payne and Anderson answered an appeal for help from the employes of the Judge Steel estate near Oak Tree at about 7:30 last night. Stablemen in the employ of Judge Steele thought they had burglars to deal with. When Chief Kiely and his men arrived on the scene a cordon was made around the house and the Chief with his men entered, making a thorough search. No burglars were found, neither were there any indications of any one having entered the house by forcing an entrance. They returned without seeing any suspicious characters.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

While Assemblyman vonMinden, of New Market, went down to defeat with the rest of the Republican ticket, he has just cause to congratulate himself over the fact that he polled the highest vote of any candidate on the G. O. P. Assembly ticket. The official returns give von Minden the place of honor with 8,916 votes. The fact that von Minden is popular with his constituents is apparent, because he polled 750 votes more than the head of the ticket, Judge Hicks, whom Silzer defeated for the Senatorship. George Bunting, of Piscataway, who was running for freeholder, also made a splendid run, the official returns giving him 8,930 votes. Silzer's official vote was 10,045 to Hick's 8,166; in the county clerk fight Gannon, the Democratic candidate, topped former Senator Jackson's vote 9,980 to 8,157; Mason, the Republican candidate for coroner, squeezed over the line a winner by a majority of 51 over Morgan, Democrat, the vote being 9,156 to 9,105. The total vote of the county was 19,158 exclusive of 242 rejected ballots.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The practice of playing under an assumed name has not claimed much attention thus far, for as a rule those wishing to conceal their real identity either for business or other reasons have not played well enough to attract attention. In the case of C. B. Buxton, who won the chief cup at Atlantic City on Saturday, the situation was different. As "A. S. Cameron," of Atlantic City, he attracted little notice until he reached the semi-final round. There was another golfer who played through the Atlantic City tournament incognito, but complications were avoided in his case because of his failure to win one of the "fifty-seven varieties" of prizes.

Although the scores throughout the Atlantic City tournament were almost without exception on the high side, Robert Wier, of Wilmington, a former Lakewood winner, succeeded in getting inside of 80 on the last day. It was in the final round for the first beaten eight cup which Wier won, defeating W. E. Shackleford, of the home club, returning a card of 79.

A foreign correspondent, writing on the stymie problem, suggests that there are several kinds of hazards which operate with greater unfairness that the much maligned stymie. Cows are mentioned as an especially bad example, and he instances his home for several weeks by illness, is have learned that a golf ball "dry on the tongue" provides an excellent vehicle for the removal of pieces of grass which have got wedged between their teeth.

In a recent match between teams of women of the Hackensack Golf Club and the Forest Hill Field Club over the latter's links Hackensack won by a score of 7 to 4. A return match at Hackensack will be played shortly.

BAPTIST ENDEAVORERS HOLD BUSINESS SOCIAL

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church held a business social at the home of R. C. Treadwell on First place last night. The regular business was followed by a helpful address by Rev. W. S. Greenway, of Jersey City, vice-president of the State Endeavor Union, who came in place of State President J. T. Sproull, who was detained by the illness of his wife.

Mr. Greenway gave many good hints and much wholesome advice to the society as to its own personal work and good results only can be the outcome of the talk. After the address a program of old-time music, vocal and instrumental, was given as follows:

Violin solo, "Concerto," Miss Marjorie Brown; reading, "I Want to Hear the Old Songs," Miss Florence G. Hawkins; vocal selection, "Take Me Back to Home and Mother," Miss Cora R. Brokaw, Miss Arline Brown, R. C. Treadwell, Charles Van Winkle; recitation, Mrs. Charles F. Dayton; vocal selections, "Old Black Joe," "Tenting Tonight," C. F. Dayton, R. C. Treadwell, Charles Van Winkle; duet, "Juanita," Miss Cora R. Brokaw, Miss Arline Brown; piano solo, "Blue Bells of Scotland," Mary E. Clark; vocal solos, "The Land o' the Leal," "The Low Back Car," "Off to Philadelphy," R. C. Treadwell; vocal selections, "The Old Easy Chair by the Fire," quartet; male trio, "Swanee River;" closing selection, "Auld Lang Syne," all join in singing. Miss Treadwell and Miss Clark were the accompanist. Refreshments were served during the evenign.

The affair was purely a home society one. On Friday night, November 19, the society will celebrate its twenty-first anniversary at the church, with appropriate services to whcih all societies will be invited.

RESCUE MISSION HONORS SUPT. JOHN LE MATTY

Observance of the third year of service of John LeMatty, as superintendent of Rescue Mission, was made in a fitting manner by the members of that school last night. A pleasing feature of the celebration was the presentation to the superintendent of a handsome silk umbrella by S. T. Perrin, a gift from the school. Mr. LeMatty responded in a short address, in which he referred to the progress of the work of the mission and also thanked the various pastors of the city for their co-operation in the work.

Addresses were also made by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Captain Hewitt, of the Salvation Army. A letter of regret was read from the Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, who was unable to be present.

The service also had its musical features. Mrs. John Manley and Alfred Manley, and Henry Thomas and Miss Thomas rendered duets. There were also instrumental selections by Mr. Garretson, Miss Grace LeMatty and Miss M. Burnett.

will fight the case. It has been suggested that he will make the novel plea that the man was still alive when the autopsy was performed, citing various cases of suspended animation as proof of this.

Dr. John D. Quackenboss, of New York, an hypnotic expert, when seen last night by a reporter concerning the case of Robert Simpson, said that the man could not have been killed by auto suggestion. He said that if Simpson were in a hypactic trance he might remain in that condition for several days, without visible signs of life.

"It is time that a stop was put to this practice of allowing quacks and amateurs in the art of hypnotism to conduct these experiments," said Dr. Quackenbos. "It can only lead to more such cases, and only qualified physicians who are skilled in the science of hypnotism should be permitted to make use of it. I do not know the conditions in the Simpson case, beyond what I have read in the papers, but from what I can understand Simpson died as the result of the severe strain to which he was subjected when forced to sustain the weight of a man's body on his chest. The autopsy discloses that he died from a rupture of the aorta, and I believe that it will be found that this rupture was caused by the physical strain he underwent."

Theodore Boretty, who has been connected with the Italian mission work at Bound Brook and Raritan, has given that up and is now devoting his whole time to the Italian mission work in this city. He is earnest, has the respect of everyone and is doing good work.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church met in Vincent chapel yesterday afternoon and discussed plans for the winter months. Tomorrow afternoon the society will hold a tea and sale at the home of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, on Washington avenue, from 3 until 6 o'clock.

BUTTERICK PATTERNS and THE DELINEATOR FOR NOVEMBER

THE OLD PIANO —IN— THE OLD HOME

In the old days, when grandmother was a girl, when there were none but square pianos made and only a limited number of makers, each instrument was the handiwork of the men whose name it bore. They built their pianos with their own hands, personally selecting each bit of material, taking a pride in their work, mindful of every little detail that is necessary to make a perfect instrument.

MASTERS IN THEIR PROFESSION

In the old days, when grandmother was a girl, as far back as 1839, stood the makers of the

and today, after the lapse of 30, 40 and even 50 years, in many an old home you find one of those famous old pianos, built when grandmother was a girl, its tone still sweet and sympathetic, the case work of beautiful mahogany or rosewood in perfect condition. It has stood the test of time, its 50 years of constant use—indisputable evidence of the honesty and skill of its makers.

FOR SEVENTY LONG YEARS

the Hallet & Davis has occupied its proud position at the very apex of piano fame. The Hallet & Davis Grands, Uprights and Player-Pianos of today represent the skill, energy, knowledge and unswerving adherence to every honest detail of three generations of piano-makers, its name a synonym for high character and worth. A Hallet & Davis in the home is an evidence of refined taste.

The Hallet & Davis costs little more than most pianos; it is worth many times the difference. Its 70 years of preferment is surely a safe guide.

Frederick Mathushek, the founder of our house, was born at the Palace of Manheim, Germany, June 9, 1814. Before he reached the age of seventeen years he had made several improvements in pianos. In 1840 he came to America, where he devoted his life to the manufacture and improvement of the piano-forte. Unselfishly he has given to the world the benefit of his wonderful inventive genius, for many of his valuable inventions were not patented, but were given for the benefit of his craft and will be found embodied in the best makes of pianos throughout the world.

HOME DEPARTMENT HOLDS AN ENJOYABLE SOCIAL

The recently-organized Home department of Hope chapel Sunday-school held a social at the chapel last night. There was every indication that the department will be a big factor in the Sunday-school work. The program was an exceptionally good one. It included addresses by G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of the school; G. Stuart Simons and John Leal; piano selections by Mrs. L. R. Howard; readings and stories by Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, a talented elocutionist, and songs by Thomas Hendry and Judge William N. Runyon.

Mr. Condict spoke of the Sunday-school convention at Cranford last month. He said that he believed the Home department to be one of the most important in Sunday-school work and felt sure of great results from the one at the chapel. An encouraging feature was that in its short existence over one hundred members have joined the department.

Mrs. L. R. Howard rendered a pleasing piano solo and had to respond to an encore. Thomas Hendry, tenor of the church choir, sang some excellent Scotch ballads.

G. Stuart Simons then made a short address in which he urged the members if possible to attend Sunday-school, where they would find a warm welcome awaiting them. Judge William N. Runyon entertained the company with several songs in his characteristic pleasing manner. He was obliged to respond to many encores.

Speaking on the motives actuating Sunday-school work, John Leal was listened to with considerable interest. Mrs. G. Stuart Simons gave an original interpretation of Longfellow's "Evangeline," and in response to an encore gave "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," and "The Foolish Little Maiden with the Foolish Little Bonnet."

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Donald McInnes, superintendent, Mrs. F. A. Weber, Mrs. James Busby and Mrs. Willard H. Cook. During the evening ice cream and cake were served. Judge William N. Runyon's Bible class held a business meeting in another part of the chapel and at the conclusion was invited to participate in the social.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

On behalf of the Providence A. C. I wish to let the facts why we did not play the Plainfield F. C. Saturday known. It was because three of our men were hurt playing and two are sick and unable to play; that leaves us but six men to play. I tried to get five men but I could not, so I sent a man up Friday night to see the manager of the Plainfield F. C. and cancel the game, and he told me that he had done so and I thought that it was all right. I am sorry that they were so disappointed as we played them on October 2 and received one of the fairest and squarest games this season.

Hoping that you will give this space in your paper, I remain

Yours truly,
J. COLLUM,
Manager Providence A. C., 72 Mott street, Newark, N. J.

Newark, Nov. 10, 1909.

The officials of the Plainfield Association Football Club deny absolutely that any representative of the Providence A. C. came here Friday night and cancelled the game, and furthermore they received no word of explanation. They say that three or four members of the Providence A. C. were on the grounds ready to play, but were unable to account for the absence of the rest of the team.

Charity Organization Appeal.

The Charity Organization Society plans as usual this year to give Thanksgiving dinners to the poor. It is a great assistance to those who have it in charge to know in advance what resources are to be relied upon. All who are inclined to help with this good work are requested to make donations of money early and to let the organization know very soon what they may count on in donations of food. Second-hand clothing, shoes, etc., are also solicited. Communicate with the Charity Organization Society at its rooms, 544 West Front street. Telephone No. 103.

Entertained Sunday-school Class.

Mrs. Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, entertained her Sunday-school class last evening. The seven young women present were the Misses Hope VanSickle, May Pruden, Bertha Lindsay, Juliette Hill, Delia Dufford, Francis Hand, Anna Boss, with only one member absent. The young women spent the evening making fancy bags for a Christmas box to be sent to a western school by all the different classes of the Sunday-school. Refreshments were served before their departure.

Will Hold a Musicale.

The Brightside Circle of The King's Daughters, will hold a musicale at the home of Mrs. Robert W. Barnes, 22 Mountain avenue, Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The proceeds will be for the work of the King's Daughters.

LACK OF FUNDS HALTS DUNELLEN SCHOOL BOARD

Lack of funds is a severe handicap to the school board as was demonstrated at the regular monthly meeting of that body last night, when it found itself unable to carry out the suggestion of County Superintendent H. Brewster Willis relative to the employment of an additional teacher for delinquent teachers. The members approved of the idea but found themselves powerless to act decisively owing to an empty treasurer. The matter, however, was referred to the teachers committee, and the matter will be taken up at the next meeting.

A change was made in the chapel schedule. Instead of five assemblies, of twenty minutes duration, the board voted to have three assemblies a week, for half hour periods. It was the general idea that twenty minutes was too short a period to conduct the exercises in a proper manner. This arrangement will also give more time to study.

Bills amounting to $1,600 were ordered paid. A resolution was also passed authorizing the clerk to borrow that amount from the First National Bank of Dunellen, in anticipation of taxes, to meet the indebtedness.

Superintendent Rentchler reported that special Thanksgiving exercises will be held in the school on Wednesday afternoon, November 24. In the absence of Clerk Hamley, W. S. Frederick, filled the latter's position.

COUNTY OFFICIALS FILE THEIR BONDS

County Clerk James C. Calvert and County Registrar Frank Smith, both re-elected, were sworn into office yesterday by Judge Edward S. Atwater at Elizabeth. Each furnished a bond for $25,000. Calvert's bondsmen were John W. Whelan, Hamilton F. Kean and George T. Parrott. Those responsible for the registrar are Nathan R. Leavitt, Henry Krouse, David C. Smalley, William Newcorn, Charles H. Hand.

Sheriff Robert J. Kirkland furnished a bond for $20,000. The signers were Senator John Kean, John W. Whelan, Richard T. Potts, William H. Rankin, John P. Weber. After the middle of November both the county clerk and registrar's office will be conducted on a salary basis, each getting $5,500.

The Go-Devil.

Instead of employing hundreds of men with picks to dig up streets for the purpose of resurfacing them, the city of Cincinnati now uses a 15,000-pound rake, which enjoys the gentle name of "go-devil." When dragged along by a steam roller it does the work of the laborers with their picks in about one-fifth of the time and 50 per cent. better. The big steel teeth dig into the street six inches deep and three feet wide, and travel about twenty-five feet a minute. It is estimated that the machine saves the work of hundreds of laborers and pays for itself in every two days' work.—Popular Mechanics.

Detects Blood on Steel.

A process has been devised recently by a French scientist for the detection of blood on steel and other opaque substances, even when they are not to be seen by the human eye. The light of a Welsbach burner is concentrated upon the part of the object under examination through a tube which is placed obliquely above the object glass and which carries an iris diaphragm, a condensing lens and a total reflection prism. A photographic camera may be substituted for the eye-piece.

Odlest Postmaster in New Jersey.

Keansburg, Nov. 10.—In point of service, Mrs. Eliza S. Ramsay, of this village, is said to be the oldest postmistress in New Jersey. When the postoffice was established here, twenty-five years ago, Mrs. Ramsay was placed in charge and has held the position ever since. Her husband, William W. Ramsay, is a probation officer.

Attending Reunion.

Fire Chief Doane, Captain Hand and William C. Smith and Comrade Lyon are in attendance at the reunion of the Eleventh New Jersey Volunteers at Dover today. The trip to Dover was made in Captain Smith's automobile.

Freeholders to Reorganize.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders will meet January 1 at Somerville for re-organization. There was a regular meeting of the board yesterday, but nothing outside of routine business was considered.

Pearsall a Big Winner.

Clifford E. Pearsall, of Westfield, made a good sized fortune in the cotton market last week, clearing up close to $100,000 on the jump. Pearsall was former editor of the Union County Standard.

DNUELLEN AND VICINITY.

Christmas tide's approach was heralded in the parlors of the Presbyterian church all day yesterday when the members of the Sewing Circle, and their friends gathered, to make garments and toys, to fill barrels and boxes, which will be shipped as Yuletide gifts to poor children in isolated missionary posts in the United States. It was the first meeting of the circle for this purpose and there was a big turnout. During the day Mrs. Abram Lyon, of New Brunswick, gave an interesting talk on home missionary work. The pastor, Rev. Ernest H. Brown, was also present and assisted the ladies in their work. Luncheon was served at one o'clock. Mrs. Silas Naylor was chairman of the committee and among her assistants were Mrs. M. L. Rarick, Mrs. R. R. Wynkoop, Mrs. Wilson S. Frederick, Mrs. W. E. Terry, Mrs. E. R. Brown and others.

The board of trustees of the First Presbyterian church will meet tonight.

TAFT WILL BE ASKED TO PARDON MAGOWAN.

Trenton, Nov. 10.—An appeal will be made to President Taft for the pardon of Frank T. Magowan, the mail clerk, who on Saturday was sentenced to fifteen months' imprisonment at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., for robbing the mails. Magowan will remain in Pittsburg, where he was arrested, for several days before he will be taken to Leavenworth. This is a government prison. He will, in all probability, be given clerical work.

The sentence was imposed last Saturday.

When Magowan was called to the bar by Judge Young he staggered slowly up and asked that he be permitted to return to this city and arrange matters for the future. He seemed to realize that there was a prison term for him, and he was unable to stand the strain. In passing sentence Judge Young severely lectured Magowan for depriving the poor persons of the money sent through the mails, and told him that he would take into consideration the appeals made by the men who asked for clemency. "Therefore," he said, "the full penalty will not be imposed on you, but the sentence of the court is that you be committed to the government prison at Leavenworth, Kan., for a term of fifteen months.

At the words of the judge, both Magowan and William M. Jamieson, his counsel and faithful friend, dropped into their chairs and wept. Magowan was taken to the county jail some time later. Mr. Jamieson accompanied him there. Jamieson assured Magowan that he would not stop at the sentence, but would make an effort to have him pardoned by President Taft.

AT WORK ON BUST OF EX-STATE SECRETARY.

Former Secretary of State Henry C. Kelsey, of Trenton, who for many years was a Democratic leader in New Jersey, is giving frequent sittings to H. C. Mueller, president of the Mueller Mosaic Tile Company, and a modeler of national reputation, who is at work on a life-size bust of Mr. Kelsey.

When completed the bust will be presented by Mr. Kelsey to the Trenton School of Industrial Arts, to be installed in the $100,000 home which he is building, and will give free of debt to the institution as a memorial to his late wife, Mrs. Prudence Townsend Kelsey.

BLOCKED JAIL DELIVERY.

Belvidere, Nov. 10.—Sheriff Weider is having plenty of trouble with a youth named O'Brien, who it is alleged, robbed Pursel's store, in Phillipsburg, and he now has him locked in a cell by himself. The sheriff learned that O'Brien had a scheme to escape from jail, and that he and a couple of his associates in crime intended to attack him, knock him down, and get the keys of the jail, and thus make their escape. One of the prisoners told of the plan and the sheriff prepared himself for whatever might come.

On Friday evening he entered the jail holding in his hand a big revolver, loaded to the muzzle, and as he stepped in the door the trio apparently awaited his coming, but when they saw the gun they shot into the corner and did not show any fight. The sheriff then ordered them to their cells, and they obeyed.

Show to Winter at Fair Grounds.

Trenton, Nov. 10.—The final installment of the Buffalo Bill Wild West show reached the Interstate fair grounds Sunday. The grounds have been leased as the winter quarters of the men, horses, vehicles and other paraphernalia connected with the show. The outfit comprised 1,400 men, several hundred horses and fifty-six cars. The show appeared for the last time this season on Saturday at Richmond, Va., and immediately at the close of the evening performance the men and their equipment were shipped to this city. The show will remain at the fair grounds until March 17, when the season will be opened. Stable room at the fair grounds has been rented for 170 horses, the balance being shipped to Coatesville, Pa., which has always been used as the wintering quarters for a great amount of the live stock of the show. The Indian ponies will be sent to the Pine Hill agency in Nebraska.

Express Company Quarters Ablaze.

The new quarters of the Adams Express Company, on Union street, Elizabeth, had a narrow escape Sunday afternoon from destruction by fire. The blaze originated from a defective flue, and when the firemen reached the building it was filled with smoke. Considerable of the flooring on the second floor had to be ripped up to get at the fire. The damage may reach $200, principally to the building, which is owned by the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Fire Company for Branchville.

The borough of Branchville is organizing a fire company of twenty men. Councilman Wilbur F. Dye, formerly fire chief of Pawling, N. Y., is picking the men. Apparatus and 700 feet of hose, the appropriation for which was voted at the late election, have been ordered. Mayor Noah H. Hopkins, who owns a lot of the real estate in the business portion of the town, has offered to give the necessary land for a firehouse.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This in Plainfield.

Scores of Plainfield people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Robert Love, 44 Duer street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For eight or nine years I was a victim of kidney complaint. Every cold I contracted, settled in my kidneys and caused my back to ache severely. Any heavy lifting or much standing gave me additional pain. In the morning upon arising, my back was very lame and this did not disappear until I exercised for some time. I doctored and used several so-called kidney cures, but it was only a waste of money. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. When I had taken about half the contents of the box, my condition was greatly improved and before long the pain left me entirely. I will always stand ready to speak a good word for Doan's Kidney Pills."

PATENTED

This is the Square Pot of the

that saves fuel and dollars and will heat the whole of a house. In every great engine and under every big boiler you'll find a square fire box. Ever noticed it? Well—we have adapted that principle to our furnaces. A square pot gives a clean, hot, clinkerless fire without waste of fuel. It requires the least attention and responds instantly. BOYNTON furnaces only have square fire-pots. It is our patent. There are other improvements. A square ash pit that improves the draft and makes removal of ashes easier. A pure air supply—for health's sake. A dust flue that saves the rooms above.

Look up the BOYNTON dealer in your town and talk it over.

There are BOYNTON heating plants of all kinds. Ask about our Round or Sectional Boilers for Steam or Hot Water. Also Ranges.

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"Well, you see, Mrs. Jenny—may I call you that? They all do. I am an old bachelor and used to doing things for myself. You don't mind?"

"Certainly not. I have so much to do I never seem to get a chance to do any one thing thoroughly."

Jenny looked at the alarm clock.

"Father will be home soon for dinner now," she announced, "and Joe, my brother-in-law."

Moran arrived, worn out, in a vile humor. Jenny introduced the new boarder to him.

The baker's assistant looked Mr. Jackson over with listless curiosity, which changed to ill concealed hostility when he saw the neatness of the newcomer's clothes and his well kept hands. He himself had been like that once! Moreover, the man had an insufferable air of distinction. Who and what was he to look like that? Nothing but a failure, endeavoring to find a new foothold in life.

"'Mr.' does not go down here."

Moran resolved to establish the proper relations at once.

"I am Moran," he said, "and you are Jackson. 'Mr.' does not go down here."

"All right, Moran. Jackson it is."

Joe arrived, having lost Jenny's $2, but cheerful as ever.

The new boarder interested him, and he began to make his acquaintance, his method being the not unusual one of asking innocently impertinent questions.

Haggleton saw another opportunity, and, as usual, he took it. He talked to Joe, but at Moran.

Yes; Haggleton was looking for a job. No; he had not saved a penny out of his failure.

But Moran snorted.

"Once you are down and out you stay down and out," he snarled.

"Well, I will try, anyhow."

"You won't get the opportunity," persisted Moran.

"I shan't wait for it. I will create it."

"Stuff! Once you are down and out you might as well quit. The capitalists have framed it all up."

Haggleton listened attentively, analyzing the man's arguments as they flowed from his now fluent lips. It was the first time that he heard the voice of social discontent direct, instead of giving it a hasty moment of attention as it expressed itself in press reports or magazine articles.

What struck him at once about Moran's tirade was that the man placed upon the shoulders of the rich not only the responsibility for all the wrongs of society, but also the duty of righting them without any assistance from him and his class.

Joe became impatient.

"Stop gassing, Moran," he said tersely. "I always tell him that he's smoking the wrong dope, Mr. Jackson."

"What would you do if you were rich, Mr. Caffrey?" asked Haggleton.

"Oh, say, you just watch me. I'd be at the track every day at 2:45, in the grand stand. Wouldn't I wear the sporty clothes! I would put a thousand on every race, one, two, three, and a thousand straight on every hundred to one shot."

"You would soon be rid of your money, Mr. Caffrey."

"Not me. Say, do you think that the millionaires haven't got the races fixed, like everything else? They know the owners and the trainers and the jockeys and the starters—oh, say, it's a pipe."

Joe continued his picture of riches beyond the dreams of avarice:

"Not but that I would not own a million dollar yacht, like John J.," he continued.

Moran sprang up.

"The thief," he shouted, "the robber, the bloodsucker, the murderer! He has made me what I am. He has [illegible]

YOU CAN ORDER your COAL by TELEPHONE

COAL OFFICES are apt to be in out-of-the-way locations, as on railroad sidings, etc. The telephone in the home saves trouble, and in case of sudden need of fuel, much time, in the ordering of coal.

This is but one of many ways in which the home telephone saves steps and trouble daily. All the needs of the household, as groceries, meats, plumbing, baggage express, etc., can be ordered conveniently and quickly.

The reasonable cost of residence telephone service places it within the reach of all.

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

ISN'T THAT FAIR?

EASY CREDIT 6 months, 1 year, or 1½ year's time to pay—or 10 per cent off for cash.

The man choked.

"His daughter's husband, my brother-in-law," explained Joe very calmly, "was killed at a grade crossing by a train on a road in which John J. has a lot of stock."

"Dinner," said Jenny tersely.

The three men rose, drew up their chairs to the table and sat down. Haggleton made a pretense of eating, but barely touched anything. He still devoted himself to Moran. That chance reference to work in the bakery must not be allowed to pass. At last he won from him the admission that a helper in the bakery was sick and that a substitute was needed. A promise to recommend him for the temporary employment was extracted.

And so Haggleton was to be a baker like Moran!

The millionaire turned to Jenny.

"That's fine coffee," he said. "I used to keep house for myself after a fashion, and, do you know, I am just like a woman—I take an interest in prices. What do you pay for this coffee?"

"Eighteen cents," she said, "for a half pound."

"Already ground, I suppose."

"Yes."

"H'm! A pound of good coffee in the bean costs only 28 cents. Ah, yes, we poor people waste a lot of money!"

Moran stared at him.

"Waste money?"

"Yes, sir. I believe there's more extravagance down here than in Fifth avenue. Now, Mrs. Jenny, what do you pay for coal?"

"Fifteen cents a bucketful."

"How much in a bucketful?"

"You can search me."

"Twenty-five pounds," said Joe.

"Twenty-five pounds," calculated Haggleton. "That's eighty bucketfuls to a ton. Eighty times fifteen is $12. You pay twice as much for coal as Haggleton does."

"He buys it by the ton," growled Moran. "Where would we put a ton of coal?"

"And where would we get $6 all at once to pay for it?" asked Joe.

"If Mrs. Jenny will allow me," replied Haggleton. "I'll find a place for the coal one of these days, and we may think up some scheme of buying it by the ton."

Jenny's brain was busily at work after dinner as she turned one statuette after the other, her brush rapidly passing over their surfaces. She thought of Philip. Would he come that night? No, of course not! He was over there at the boarding house with the woman he loved. Her heart contracted with pain. Oh, if only she had not— Perhaps, if that episode in her life had never been, he might—She sighed with resignation, bent her head low as the tears blurred her vision and went on with her work. Yet hope would not be denied.

Philip did not come.

Gentle arrived at 9 to see how the newcomer was getting along. The two had a long talk on social conditions, temperate, sensible.

Jenny rose at a quarter to 10, worn out, and went to bed. Gentle went soon afterward.

Left alone, Moran and Haggleton did not find a word to say to each other. The millionaire needed fresh air, but the suggestion of an open window was curtly vetoed.

Moran got up and began to undress. He slipped into bed, retaining his trousers.

Haggleton stretched himself luxuriously between the clean, fresh sheets upon the hard mattress. It had been a busy day for him, and he felt tired, but he could not sleep. Too much had happened!

He had found his son!

He had started life anew!

He had accepted the challenge to the greatest battle of his career!

And he must learn to do his loving himself!

PLAINFIELD ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL CLUB'S STAR ELEVEN

Plainfield Soccer Eleven.

Association football or soccer was a weakling in local sportdom until three years ago, when the Plainfield Association Football Club was organized in the west end by enthusiasts of that branch of sport. Since that time the game has been on the boom and Plainfield has taken a front rank as one of the most important soccer centers in the east.

Glancing over the appended records of the local team it is readily seen that at the beginning the club encountered the usual ups and downs, but a second glance will also show that every season shows an improvement. So far the 1909-10 season bids fair to be the banner period of the Plainfield club.

Football is not the only feature of the organization, as the club has its social attractions too. The headquarters of the club is at 949 South Second street. The interior has all the comforts of "club life" and for the amusement of its members there are pool and billiards tables, a piano and other attractions.

The winter season is now on in full blast with various competitions among the members. Just at present a pinochle and biliard tourney is providing keen competition for honors, and other indoor contests will be inaugurated later on. Several social events are also on the program for the future.

The club was organized in September, 1908, with about a dozen members, and now the enrollment is nearing the 75 mark. The officers are: President, Tom Chamberlain; vice-president, Fred Cross; secretary, L. Gould; treasurer, John Cray.

MR. AND MRS. J. S. PRAY OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James Shores Pray, of East Sixth street, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their marriage, last night, when a company of twenty-five enjoyed the festivities of the occasion. The home was attractively decorated with flowers, smilax and plants.

The couple received a great many gifts, including tinware, cut-glass and Dresden china. They received in the parlor beneath a large bell, made of a tin pail and covered with flowers. The favors were wedding cake in tin boxes. Martin Stutsman, son of Mrs. Pray, furnished plenty of amusement for the company by appearing in the role of a magistrate, ostensibly to re-marry the couple.

During the evening refreshments were served and an informal musical program was enjoyed. The guests were from this city, Westfield, Bradley Beach and other distant points. Mr. and Mrs. Pray were married on East Sixth street ten years ago yesterday and have continued to reside here ever since.

Mr. Pray is prominent in Masonic circles here, being a member of the Blue Lodge, the Chapter and Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T. Mrs. Pray is also a member of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Trinity Commandery.

FIRST AMIESITE ROAD COMPLETED IN THIS CITY

The work of laying Amiesite pavement on Jefferson avenue, between Front street and Green brook, has just been completed. This thoroughfare, which is located between the city and the borough of Dunellen, was for years in bad condition on account of the light, sandy soil and the heavy trucking.

Finally, the counties of Union and Middlesex, acting jointly, took charge of it as a county road and awarded the contract for the work to Warren B. Travell, of this city. The work has been especially interesting to many as this is the first stretch of Amiesite pavement laid in this vicinity.

The difference between this pavement and others is that in this construction all the stones of the upper course are thoroughly coated with an asphaltic mixture before being spread on the road. The State and county officials are much pleased with this type of road and the prospects are that it will prove popular with the public throughout the State.

GAS ENGINES FOR SAFETY.

Explosions and fires are destructive and expensive.

Gas engines provide a power drive which is not only handy and economical, but absolutely safe.

There is none of the dangers attending the operation of a gas engine which one is likely to encounter, for instance, with a gasolene engine.

There is no danger of a boiler exploding, as in the case of a steam plant, for a gas engine uses no boiler.

Fire insurance companies recognize the safeness of gas engines by classifying them as less hazardous risks than gasolene or steam driven plants. This means lower rates and rates are based upon practical experience, not sentiment.

Gas engines will do your work well; will do it economically, and are never a source of danger. Are you interested.

LUMBERJACKS' SKY PILOT

Rev. Frank Higgins Tells of Evangelistic Work in the Lumber Camps.

IN THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

All Sorts of Hardships and Trials of a Missionary to the Lumbermen in Minnesota.

Rev. Frank Higgins, who carries the title, "sky pilot to the lumberjacks," in connection for his religious labors in the lumber camps of the Northwest, gave a vivid account of his work before an interested audience at the Crescent Avenue church last night. Those who are familiar with conditions in the lumber camps expected to behold a giant in Higgins. In this the audience was not mistaken, as the lumber camp evangelist is a round stocky man.

Mr. Higgins in his remarks refrained from making direct plea for financial aid to carry on his work but the audience was thrilled to such a degree with his narrative and earnestness that a voluntary collection of bills of almost every denomination were forced on him. This display of liberality brought forth a profuse expression of thanks from the speaker.

In relating incidents connected with his work of soul saving among the lumbermen the speaker told some stirring tales, which showed that it is necessary for preachers to mix the Gospel truth with fisticuffs to get his subjects to accept he gospel. In reality Mr. Higgins contended that it is really essential for a successful preacher to be a boxer in that country.

A Daily Press reporter in a talk with the lumberjack discovered him to be a clean cut athlete, imbued with a fearless nature, and thoroughly earnest in his work. Unrolling a map of the United States, he gave a graphic account of his work and experiences.

"This is my country"—he pointed to Minnesota—"west of Duluth for 200 miles and south of the line for 200 miles. In that square nothing but pines and loggers, and loggers and pines.

"It's a great pioneer's industry. Minnesota, you know, produces 2,000,000 feet of lumber a year, most of it right in this 200 miles square. There are 20,000 men in those woods many of them American farmer boys, all single, fine, strong fellows.

"It was to, in part, pay the debt, it seemed to me, society owed to them that I jumped into this work.

"At first I had some difficulty in making the boys take me right. The saloons have gone wherever the lumberjack goes and the proprietors curse out the missionary to the men the moment they hear of him.

"I'd packed my hymn books by dog sledge in mid-winter and was trying to hold a prayer and song service in, I think, the Clayton Lumber Company's camp not far from the Canada line.

"Now, the lumberjack is a decent, courteous boy when he's sober. But there was a French-Canadian named Joe who, whenever I started to talk, just out of liquor and mischievous started in to grind an axe. My congregation was going into guffaws. I just had to go down and remonstrate with him.

"Before I knew it we were fighting all over the floor. Well, I beat him. And there were five men joined the church next Sunday, and I never had any more trouble in any of that surrounding country after that.

"I found the work of a missionary not at all simple. The task I set myself was to become not merely the clergyman, but the friend, doctor, teacher—everything I could be to the lumberjack.

"It was by doing anything like that I could that I got known as a man who could take care of myself and of my friends, the men. I took medicated gauze and splints and carbolic acid with me and treated their wounds and sores; I got them out of jail; I went to the front for them and continually swung through the camps, sometimes against the opposition of the owners, preaching, holding it up to the men to live clean men's lives.

"And so I got to be known as the lumberman's sky pilot, the preacher that never turned a lumberjack down. My work began to flourish."

Mr. Higgins passed his hand over the powerful square jaw and his gray eyes twinkled.

"Some of my asistants will seem rather unusual fellows to you in the East. Just as, I suppose, my methods were and had to be. The first thing a preacher or any one else must be in the north woods is a man of his hands. They like a man.

"John Sornberger was a man. He was hired more for his fighting ability than anything else. He had a ring roped off at the end of the bar, and when the "jacks" came to town

VETERANS REUNION TO BE HELD HERE IN 1910

Plainfield will be the scene of the 1910 reunion of the Eleventh Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers. This was decided at the reunion of the regiment at Dover yesterday, which was attended by Chief Doane, Captains W. C. Smith and Captain William Hand, of this city. In the field against Plainfield were Phillipsburg and Morristown.

In the election of officers Captain William Hand, of this city, was elected second vice-president. The other selections were as follows: President, Colonel John Schnoover, Trenton; firse vice-president, Alonzo B. Searing, of Dover; secretary, Bishop N. Morris, of Kearney; treasurer, Captain Charles Oliver, of New Brunswick; chaplain, Rev. T. C. Cline, of Phillipsburg.

EVERTON IS UNABLE TO GET A BONDSMAN

"Professor" Arthur Everton, the hypnotist, whose subject, Robert Simpson, of Newark, died on the stage of the Somerville theatre Monday night, failed to get bail yesterday, and is held in the Somerset county jail.

According to a statement of Prosecutor John F. Reger, of Somerset county, bail probably will be fixed today at from $10,000 to $15,000.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark has been engaged as Everton's counsel and on consultation with Prosecutor Reger, it was decided to go before Judge Louis H. Schenck, of the County Court, and have Everton released on bail.

Judge Schenck was away yesterday in New Brunswick and could not be reached. When asked as to what further steps would be taken in the matter, Prosecutor Reger said:

"Everton will be held for the next Somerset County Grand Jury, which convenes December 21, but I will not oppose Everton being released on bail, provided a sufficient amount is named. The amount of bail probably will be fixed at $10,000 or $15,000.

Friends of Everton were in Somerville yesterday seeking his release, and probably will be able to get a bondsman.

Everton and the witness held against him, Edward Thompson, of 291 Bank street, Newark, are together in one large room on the second floor of the jail. Every consideration is shown them by the sheriff and his deputy, and the general feeling throughout the town is sympathy for the man.

When interview yesterday Everton said:

"I am perfectly satisfied with the outcome of the autopsy. According to the autopsy it proves that Simpson did not die when in the cataleptic state, but, as I have said before, when I said to him after he was stood on his feet, 'Awake, Bob,' he opened his eyes, and it was at this moment he collapsed and fell to the floor.

"I certainly feel heartbroken over the occurrence, but it is one of those strange coincidences in life we are not accountable for."

"Are you still going to continue the business of hypnotism?" was asked.

"I am not in a position at this time to say what I will do," he answered. "I will say I will follow up the art; if not for business reasons I will as a study. I'll feel very much better when I get out of here, and I hope it won't be long."

HUNTERS OBTAIN LICENSE FOR COMING RABBIT SEASON.

Many sportsmen living in the vicinity of South Plainfield took out hunting licenses yesterday in preparation for the opening of the rabbit season on Monday. Among those who received licenses was George Teeple. Although eighty-five years old he still enjoys a hunting trip each season.

The local hunters will not have as much territory to hunt upon as in former seasons, because of the game preserve which takes in the Myer property, the Holly Wood farm, a part of dismal swamp and several smaller farms.

STIRLING POSTOFFICE LOOTED BY BURGLARS

Burglars visited Stirling last night, broke into the postoffice and secured booty amounting to about $100 in cash and stamps. The intruders during their work pushed over a box, the noise of which awakened Mrs. Clara Mondich, the postmistress.

When the burglars heard Mrs. Mondich coming down stairs, they stopped operations and rode off in a carriage. They also took with them a pocketbook, belonging to Mrs. Mondich's daughter which contained a commutation ticket and some loose change.

The burglary was committed shortly before 2 o'clock. Previous to visiting the postoffice entrance was gained to the blacksmith shop of Joseph Germershauser. There they secured the tools with which they pried the door of the postoffice open. The men made their escape and the Stirling authorities up to noon had no clue to their identity.

TOOL THIEF CONFESSES

"Gilbert J. Fields," the Prisoner, taken to New York to Recover Booty.

WANTED HERE BY THE POLICE.

A Promise of Immunity Given in Return for Turning State's Evidence It Is Said.

Gilbert Jerome Fields, the notorious tool and brass journal thief, who was arrested at South Plainfield, Saturday night by Special Officer Metzheiser, of that place, and who was later taken to Easton, Pa., for identification, was taken to New York city yesterday, where he is being detained. He was accompanied by Detective Jacob Johnson, of Northampton county, Pa; Special Officer Jerry Holly, of Phillipsburg, and Special Officer Metzheiser.

Before leaving Easton, the third degree was used on Fields and he made a confession. He agreed, it is said, that if he was not prosecuted, he would do all in his power to secure the return of stolen tools and also turn State evidence and help the authorities to find other thieves alleged to be implicated with him in his operations.

Through the assistance of Fields, a large portion of stolen booty was found in New York and returned to the rightful owners. It is expected that other goods will be found today. The arrest of Fields by Officer Metzheiser was a clever bit of detective work. He had a photograph of the former and recognized him as soon as he got off the train at South Plainfield. Fields denied that he was the man wanted and was persistent in this until Sunday, when he confessed.

Fileds, who is sixty-two years of age, is a Scotchman by birth. He was last arrested five years ago at Easton, Pa., where he served a term for stealing tools and brass journals. He has been out of jail two years. He is considered one of the most clever thieves in the business and he has given the police no end of trouble.

After being taken to Easton Fields was lined up in front of fifteen carpenters, who had suffered the loss of tools, but none were able to identify the man. Later a sufficient amount of evidence led the man to make a confession. It is believed that Fields operated in this city and the local police have interested themselves in the case.

ITALIAN GIRL DIES AS RESULT OF BURNS

Fanny Donato, the five-year-old Italian girl, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Muhlenberg Hospital as a result of the burns she received from a bonfire she built in the rear of her father's fruit store on Somerset street at 10 o'clock in the morning. Death was not unexpected as stated in yesterday's Daily Press. When the victom was admitted to the hospital everything was done to ease her sufferings and the hospital authorities refused to give the grief stricken parents more than a slight ray of hope.

The funeral service will be held at the home of the parents tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made at St. Mary's cemetery.

COLLIER NON-SUITED IN DISTRICT COURT

Several small cases were decided in the District court this morning by Judge William Newcorn and among them that of Asa Collier, who sued Arthur De Brigard for alleged wages and money loaned. Mr. Collier was non-suited. Judgments were entered against William N. Gray on claim of George W. Cole; against Benjamin Farbman and Morris Farbman in favor of Robert L. Cline, for $34.75 and $37.75 respectively. Francis J. Blatz was counsel for Mr. Cole and Mr. Cline.

Judgments were also entered against Otto & Stites for $80.71 in favor of the Broadway Bicycle and Auto Supply Co. and for $72.67 in favor of the Hayes Rubber Co. The claim of the Phenix Cheese Co. for $44.87 against Robert and Krewson was decided in favor of the former, as was the claim of John Jamison against Ewing G. Hulling for $96.34. Harry C. Runyon appeared for the plaintiffs in these four cases.

The suit of Mrs. Sarah Neal to recover wages due from Louis Goldstein, $14, was decided in favor of Mrs. Neal. Mr. Runyon also appeared for the plaintiff in this case.

PAL OF HIGHWAYMAN?

George Valentine; Fakir, Arrested in Woolworths May Have Companion.

MRS. C. E. HORNE, A VICTIM.

Handbag Snatched Near Her Home, Highwayman Escapes—Valentine Is Held.

George Valentine, thirty-nine years old, who gave his address as Paterson, was taken into custody by Patrolman Flatley yesterday while acting in a suspicious manner in Woolworth's store on Front street. This morning Judge Runyon sentenced Valentine to twenty days in the county jail in order that his record may be investigated by the police.

Coincident with the arrest of Valentine, Mrs. Charles E. Horne, of 64 Willow avenue, North Plainfield, was the victim of a highwayman who snatched her handbag and ran. It is believed that Valentine and the handbag thief were traveling together and it is in hopes of getting the other man that Valentine is held.

On Valentine were found several phony rings set with brilliant glass imitation stones which on his own confession were used to fool credulous people and fleece them out of their money through the raffle game. This pastime, Valentine said, he played in the saloons and managed rightly was a source of income not to be despised. Through these methods he was able to sell a ring worth at the most ten cents for an amount as high as a dollar. The rings are of pure brass and would hardly deceive a sober man, hence the saloon victim.

The bag stolen from Mrs. Horne contained a bunch of keys, a commutation ticket and a dollar bill.

MISS ADELE VON OHL RETURNS HOME A BRIDE

Miss Adele von Ohl, Plainfield's horse queen and daring bareback rider, returned home yesterday from a six months tour with Buffalo Bill's Wild West show the bride of D. L. Parker, Jr., of Sheridan, Wyoming, who is also a member of the show. Miss von Ohl was married at Kankakee, Illinois, on July 29, but the event was kept a secret from her friends until her return.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker will probably remain in Plainfield for a couple of months at the home of the latter's mother. During her absence she traveled through all parts of the far and Middle West. It is probable that next season Mr. and Mrs. Parker will star in a special act which will be arranged by Ray Thompson.

An Election Surprise.

To the surprise of nearly every person in Elizabeth who has closely followed election results, it was announced by the Union County Board of Elections yesterday that Michael P. Devine, Democrat, was, by the official count, elected excise commissioner over Joseph H. Neill, the lowest man on the Republican ticket, declared by the unofficial returns to have won out over Devine by sixty votes. He will take his place with his four Republican colleagues, Kling, Banker, Bye and Froom, on January 1.

Excise Conviction Appeal.

FORMS GET-TOGETHER CLUB ON WORLD TRIP

Many local friends of former Mayor James F. Buckle, who with his wife is making a trip around the world on the Hamburg-American line steamer, "Cleveland," received letters from him this morning. City Treasurer William F. Arnold got two letters, in one of which the former mayor asked that he be remembered to all his friends.

In a letter to The Daily Press, Mr. Buckle speaks of their delightful trip and particularly of a pleasant visit to friends at the Island of Madeira. He incidentally tells of the organization of a Get-Together Club on the boat and says that it sends greetings to the Plainfield Get-Togethers. "Human nature," he concludes, "is the same the world over as I have remarked once or twice before and I find it true on this journey."

MISS BESSIE BOLMER IS NOW MRS. VAN NEST

Miss Bessie V. Bolmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bolmer, of Basking Ridge, and Joseph T. VanNest, of Martinsville, were married at the home of the bride's parents at 4:30 o'clock, last night Rev. William Nesbit, pastor of the Methodist church at Basking Ridge, performed the ceremony in the presence of about 125 guests from all parts of Somerset county, Plainfield and Newark.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Bolmer, as bridesmaid, and Frances Coddington, a cousin, as flower girl. The best man was William Zimmerman, of Martinsville, and the ushers were John D. Roberts, of this city, and Lefferd C. Waldron, of Martinsville.

The bride wore a white French embroidered robe, with tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms, and she carried a large bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid's also wore a rench embroidered robe and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The flower girl was dressed in white and carried flowers.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion in green, with a profusion of white chrysanthemums. The arrangement in the parlor and dining room was particularly effective and greatly admired by the guests.

As the bridal party descended the stairway entering the parlor, the wedding march was played by Miss Edith Bolmer, sister of the bride. After the ceremony the couple was showered with congratulations and a bountiful supper was served. During the reception the occasion was enlivened with music by the Basking Ridge Fife and Drum Corps, which gave the couple a serenade. While there were about 125 guests in the house, it is estimated that there were fully 300 people outside joining in the celebration.

The bride, who was a teacher in the Sussex Avenue Public School, Newark, received a large collection of gifts, including cut-glass, silver, china, furniture, linen, pictures and rugs; also from the principal and fellow-teachers in the Newark school she received a large and valuable clock.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Washington. Upon their return they will reside at Martinsville, where the groom has furnished a home for their occupancy.

NEARLY KILLED GUTTRIDGE

Schoolboy the Victim of Wild West Sport; Nearly Choked to Death.

NECK WAS BADLY LACERATED.

Two Colored Boys and a White Lad From Bryant School Put on Probation for the Offense.

Sport which is not sport nearly cost Kenneth Guttridge, son of Robert Guttridge, of 1237 South avenue, his life yesterday, and in future it is quite likely that "playing cowboy" will cease to the most attractive game at the Bryant school. Master Kenneth was nearly choked to death with a lasso by three of his companions and they were haled to court this morning to explain how they did the trick without committing actual murder.

Victor Crook, a white boy, and Peter Gillette and Clifford Tilton, both colored boys, were the wild western desperados in the little act which turned out so seriously for littel Kenneth, whose neck was lacerated by a tightly drawn rope thrown and tightened by the above mentioned youths.

Kenneth's parents made a complaint to Judge William Runyon in the city court this morning and the three would-be cowboys were sent for to explain. Their story of the roping did not differ much from that told by the little victim and Judge Runyon gave them a lecture which will act as a deterrent and at the same time put them on probation for continued good behavior.

In telling the boys what a serious thing they had done Judge Runyon declared that sport of the kind which is liable to jeopardize the lives of those who indulge in it must be stopped and every boy will be better off who confines himself to legitimate play. He also told the boys that they were lucky that Mr. Guttridge had decided not to push the case to the limit as there would be a severe penalty for their act. Young Guttridge bore the marks of the rope on his neck this morning and they show plainly that it was a miracle that the rope was loosened in time to prevent strangling. Crook, Gillette and Tilton will have to report weekly to Judge Runyon, who will keep tabs on their behaviour in school.

We WANT COMPETITION

of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

ISN'T THAT FAIR?

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN'S WORK AS MARKSMEN

Trenton, Nov. 11.—Widening interest and increased skill in marksmanship have resulted among the National Guardsmen of the State, in consequence of the greater attention paid to this department of the soldiers' training. Such, in effect, is the purport of the report of General Bird W. Spencer, inspector-general of rifle practise, for the year ending October 30, 1909.

He states that the result of the practise for the year is the most satisfactory of any year since the range practise has been conducted under the small arms firing regulations of the United States army.

The result of the practise of the entire National Guard shows that all but 668 men reported on the rifle range at Sea Girt.

Eighty-four per cent. of the National Guard were present and fired through the courses.

The Third Infantry leads the regimental organizations in number of times that its members reported on the range for practise to improve their scores. One hundred and seventy-one more than the total strength of the organization, reported oftener than once for practise. The Second Regiment was next in attendance.

The State figure of merit for 1909 is sixty-two, as against fifty-four in 1908.

A comparison of the record in 1908 and 1909 is as follows:

	1908.	1909.
Experts	210	341
Sharpshooters	58	67
Marksmen	1,078	1,271
First class	402	252
Second class	326	272
Third class	1,510	1,157
Fourth class	518	668
Total	4,102	4,028

In accordance with the general orders regarding gallery practise, General Spencer has detailed these range officers to supervise gallery practise: Colonel Charles A. Reid, assistant inspector-general of rifle practise, Second and Third Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel William Libbey, assistant inspector-general of rifle practise, First Infantry, Second Troop Cavalry; Lieutenant-Colonel William A. Tewes, assistant inspector-general of rifle practise, Fourth Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel David M. Flynn, assistant inspector-general of rifle practise, Fifth Infantry, First Troop Cavalry.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Those ever popular and well-known pantomimists will appear in their great success the new "Eight Bells," at the Plainfield theatre matinee and night, November 20. In presenting "Eight Bells" to our theatre patrons this season, the Brothers Bryne have expended over $20,000 in new scenery, mechanical effects and stage paraphernalia. They intend giving one of the best and most complete pantomimic comedies on the stage. The reputation they have gained for themselves has been done through hard and faithful work, and for this reason they have been able to keep the confidence of the people. "Eight Bells" is a startling revelation in stagecraft. Mr. John F. Byrne has invented a number of new and surprising tricks which mystify the audience. The scenery is surprisingly beautiful and the mechanical effects wonderful. Don't miss seeing the Brothers Byrne in the new "Eight Bells."

BRICKS HURLED AT FACTORY GIRL EMPLOYES.

Strikebreakers Attacked on Way Home, and More Trouble Is Feared by Police.

While a number of the girl employes of Hirschhorn, Mack & Co.'s cigar factory were passing the Socialist headquarters, 44 Somerset street, New Brunswick, last evening, four bricks were hurled at them from an adjoining house occupied by Hungarian strikers, and they were doused with water. Policemen Hardy and Wilcox arrested Mary Julan, a bunchmaker. She is in the lockup.

Six girl employes went before Recorder Houghton last night, accompanied by several of the foremen of the shop, and made complaints of assault against other strikers. One of the girls was cut on the ankle by a brick. It was thought that the trouble incident to the strike was over, but this fresh outbreak makes the police fear that more trouble is to follow.

Save Your Teeth

Write For This Interesting Little Booklet "The Preservation of the Teeth"

Even though it is a deliberate attempt to convince you of the merits of this unique and effective French preparation, it is very much worth while writing for.

It explains just how and why this French tooth powder is so effective in removing the tartar from the teeth, purifying the mouth and making the teeth pearly white.

In addition to this, it contains some interesting facts about the teeth and the proper way to clean and care for them. Shall we send it to you?

POLITICIANS PLAYED AT MOTHERS' CONGRESS.

Atlantic City, Nov. 11.—Declaring that Pennsylvania machine politicians are attempting to even halt the work of the Juvenile Court and probation movement in the effect to give to their henchmen the places created by the crusade for the children of the nation, Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of Denver, exponent of the Juvenile Court and probation idea, presented an open indictment of the Pennsylvania political machine before the board of managers of the National Congress of Mothers at its opening meeting Tuesday night.

The arraignment was in the letter in which Judge Lindsey regretted his inability to be present at the meeting. Besides flaying the Pennsylvania machine for its attempt to take the work of child salvation out of the hands of the mothers and of the workers for childish betterment, Judge Lindsey recommended the teaching of the principles of parenthood in the colleges of the country and blamed many divorces and marital disagreements on lack of such knowledge.

"The effort in Pennsylvania has been to take the power of control of the Juvenile Court and of probation efforts out of the hands of those who earnestly seek the betterment of the child and place it in the hands of the politicians," declared the letter. "The effect of the amendments which are being quietly passed will be seen still more clearly in the future when the politicians awake to the real possibilities for place hunters. At present amendments are being made to State laws regarding juvenile courts that absolutely jeopardize the work."

Leading workers for children, among them many men and women of this city and Philadelphia who attended the public meeting where the letter was read, applauded the arraignment, and a special report on the matter will be laid before the annual meeting of the Mothers' Congress in Denver next June.

Russel Conroy, of Linden avenue, is detained at home with an attack of the grip.

Everything wanted by men, women and children in the way of comfortable underwear is here.

It's Time to Think of Your FUR Needs.

This store will appeal to those Fur buyers who look for good reliable Furs at moderate prices. We appeal to the great masses who buy Furs anywhere from $10 to $75 a set, and expect their money's worth when buying Furs just as in any other line. We buy from reliable manufacturers, and stand back of every Fur piece we sell.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Following in the footsteps of Apawamis comes an announcement from the Country Club of Lakewood to the effect that senior golfers are invited to take part in a handicap of eighteen holes to be played on Wednesday, November 24. Only those owning up to fifty-five years or more will be eligible. Alexander Soper, chairman of the greens committee, states that entries should be made on or before Saturday, November 20. Entrants are also requested to give either their home handicap or their Metropolitan rating. Prizes will be given for first and second net and the best gross score.

Players in the senior competition are also invited to compete in the regular fall tournament, scheduled for the three following days over the same course. The program for the Thanksgiving tournament calls for an eighteen-hole testing round on the first day, players to qualify in four sixteens. Match play will claim attention on Friday and Saturday, and there will also be the usual eighteen-hole medal play handicap on the last day.

Any player not rated on the Metropolitan Golf Association handicap list must present before starting in this fixture a letter from his club secretary or handicapper stating how many strokes he receives from some player at his club who is rated on the printed list.

In the absence of the desired information the committee reserves the right to give any such unrated player a low handicap or even place him on scratch. Entries for the tournament will close on November 24 at 9 a. m. with Raymond E. Todd, at the Country Club of Lakewood.

The championship of the Nassau Country Club has been won again by Howard F. Whitney. This player first earned the title in 1901 and two years later repeated the performance. Since then such well known amateurs as Findlay S. Douglas, F. C. Jennings and W. L. Hicks have gained the honor. In the latest championship struggle Whitney had his old rival, Hicks, for an opponent, and conditions called for thirty-six holes. At the end of the morning round Whitney stood 1 up, and he finally won the match by a 3 and 2 margin.

HAMILTON IS INNOCENT.

Police Seek His Double in Rainer Robbery Case.

Mt. Holly, Nov. 11.—Developments today in the Rainer burglary at Florence brought a statement from the office of Prosecutor Samuel A. Atkinson that William L. Hamilton, placed under bail as a suspect, is innocent. James Murphy, of Florence, is the man now wanted by the authorities. He served in the Spanish-American War. In April, 1905, he left his army papers with H. L. Headrick. On Thursday last Murphy returned for them. In the office of Headrick at the time was Hamilton, and it was difficult for Headrick to tell the two men apart. Murphy said he was down and out and must have money. He refused a job Friday, and after dinner went in the direction of Rainer's house. The man knew Rainer kept money in his safe.

Murphy, it is claimed, looks so much like Hamilton that both Miss Nixon, the housekeeper, and the Rev. C. V. D. Conover were deceived.

THINK GIRL HAS RABIES.

Doctors, However, Unable to Determine Until Dog is Found.

Although Dr. F. A. Zucker, the local veterinary, has men scouring the city for a trace of the pet fox terrier that bit little Catherine Lilley, the five-year-old daughter of Richard Lilley, a saloonkeeper, no trace of the animal has been found. Soon after biting the child on the face and lip it fled from the rear yard of the Lilley home, 121 Broad street, Elizabeth.

Until the dog is found the child's exact condition cannot be determined. She is still at her home and was visited last night by Dr. Theodore F. Livengood, who found her condition unchanged.

DR. EDWARD LANE TALKS TO PLAINFIELD DENTISTS

The Plainfield Dental Society held its regular meeting and banquet at "The Hermitage," on Washington avenue, the borough, last night. After an excellent dinner prepared and served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, Dr. Edward Lane, of Philadelphia, gave a most interesting talk on the subject of "Crown and Bridge Work." This was followed by an informal discussion which proved instructive to all the dentists.

There was also a discussion of clinical work in hospitals and public schools, this being a new feature here of dental work in which the members of the society have interested themselves. Those present last night were Drs. B. F. Leonard, Charles Moore, O. B. Whitford, Charles Thiers, W. E. Stelle, Guy Hillman, Clive W. Montfort, F. W. French, Frank T. Clawson, George Moore, Raymond Stevens of this city; Dr. Hogan, of Dunellen; Dr. C. M. F. Egel, of Westfield, and Dr. Edward Lane, of Philadelphia.

is the result of many years of study and experience. The production of creators and masters in the art of Piano building. We invite your careful inspection.

Now Just a Word About Ourselves

Frederick Mathushek, the founder of our house, was born at the Palace of Manheim, Germany, June 9, 1814. Before he reached the age of seventeen years he had made several improvements in pianos. In 1840 he came to America, where he devoted his life to the manufacture and improvement of the piano-forte. Unselfishly he has given to the world the benefit of his wonderful inventive genius, for many of his valuable inventions were not patented, but were given for the benefit of his craft and will be found embodied in the best makes of pianos throughout the world.

LITERARY

The November Strand Magazine contains some excellent fiction and a number of articles of a unique and interesting character. Short stories are provided by W. W. Jacobs, Morley Roberts, Richard Marsh, C. C. Andrews, and other popular authors. There is also a long concluding installment of "The White Christ" by Hall Caine. Caruso, the idol of the musical world, writes his "Reminiscences" and illustrates them with some clever sketches.

The November "Success Magazine" contains a collection of humorous, hitherto unpublished stories of the San Francisco Earthquake by Will Irwin under a title, "Human Nature Under Fire." In the same number, woman finds a voice in Inez Haynes Gilmore's article "Man—as Woman Sees Him." Walter Weyl's article, "The New Problem of the Old," discusses the question "How shall our nation take care of its aged mothers and fathers?"

In the November Wide World Magazine appears the first of a series of articles dealing with "The Great Feuds of Kentucky." According to the Editor no effort has been spared to make the narratives as accurate and fair to all parties as possible. The stories themselves have been obtained from the official records of the trials, and from people who participated in the actual warfare.

The man who wrote the "Confessions of a Best-Seller," the leading article of the November Atlantic, is obviously a past master of the trade he tells of. In his paper he gives the complete list of the ingredients necessary to make a novel which will pass the 100,00 mark. The November installment of the "Diary of Gideon Welles" deals with the circumstances surrounding the death of Lincoln.

The American flag remains firmly planted at the North Pole, regardless of the decision reached on the question of precedence among American explorers. It is not surprising that polar talk has quite submerged other topics for the month, and the National Magazine for October clears the decks for action, and proceeds to scroop the field for the latest data and photographs, being the first October periodical to furnish reliable articles and thrilling pictures of adventure in the Arctics.

Faithful to its old traditions, The Youth's Companion nevertheless keeps abreast of modern needs. Its purpose is to be solid but not heavy, informing but not abstruse. It shuns the sensational and the superficial—all those things that are designed to excite rather than to instruct, to amaze rather than to convince, and that are without authority and resuonsibilty.

It has come to this, that his fellow countrymen in general, even those that dissent from his political opinions, recognize in Grover Cleveland a man, who, being mortal, was not without fault and limitation, yet who stands pre-eminent for unfeigned purity of intention, for singular frankness, for scrupulous and unusual honesty, for faithfulness to duty, for resolution, for courage and, above all, for absorbing, dominating pariotism. It is not strange that almost the last words that were heard to fall from his lips were these: "I have tried so hard to do right."—From, Richard Watson's Gilder's "Grover Cleveland; a Group of Letters" in the November Century.

If you can imagine the wonder and the complications that would ensue from discovering a girl—aby stowaway on a manof-war you can partly realize in advance the delight that will follow the reading of a story by D. E. Dermody which appears in The Red Book Magazine for November. It is entitled "Wherever They Roam."

Appropriately enough, both love and politics figure in the plot of Mary Imlay Taylor's new novel, "The Magnate of Paradise"—politics being appropriate to the season, and love to all seasons. The story is published complete in the November Lippincott's, which, by the way, is an extraordinarily fine number. The scenes of "The Magnate" are laid in the nation's capitol and in a live town in Missouri. While the name given to the latter is fictitious, the place is quite likely to be recognized by those who live or have lived there.

A musical comedy or comic opera of the first class averages a cast of about seventy-five people, while I suppose about seventeen is the average number for a dramatic company. A prima donna, who is not a star, gets from $300 to $350 a week, the principal comedian from $150 to $500 a week, the tenor from $75 to $300, the bass about the same. The minor characters range from forty to a hundred dollars a week, while show girls get twenty-five and thirty dollars, and chorus people from fifteen to twenty-five dollars, the average salary being about eighteen dollars.—Hartley Davis, in the November Everybody's.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell begins her new historical serial in the November American Magazine. This will be the most important work Miss Tarbell has undertaken since her "History of the Standard Oil Company." Its theme will be the American woman anr the important and heroic part that she has played in shaping the destinies of the nation since the revolutionary days of 1776. The series will be illustrated with many beautiful portraits.

No magazine feature for years has met with such immediate and enthusiastic appreciation as Theodore Roosevelt's account of his African adventures in Scribner's Magazine. The demand for the first article of the series in the October number was so great that the entire and very large first edition was called for within three days after publication. The second article, in the November number, gives the author's impressions and experiences on an East African Ranch, which in many ways reminded him of early days in the plains of the great West, and the account of his first successwul Lion Hunt on the Kapiti Plains. His preliminary comments upon the big game of Africa, especially his conclusions most dangerous to the sportsman and the natives, will be read with much interest.

IS IT UNLAWFUL TO DISPLAY UNION JACK?

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of Tuesday, I noticed an article in regard to the hoisting of a flag on my premises on Cushing road, in which you state:

"It is believed that the flag was raised by employees of Mr. Mackenzie in ignorance of the law."

I wish to be allowed to correct this, as the flag in question was raised in accordance with my orders and the responsibility for the action, therefore, rests solely upon me.

As you say, "In ignorance of the law," I infer that you consider that there is a law bearing on this question, making such action illegal, and as I am entirely in ignorance of such law and have always understood that a resident has a right to hoist any flag on his private property, I would consider it a favor if you would furnish me with any legislation covering this point, if such exists.

I would, also, be glad to know whether the Plainfield city police have any jurisdiction in a matter of this kind, as my property and the flag staff in question are in the township of Fanwood and consequently outside the Plainfield city limits.

I think I have the only flag staff in the community so equipped as to be able to fly colors strictly in accordance with flag etiquette, and on Sundays and ordinary holidays I invariably fly the American Ensign at the masthead and the British Ensign at the gaff or peak.

On strictly American holidays, such as the Fourth of July, though I am not an American citizen, I always fly the American Ensign at the masthead alone. Yesterday being the King's birthday, I considered I had an equal right to fly the Union Jack at the masthead alone, as it would have been obviously incorrect to fly the American Ensign at the peak.

I am, of course, anxious to conform to the law as it exists in this, as in every other respect, and if my understanding of this matter is incorrect, all I want is to know it.

Apologizing for the length of this letter which I am induced to write in justice to my employees as well as to my own motives in the matter, I am,

Yours very truly,
EDMUND MACKENZIE.

Novemeber 11, 1909.

(Not being able to get an opinion here whether there was any violation of the law in this incident, The Daily Press has communicated with the Attorney General of the United States to ascertain whether there is any Federal statute bearing on the subject. As Mr. Mackenzie says, it was inferred from the action of the Plainfield police that the law had been violated, but as Police Chief Kiely was absent on official business today, no explanation could be obtained from him.—Editor).

Vegetable Soup.

A clear beef stock is best with the vegetable flavored soup. Tomatoes are important, and carrots, turnips, leek, celery, cabbage, lima and string beans, corn, rice and sometimes barley are used in the combination. All the vegetables are neatly cut into cubes and should be added according to the length of time required for cooking of the various kinds.

CLAM FISHING.

Catch from Canadian Waters Nearly All Shipped to New York.

Consul Frank Deedmeyer, writing from Charlottetown under the date of September 8, gives the following account of this season's clam catch around the Canadian maritime province of Prince Edward Island:

"The yield of quahogs (Venus mercenaria), also called hard-shelled clams, in the waters of Prince Edward Island for the year 1909 promises to reach 12,000 bushels. Nearly all of them are shipped to the port of New York, the proportion consumed on this island being very small. The localities where this clam is found is near Summerside and Charlottetown. They are gathered in the months of May, June and September.

"The catch of the latter month was superior in quality to the two spring months of 1909. Shipments from Summerside in the spring amounted to 4,500 bags, containing one and one-half bushels. New Brunswick fishermen, supplied with motorboats, take them out of the waters with rakes and carry their loads to Pointe du Chene, where they are assorted and put up for shipment.

"Charlottetown expects to ship 2,000 bags during the month of September and Summerside 4,000 bags. Spring prices f. o. b. Summerside were from $1.10 to $1.90 per bag; at Charlottetown, from $1.30 to $1.50 per bag. September prices at Summerside range according to the size from $1.50 to $1.80 per bag. The same prices rule at Charlottetown."—Consular Reports.

WHITEWASHING COAL.

Not Done for the Sake of Neatness, but to Prevent Thefts.

Persons who have been somewhat astonished by having whitewashed coal delivered to them will be interested to know that the whitewashing is not done to improve the appearanec or to increase the burning qualities; the treatment neither improves or harms the fuel.

It is a detective scheme on the part of the railroads to locate and to prevent theft of coal as it is hauled from the mines to the consumer. These depredations amount to thousands of tons annually and the railroads are the sufferers, as it is up to them to deliver as many tons at the destination, often a thousand miles away, as was weighed in when the car was turned over for transportation.

Two or three tons may be removed from a carload containing forty tons without attracting attention to its decreased qualities until the car is again placed on the scales. To locate the loss, says Popular Mechanics, lime water is sprayed over the carload of coal. In a short time the water has evaporated, leaving a load of white coal. Then removal of any coal leaves a big black spot which is quickly noticed by inspectors and the station agents and the leak found and stopped.

Inconsiderate.

"My wife is one of the most inconsiderate women in the world."

"Why do you think so?"

"She put a net over the baby's bed last night and consequently the mosquitoes hardly gave me a chance to get a wink of sleep."—Browning's Magazine.

HE SEEKS TO SOLVE DESTINY BY STARS

Does death mean the rising or setting of the sun, the end or the beginning of life? Through a daily study of the heavens with the aid of a powerful telescope in his observatory, Upper Mountain avenue, Montclair, the Rev. Dr. Isaac K. Funk hopes to determine the matter to his own satisfaction.

Dr. Funk, who is head of the publishing house of Funk & Wagnalls, in New York city, believes that after he has died he may be privileged to become an inhabitant of one of the worlds supposed to comprise the universe.

The veteran publisher has rounded out three-score and ten years of an active life, and realizes that he has passed the milestone of earthly existence. In his study of the stars he seeks food for reflection anent the future life, although he says that he has arrived at no conclusion as to whether death means promotion, an unbroken sleep or endless existence.

"Personality is directing the stars," said Dr. Funk yesterday. "And what is personality? One may call it God, another will call it nature."

Continuing, Dr. Funk referred to the argument made by scientits that if one is to live in another world, personality, that which makes us what we are, that which is our very self and distinguishes us from others, must continue.

There are many astronomical theories which Dr. Funk deals with, although he says it is merely scientific recreation for him.

"It gets one away from the dollars," he said, "and I like it better than 'aptos' and other pleasures, although a game of golf suits me nicely."

The possibility of rebirth after death, involving not an act of creation, but an act of preservation, did not come in for serious discussion. In fact, Dr. Funk laughed at the stories which some newspapers have published in referring to his alleged ideas of future life.

He is kindly appearing man, always affable and genial. He enjoys a good joke, and in referring to amusing incidents said that one New York newspaper had said that he had discovered the shadow of the North Pole in Mars, but that despite the clearness of the view from his telescope he could discover no flag placed upon the pole by either Dr. Cook or Lieutenant Peary.

"There is no truth in the story, and I absolutely refuse to be drawn into any North Pole controversy," said Dr. Funk, with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"It is wonderful this study of the universe," added Dr. Funk. "It is an intellect expander, and real enjoyment for me. I am waiting to get a look at Halley's comet. Of course you know that comet plays havoc with superstitions that there is to be a pestillence or something dire is to happen.

"I have read that the comet is to collide with the earth and jar us off, but we will all have to take chances. Halley was the first to discover the laws that govern comets. He said that the comet appearing in 1834 would return in seventy-five years, and it will. My telescope, which was recently purchased from Brashier in Pittsburg, is not powerful enough to get a glimpse of Halley's comet yet, but I may be able to obtain a view in a few weeks."

CURES REMOVE DOUBT ABOUT ECZEMA CURE.

Read What Your Druggist Says About Oil of Wintergreen Compound.

Druggist L. W. Randolph submits the following to the readers of The Daily Press:

For several years we have announced, with our recommendation, that we have found a positive cure for eczema; a simple skin wash, oil of wintergreen compounded with other healing ingredients.

Yet we know there are people right in this town who have eczema, and still have never tried this remedy.

We have, therefore, arranged with the D. D. D. Laboratories of Chicago for a special offer of a trial bottle at 25 cents instead of the $1.00 bottle as regularly sold.

We offer this trial bottle with our recommendation and assurance that just as soon as the patient washes his itching skin, this mild liquid will take the itch away instantly.—L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front St.

50 TRY TO LIFT CAR FROM A DYING MAN.

William H. Drolliett, thirty-five years old, an expert worker in gold, silver, brass and other metal novelties, was killed last night by a main line trolley car at Broad and New streets, in Newark. He formerly lived in Quincy, Mass., where he was a member of Woolaston Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons. He was subsequently in business in St. Louis. From there he went to Newark about three months ago to accept a lucrative position. He leaves a wife and children.

In company with John Lawson, of No. 90½ Boyden street, a fellow workman, Drolliett attempted to cross Broad street. He allowed one car to pass and stepped directly in front of another going in an opposite direction. He was knocked down and the car went partly over his body, being stopped after the front wheels had passed him.

He was caught in the operating mechanism under the car, and half a hundred men in an immense crowd which gathered attempted to relieve him by raising the car, but the danger of doing him greater injury prevented. Physicians who were summoned passed him stimulants and attempted in other ways to aid him during the few minutes that he was conscious. Heavy jacks were quickly procured and the car was raised, but when Drolliett was taken out he was dead.

75,000 FRY TROUT ON STATE'S HANDS.

Streams Are Drying Up Because of Drought, and Fish Cannot be Placed.

Trenton, Nov. 11.—The New Jersey Fish and Game Commission is in a quandary as to what to do with 75,000 trout fry which have been purchased in Allentown, Pa., for the purpose of stocking some of the streams in this State. The long continued drought has left most of the streams so low that it would be folly to place the fry in them and no solution of the problem can be found.

A wag has suggested that President Kuser, or Secretary Fell, of the commission, take the little trout home and keep them in the bath tub, but this does not appeal to the commissioners, who declare the situation to be more serious than funny.

The fry will be delivered some time next month and it is up to the commission to be ready to receive them.

COMMERCE OF AMAZON.

With Tributaries, Possesses 40,000 Miles of Navigable Water.

It has been estimated that the Amazon and its tributaries possess 40,000 miles of navigable water. This great valley comprises 2,722,000 square miles; the Mississippi Valley comprises only 1,253,000. The Madeira river is itself a second Mississippi in its volume of water, and the Amazon for nearly 2,000 miles maintains a depth of 60 to 200 feet. It is truly an inland sea forty miles wide at many points. There ply on it more than 100 large river steamers between Para and Manaos, the latter city 1,000 miles up the river; and the smaller steamers and craft of all descriptions afloat on this vast river system are almost numberless, says David F. St. Clair in the Engineering Magazine. Seven ocean lines of steamers enter the port of Para, six to Europe and one to New York. Much of the raw rubber that Para exports to the United States is reshipped from Europe.

WILL OUST MACHINES.

Paterson Demands Special Election to Abolish Them.

Paterson, Nov. 11.—Democrats and Republicans, disgusted at the strange antics of a number of voting machines at the recent election in registering more votes than there were voters, are signing a petition, which is to be presented to the Board of Aldermen with a request that a special election be held. That the request will be granted is almost certain, now that the board consists of thirteen Democrats and nine Republicans. Last year the Republicans were in the majority, and when a like petition was presented kept away from the City Hall.

A number of independent political organizations are having petitions circulated through the wards, and the fate of the machines is said to be but a matter of time.

RUTGERS' HEAD IN CRASH.

President Demarest Escapes Injury When Cars Collide.

Owing to signals failing to work, two trolley cars came together in a head-on collision on the River road, near the New Brunswick Golf Club links yesterday noon. The fronts of both cars were smashed and the passengers considerably jarred. No one was hurt, the cars going slowly at the time of the accident. The crash occurred at a curve in the road, and the motorman did not see the other's car until too late. Matthew Labone and John Van Duersen, the motormen, did not have time to jump.

Dr. W. H. Demarest, president of Rutgers College, was a passenger on one of the cars. He was not injured.

M'GURGAN AGAIN HURT.

Elizabeth Firemen Adds Another Mishap to Long List.

James McGurgan, of Elizabeth, a veteran fireman noted for his daring, who was blinded at a fire some months ago, since which time he has been retired, met with another mishap yesterday when he was run down by a trolley car at Smith street and Rebecca place. He sustained bruises and cuts, but was not fatally injured.

Soon after losing his sight McGurgan's wife died. He lives at 840 Second avenue. He has been pensioned by the department.

Twisted Clerk Sentenced.

William Hammond, formerly confidential employe of the Stephenson Car Works, at Elizabeth, was sentenced to six months in the county jail in the Court of Special Sessions yesterday. He had been accused by the company of the theft of tools and money. He was extradited from Chicago, where he went after the thefts.

Car Shop Increases Force.

The Stephenson Car Works at Elizabeth, contemplates putting on more than one hundred additional employes within a short time. The concern is doing a lot of work for the Public Service Corporation and anticipates a big boom in its line within the next few months.

The N. P. H. S. football team will play the Wilson Military Academy team at Findern on Saturday afternoon.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Nov. 14, 1909.

Topic.—"Pilgrim's Progress" series. VI. Beulah land.—Isa. lxii, 3-5.

The word Beulah means married. The prophet Isaiah in using it in regard to Judah meant to say that when the people returned from their captivity in Babylon they would be married to the land. The land would be more precious to them than ever before, and their constancy to the King of the land would never again fail, "for as a young man marrieth a virgin so shall thy sons marry thee, and as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride so shall thy God rejoice over thee." The prophet therefore predicts a flourishing state of religion which was to exist in the future, but still upon this earth. Bunyan changes the figure somewhat and applies Beulah land to the experiences of the saints of God as they approach the end of life and only death separates them from the celestial city. Bunyan's conception is the one generally accepted today. It is the point reached in the Christian life near its close, such as Moody described as "earth receding, heaven approaching." It is passing through the final experiences in life. The world has no attractions for us. Our entire interests are centered in the life to come. It is as if we stood at the highest point of joyous Christian experiences and saw only death, which Christ has conquered, between us and the heavenly city.

O Beulah land, sweet Beulah land,
As on thy highest mount I stand
I look away across the sea,
Where mansions are prepared for me,
And view the shining, glory shore,
My heaven, my home forevermore.

1. Beulah is a land of peaceful rest amid delightful surroundings. The "air was very sweet and pleasant. * * * Yea, here they heard continually the singing of birds and saw every day the flowers appear in the earth and heard the voice of the turtle in the land. In this country the sun shineth night and day." How beautifully this describes the declining days and years of those whose minds are kept in perfect peace as they approach the heavenly Beulah land!

Here shines undimmed one blissful day,
For all my night has passed away.

2. Beulah is a land void of trial and temptation. "This was beyond the Valley of the Shadow of Death and also out of the reach of Giant Despair; neither could they from this place so much as see Doubting Castle." The doubts and terrors and despairs of the past being over, how sweet to think only of the Master, His wonderful mercy and love and the joy obtained through His atoning sacrifice upon the cross of Calvary!

3. Beulah is a land of heavenly fellowship. "Here they were within sight of the city they were going to; also here met them some of the inhabitants thereof, for in this land the shining ones commonly walked because it was upon the borders of heaven. In this land also the contract between the bride and bridegroom was renewed—yea, here 'as the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride so doth their God rejoice over them.'" As earth recedes our thoughts are more in the future and our companionship ever more with God and Christ and the loved ones gone before. They walk with us upon the borderland, and sweet is their companionship, especially that of the Master.

The Saviour comes and walks with me,
And sweet communion here have we.
He gently leads me with his hand,
For this is heaven's borderland.

4. Beulah is a land of plenty. "Here they had no want of corn and wine, for in this place they met with abundance of what they had sought for in all their pilgrimage"—the assurance of their salvation and a foretaste of the joys which in heaven will be eternal.

If Beulah land, the borderland of heaven, the eternal home of the saved, be of such a character, what must not the joys and blessings of heaven itself be! There we shall receive the full reward of all our sacrifices and services, and they will seem as nothing when compared with the glory which God has in store for us. Therefore let us be faithful in service, strong in temptation, trustful in the midst of trials, lest having such a promise and prospect before us any of us should come short of it

Beautiful World's Convention Hymn.

Already the Endeavorers of India have secured a beautiful hymn, written for the world's Christian Endeavor convention, which will be sung at the quiet hour services and probably during the closing consecration hour of the convention in Agra. It is by Rev. P. E. Heberlet of Sambalpur, Bengal, and is worthy of a place in all our hymn books.

LIVE THOU IN ME.

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"I'll closely follow Thee."
But strayed afar, and now I pray,
"Do Thou lead me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"My faith holds fast to Thee,"
Yet loosed my hold, and now I pray,
"Do Thou hold me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"I'll always toil for Thee,"
But idle proved. I humbly pray,
"Work Thou through me."

In pride of speech I oft did say,
"I'll bravely speak for Thee."
But, failing oft, I meekly pray,
"Speak Thou through me."

With zeal aflame I oft did say,
"I'll brightly shine for Thee."
My light grew dim, and now I pray,
"Shine Thou through me."

To Thee, O Christ, I oft did say,
"I'll live alone for Thee."
But, wiser now, I daily pray,
"Live Thou in me."

CHAPTER VI.

TOILERS AND WRECKS.

ON being awakened by the alarm clock the next morning Haggleton found, to his surprise, that he had slept quite well. The close air of the room had given him a headache, but he shook this off by going down into the street and taking a brisk walk around "lung block," inspecting his property closely as he went. He had hardly known that it formed part of his enormous real estate holdings.

On his return he found Jenny ready with the breakfast and Joe and Moran already devouring theirs. It was bread and coffee—nothing more.

After breakfast Moran hurried away to his day of toil in the cellar bakeshop. Joe, after various adroit but vain attempts to borrow a dollar from Jenny or the new boarder, drifted out, and Haggleton, after repeated offers of service to Jenny, resolved that the best thing he could do would be to take a look around and familiarize himself with the condition his property was in. Philip Ames, who was "off" that morning, came in, driven by curiosity, and offered to pilot "Mr. Jackson" through that unfamiliar part of the town. The offer was accepted with alacrity.

It was now a quarter to 8 as they joined the throng of hurrying toilers. They paused at the Bowery and Canal street and watched the crush of men and women fighting their way up the elevated stairs and packing themselves into the cars. Then they turned to the east and walked against the surging river of humanity.

"You call these the poorest people in New York?" asked Haggleton.

"I suppose so."

"Then New York makes a pretty good showing. Do you see any rags or misery? Look at these men. They all wear leather shoes, don't they? In Europe the poorest people wear wooden shoes. That's something, isn't it? And they all wear derby hats and starched shirts and neckties and watch chains and overcoats with velvet collars."

"You can't judge by appearances," objected Philip.

"Yes, you can too."

Philip shook his head. "You see only those who have work and are able to work. You don't see those who are left at home. You don't see the sick and the old and the young. You don't see the wrecks."

"No, but I see what makes the wrecks, or some of them," answered Haggleton. "It's extravagance. Most of these men smoke—that's bad—and a lot of them go into saloons, which is worse. And look at the cheap jewelry on the women. Why, they all wear imitation pearls! Look at the banners across the streets with 'balls' and 'concerts' at 25 cents in big letters! I tell you, they waste their money."

"These people must have some pleasures," Philip said.

"Not at first. They must cut out pleasures at first. I did. If they want to escape from these tenements they've got to save."

"So you think they can escape by saving? Do you know that New York has miles and miles of streets like these, with a million human beings herded in foul, dark rooms? Can they all escape by saving?"

Haggleton started to reply, but Philip went on quickly, his voice rising with intenser feeling:

"I'll tell you how one man escaped by saving." He pointed down Orchard street. "He lived in that second house. He was a poor capmaker, and he shot himself because he was out of work and couldn't bear to see his wife and little children suffer. He knew they would get the insurance money, anyway. That's how he saved. And two years ago, over there on Eldridge street"—he pointed again—"I found a family of poor Jews living in a dark corner of the hallway under the stairs. There was no window, no door. It wasn't a room at all—only a narrow slanting space roughly boarded off—and the landlord made them pay $8 a month for it. There the mother had a baby. That's how they saved."

"These tenements are nothing like as bad as they were forty years ago," replied Haggleton. "What do you think they did with the garbage forty years ago? Threw it into the streets for the pigs to eat. Yes, sir! Pigs were the public scavengers. This whole region was so filthy that—well, it was cleaned out by cholera and yellow fever more than once. You knew that, didn't you? And smallpox was the regular thing. Why, the health wardens used to stand on the sidewalk and shout to people upstairs who had it to put camphor in their clothes and burn some in the stove. That's how they fought disease."

"Who told you that?" questioned Philip.

"Nobody told me. I saw it. I lived here," answered Haggleton. "And there were slaughter houses everywhere, and fat boilers, and such vile tenements that— They're all gone now—'Gone alley' and 'Kerosene row' and the 'Big Flat' in Mott street and 'Bandits' roost'—but I tell you it was worth a man's life to go past them at night. New [illegible]

Philip smiled.

"I'll show you a few places where you won't enjoy yourself at night. Still, I admit, we're improved in some things, but we've gone back in others. There may not be as many pigs and murderers about, but there's a lot more consumption and overcrowding. Do you see that little block just ahead? It's only 75 by 200 feet. How many people do you suppose live in it? Guess."

"Seventy-five feet by two hundred," reflected Haggleton, studying the front of the block, with its swarms of children. "Let's see—a thousand?"

"Two thousand nine hundred and sixty-nine by actual count, and that was five years ago—the population of a good sized town in the space of one of your stables!"

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Haggleton. "How many would that give to a house?"

"From a hundred to a hundred and fifty. We're passing through the most densely populated region in the world, and—you own about half of it."

"Not that block?"

"No, but you own enough others. I'll show you some presently."

Haggleton stopped and laid a kindly hand on Philip's shoulder.

"My boy, you think too much about the weak. Think about the strong. Don't you see that this tenement struggle makes men stronger? You know it does. Would you be the man you are if you'd been coddled in luxury, with everything made easy? I tell you half the big fellows in this country owe their success to being born poor. I tell you, young man, poverty's about the finest school we've got." He paused and then added impressively, "I'm one of the graduates."

Haggleton watched him swing off the ladder and disappear.

"I know," said Philip, "but there are other graduates, and—speaking of wrecks"— He stopped and looked at his watch. "That reminds me I must telephone." He turned into a drug store and called up the Atlantic Wrecking company. "Too bad!" he exclaimed after a brief communication. "There's a grain boat sunk in the East river off Grand street; I've got to see about it."

Haggleton accompanied Philip and got a glimpse of life on the big pontoons and several thrills of pleasure as he noted the young man's quick resourcefulness and a pang of apprehension as he watched him swing off the ladder in his ugly suit and disappear beneath the bubbling river.

As there was a cold rain falling, they spent the waiting hours in the cozy cabin of the Dunderberg, and the crew told stories about perils of the deep.

They had supper with the crew and then started back for New York, taking the ferry to Twenty-third street, where there was something Philip wanted to show Haggleton.

"We'll look in here first," he said and stopped before a large building on First avenue. "This is the Municipal Lodging House. They take in two or three hundred homeless men every night."

"How many homeless men are there in New York?"

"Twenty thousand or so."

"Twenty thousand homeless men!" repeated Haggleton. "And what do the others do, those who can't stay here?"

"About 3,000 walk the streets," replied Philip.

"Not on cold nights like this?"

"On cold nights and on hot nights. They huddle in alleyways out of the wind. They crouch over gratings above engine rooms and get the warm air. They stand in the midnight bread lines and then go back to their holes."

"There are 3,000 like that in New York?"

"Yes."

"And the rest?"

"The rest pay 10 or 15 cents in cheap lodging houses. You'll see."

"What do they pay here?"

"Nothing, but the same man may not come more than three times in a month. If he does he goes to the stone pile. So they're careful. Come in."

The office attendants nodded pleasantly to Philip.

Downstairs they saw these men stripped of their clothes (some of them peeled off two or three sets of garments—their whole wardrobe) and scrubbed under a hot shower bath. One man's legs were blotched with sores (from low vitality, the doctor said), and one had a deeply ulcerated heel from walking on his uppers.

Philip now led the way into another lodging house, in the opposite block. "This place accommodates about 400, and the men pay from 15 to 25 cents a night. There's no compulsory bath, and as for cleanliness—look!"

Philip pointed out that each cot had a small, dirty locker for the men's clothes, where abundant cracks encouraged the free circulation of vermin.

"They get no nightgowns," continued Philip, "and the sheets are changed only once or twice a week. Many of the men have loathsome diseases, many have consumption, and there's no doubt consumption and other diseases can be transmitted from man to man by the contamination of sheets."

"How many of these lodging houses are there?"

"About 140, and you've seen the best. The others are so filthy that—well, I asked an attendant once how often they washed the towels, and he said, with a grin: 'Wash 'em? We never wash 'em. We use 'em until they break.'"

They went to Grand street and visited more of these sinister asylums on the Bowery where bunks are offered to human wrecks at 20 or 15 or 10 cents a night or less. In one hideous resort on Mulberry street, where the charge was 7 cents, they found men ranged along in hammocks, with neither sheets nor covers, and dozens sleeping on the bare floor.

"Pretty bad," muttered Haggleton, "but what's your idea in showing me all this?"

"It's a problem for you to solve. We have ideas, but you'll have better ones before you get through."

"Why do you say that?" asked Haggleton.

"Because you have a great brain. You know how to organize. Well, organize these wasted lives, find some place for them. It's up to you."

Haggleton shook his head.

"I'm not responsible for these lodging houses."

"You are responsible," flashed Philip, "because it's men like you who own them; it's men like you who take the dimes and pennies of these poor devils—talk about tainted money—a million dollars in lodging house money paid every year in New York city by your fellow graduates in poverty."

"No, no," objected Haggleton. "It's not poverty that brought them where they are; it's drink and laziness."

Philip paused, and his eyes met the old man's in steady defiance. Then he said slowly: "No; you are wrong. These men are products of conditions. It's years of bad air in your tenements and of underfeeding at your wages that make them crave drink. It's a childhood wasted in brutalizing labor that has weakened their bodies and dulled their minds. There are 20,000 of them in New York, Mr. Haggleton, who are bums, wrecks, lodging house loafers, but don't forget that they are victims of a cruel order which for the vast majority gives poverty as the only reward of toil."

"Nonsense!" said Haggleton.

CHAPTER VII.

MORE WRECKS.

THE next morning Moran grudgingly announced that he would probably be able to get Jackson a temporary job in the bakeshop. The helper was still sick.

Gentle soon arrived, accompanied by the young diver. Both were intensely interested in the millionaire's venture. This morning Gentle was off duty, while Philip had another diving job to attend to. Philip went away, first arranging with Haggleton to meet him at Chatham square at a quarter past 12.

Nor was the morning wasted. Gentle put up shelves; Haggleton sorted out rubbish. Gentle quietly noticed that Joe was actually busy under the driving influence of the millionaire. Jenny helped with suggestions and little touches. The flat was beginning to take on a homelike air.

At 12 o'clock Haggleton left the flat to keep his appointment. He was in excellent spirits.

"Ah," exclaimed Philip as they met, "so you came! You're game, all right. Well, let's eat—in here. Keep your hat on."

They entered a Bowery restaurant near Chatham square, a battered place seen through two dusty windows. At long tables were silent, shifty eyed men who seemed to sit as far apart as possible. And they all kept their hats on and their coat collars turned up, while hard faced waiters moved among them bawling out orders.

"Not bad, that pie," declared Haggleton as they came out. "Now I'm ready for anything you can show me, the worst you can show me."

Philip's face was set. This man wanted to see poverty and misery. Very well.

"I know an old lady on Roosevelt street," he said, "who is dying of consumption. We'll go there first."

On the way he spoke briefly of the case. The old lady had no one in the world to care for her but a little granddaughter eight years old. The child went to school, so the sick woman was absolutely alone for hours every day. And she was so feeble she could scarcely lift herself from the bed.

Philip turned into a dark hallway with greasy green walls; they climbed four flights of stairs to a tiny room at the back. The floor was bare of covering, and the only furniture was a cot bed, two chairs and a little stove. There was one window, and the walls were painted red.

(To be Continued).

Mrs. Homer—Well, I suppose you expect me to say $10, but I really and truly think it cost $1.98.

Holy Cross vs. All-Raritans.

The Holy Cross football team will play the All-Raritans on the Cricket Field Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. This promises to be one of the most exciting games of the season as the teams are evenly matched, although the Raritans are a trifle heavier. In the last game between these teams at Raritan, neither side scored and the contest was called on account of darkness. Caulfield, who played with Dunellen last year, will play halfback for Holy Cross for the rest of the season.

Proctor's Bijou Dream.

The change of bill at Proctor's today will include Frank Mayne & Co. in the Tipster. This is the story of a bashful fellow who being himself a devotee of the races, can not understand why his conversation is unintelligent to ordinary folk brought into contact with a young lady. He makes some most laughable mistakes and creates much mirth. Maud Muller sings most acceptably, and is as graceful as the original Maud of whom the poet sung. Moran and Moran, comedians, do some fine dancing, and the Alabama Four, a quartette of real ethiopians, cut up in a gleeful manner. The art films are all new and present some very interesting pictures.

Sunday-school Teachers in Session.

Many local Sunday schools were present at the annual Sunday-school Institute of the Elizabeth district of the Methodist church, held at Elizabeth yesterday. Walter M. McGee, of the Monroe Avenue Sunday-school, presided at the sessions. Last night Rev. Dr. Downey, of Elizabeth, addressed the institute on "Sunday-school Evangelism," and Miss Josephine Baldwin, of Newark, spoke on "Character Building of Boys and Girls."

There will be a special meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Temple Baptist church tonight at 8 o'clock. A musical program will be rendered and there will be a roll call of all active and honorary members. The reports of the secretary and treasurer will be read.

Queen Joins Mothers' Club.

Queen Helena of Italy is to become a member of the International Congress of Mothers, according to letters received from the Italian Embassy at Washington by the board of managers of the National Congress at their session at Atlantic City yesterday. In expressing her desire to join in the work for the welfare of children of the world, Queen Helena declared her intention of sending a special envoy to the meeting of the organized mothers of the land, to be held at Denver next year. It is expected that other European sovereigns will follow suit.

Struck by Automobile.

Britton H. Shepherd, a letter carrier of 64 Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, was thrown from his wheel at the corner of Front and Somerset streets this afternoon at 1:45 by collision with an automobile driven by Frank Howard, of West Eighth street. Shepherd was not seriously hurt, but his wheel was wrecked. Mr. Howard offered to settle for the damage to the wheel, although witnesses say that the accident was quite unavoidable. Shepherd went home and will be all right in a day or two.

Arrest Suspicious Characters.

Special Officer Metzheiser, of South Plainfield, today arrested three suspicious characters as they jumped from a coal train at that place. It is believed that the men have police records. They gave their names as Aug. Dandack, Frank Cavanagh and Charles McLaughlin, all of Newark. Officer Metzheiser took the men to New Brunswick, where they were committed by Alderman Suydam, pending a further investigation.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED

Wilson Military Academy Trounces Local Eleven at Finderne.

THE SCORE WAS 23 TO 5.

Fast Game Yesterday Replete With Many Spectacular Plays—The Contest in Detail.

In a fast game between the High School football team and Wilson Military Academy at Finderne yesterday, the high school lost by a score of 23 to 5. Wilson Academy played better than they have ever done before and outclassed Plainfield all along. They made touchdown after touchdown and the high school was utterly at loss how to stop them. Higgins played the star game for the Academy, making every touchdown but one. Doane made the touchdown for P. H. S. on a forward pass.

The game started with P. H. S. kicking off. The Academy caught the ball on the 25-yard line and the man was downed within 15 yards of the goal. With one more centre rush Higgins rushed the ball over the line. No goal was kicked.

The Academy next kicked off and Plainfield rushed the ball to the 30-yard line. They then lost the ball on a fumble and in a very few minutes the Academy was working the ball down the line for a touchdown. Higgins then made another touchdown and kicked the goal.

The Academy kicked off again and the high school was soon held for downs. Higgins then tried a line plunge and they were penalized fifteen yards. High school next regained the ball on a fumble and Overton made a gain of six yards through tackle. Ricketts also made a pretty end run of fifteen yards, but lost the ball on a fumble. The Academy then made gain after gain, during which time Overton and Thompson made some pretty tackles. Higgins next made a touchdown and kicked the goal.

P. H. S. next kicked o and the ball was fumbled back and forth until time was called. The score then stood 17 to 0.

In the second half Wilson kicked off again and Ricketts rushed the ball to the 30-yard line. The ball was then lost on a fumble and Higgins made a gain of 15 yards. He kept this up for five minutes and made a touchdown between the goal posts. He kicked the goal.

Finderne kicked off again and the ball went down on the 15-yard line. The high school then lost the ball on a fumble and Finderne rushed it down the line. They would have made a touchdown but fumbled the ball on the goal line. The high school then got busy and by a series of trick plays and forward passes rushed the ball down the filed to the 15-yard line. A forward pass was then made to Doane, who made a touchdown just as time was called. No goal was kicked. The lineup:

P. H. S.	Finderne.

END OF PLANK ROAD NEAR.

That the Newark plank road, the main artery between Newark and Jersey City, will soon be made into an up-to-date thoroughfare was indicated on Tuesday eveing when bids were received by a joint committee of the Essex and Hudson freeholders for improving Section 1, that part of the road lying between the Hackensack and Passaic rivers. Proposals were also received for a new bridge connecting the road over the Passaic river.

The plank road is at present only 60 feet wide, but the plans for its improvement propose a 100-foot wide thoroughfare. In order that this may be carried out the Newark Meadows Company has given to the two counties a strip of its land on each side of the road.

Freeholders to Visit Plainfield.

The committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders will visit Plainfield tomorrow for the purpose of staking out the plots for soldiers' graves in the local cemeteries, where markers are to be placed at the expense of the county. Hillside and the Plainfield avenue cemeteries will be visted for this purpose. The action is in accordance with the new enacted by the State Legislature.

WOMAN ALONE IN HOUSE MURDEROUSLY ATTACKED

An unknown man entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Granger, situated on the road leading from Warrenville to Mt. Bethel, at about 8 o'clock last night and murderously assaulted Mrs. Granger. The woman was found in bed fully dressed, this morning by a neighbor, Mrs. Steffens. The intruder, whose motive was no doubt robbery, severely beat Mrs. Granger as the marks on her face show. She was rendered unconscious but this morning she was able to tell a somewhat incoherent story of the occurrence.

At about 8 o'clock last night she was alone in the house operating a phonograph when the stranger entered, she says. Being ordered out of the house the intruder attacked her. It is evident that Mrs. Granger tried to defend herself as the furniture of the room was in a confused state, show that a struggle had taken place, and bespattered by blood stains from the woman's wounds.

Dr. Zeglio was notified of the case and hastened there this morning. Mrs. Granger's husband was in New York last night, where he is employed.

It was reported here at noon that a man had been arrested on suspicion at Mt. Bethel, but the report could not be verified up to time of going to press.

WINTER SPORTS FOR THE COUNTRY CLUB

The Plainfield Country club is considering the question of winter sports and at a meeting of the Board of Trustees, Tuesday night, the matter was carefully discussed. A special committee was appointed to investigate the matter, with John P. Stevens, a trustee, as chairman, with power to appoint other members from the club at large. The idea is to flood the upper tennis courts for a skating rink, and to build a toboggan slide.

The slide can be constructed, so as to be taken apart at the end of the winter, and set it up again another year. Thus the cost of making it would not be lost in case of a winter without snow. It is is decided to inaugurate winter sports, arrangements will be made to keep a portion of the clubhouse open and heated, and to serve at least simple hot lunches and suppers.

At the meeting Tuesday night a resolution was unanimously adopted offering a portion of the golf links to the Women's Hockey Club, throughout the entire winter; and if necessary to accommodate the women, one of the regular holes will be given up, or shortened by the use of a temporary tee. The reports of the officers and committees at the business meeting showed the club to be in a most prosperous condition, there having been a large acquisition of new members during the year. The house committee reported that the Maryland suppers at the club on Saturday evenings and during the week, were well patronized and popular. The secretary reported the issue of a new year book, according to the usual custom.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. B. Burtis, of Bordentown, N. J., is visiting Mrs. M. B. Claypoole, of Grandview avenue.

Freeholder and Mrs. Andrew Lutkins, of the borough, leave tonight for an extended pleasure trip to Richmond and other parts of Virginia. Mr. Lutkins expects to spend much of his time in hunting and fishing of which he is very fond.

FORM FARMERS' EXCHANGE.

Burlington County Men Aim at Elimination of Middleman.

The Burlington County Farmers' Exchange was incorporated at Trenton with a capital of $125,000. The object of the new exchange is to have the farmers handle their own crops and place them on the market.

The charter of the exchange is broad. It has power to conduct a manufacturing business for farm commodities, to deal in real estate, to do a general dairy business, and to act as agent, broker or commission merchant. Another provision of the charter is that it may act as promoter in the establishment of any other company or enterprise.

It is expected that the farmers of many other of the agricultural counties in New Jersey will organize similar exchanges.

Widows.

Widows make the most contented wives. They know what not to expect.

A widow and her weeds are soon parted.

A widow is never more dangerous than when she tells a youth that she was never really happy in her married life.

Behold the difference: For consolation the widow has her weeds, the widower his weed.

Never tell a widow that you are not worthy of her. She knows better.

Why isn't a grass widow green?—Smart Set.

TRINITY SINGING SCHOOL

Crowded Auditorium Greets "Professor" Lewis' Willing and Smiling Pupils.

AN UNIQUE MUSICAL TREAT.

Whiskers With Hay in 'Em and Costumes of a Century Ago Create Fun.

The real charm of the "Old Fashioned Singing School," given last night in the Sunday school room of Trinity Reformed church, lay in the sweet singing of the old songs which live forever in the hearts of Americans. "Auld Lang Syne," "Cousin Jedediah" and "Sweet Afton" bring to memory the "days of long ago" as no other melodies can.

An audience numbering nearly 500 listened and applauded the contributions of the chorus of twenty-two voices. The soloists came in for a double share of aprobation. From prim "Betty the Quakeress" to "Ebenezer Doolittle," with a wisp of straw in his whiskers, all the quaint costumes of a century ago were represented and added a piquancy to the singing that was undeniably good.

"Ichabod" Dolliver perhaps failed to see the glances of the waiting maidens as he passed out the music, but there were those who didn't and the laugh was on Ichabod. Many were puzzled to know what the singing master meant when he told Miss Harmony Joy Ticklenotes to pull out the "Nux Vomica" stop on the harmonium, but it didn't prevent a scream from the audience.

If the round, "My Dame had a Name" sounded like a funeral dirge, what can we say of "Peter Gray," as sung by the old music master? Only those who were present can answer this. "I Wouldn't Would You," sung by Miss Roberts, was perhaps one of the best solos of the evening. Miss Roberts has a charming voice, sweet and pleasing and she added the touch of naive originality that is above the average.

Another number, a quartet who couldn't sing "A" properly, received a well deserved encore. A tenor solo, "When the Corn is Waving, Annie Dear," by E. D. Young, of the church quartet, was nicely sung as was a duet between Sister Ruth and Ebenezer Proudfoot Delling. The entertainment ended with the old round, "Three Blind Mice" and left the genius of the evening standing alone oblivious of the fact that his pupils had departed.

Miss Harmony's objections to the soap box piano stool; the excruciatingly funny antics of Temperance, Doolittle, and the abundance of good nature displayed by the much tried singing master were features not to be overlooked.

Mr. Lewis deserves credit for having given an entertainment of a pleasing kind. It was well worth attending if only for its reminiscent value, and must have netted a neat sum for the missionary workers. The ice cream booth was crowded and all the refreshments were sold.

Following were the pupils:

Abijah Bumpers, Fred Cutter; Consider Ruth Fisher, Edna Dilts; Abigail Prue, Mrs. E. Younge; Melelusedek Tubbs, Mr. Dorringer; Phoebe Ann Starbright, Edna Cole; Ebenezer Proudfoot Delling, Mr. Bellerjeau; Harmony Joy Ticklenotes, Lillian Force; Symantha Hopkinson, Miss Randall; Dame Patience Delling, Mrs. Bellerjean; Phineas Pootygood, Mr. E. Young; Soundwell Watts, Mr. Dorringer; Lavina Highnotes, Helen Roberts; Reason Hawkins, Cylde Doane; Comfort Bodkins, Lucie Corriell; Isibel Arise and Tell the Glories of Emanuel Stillwell, Gertrude Schlief; Joshua Barebones, Mr. Van Zandt; Dame Matilda Mobcap, Mrs. Farnham; Temperance Doolittle, Miss Etta Raybert; Uncle Bill Smilax, Mr. E. Honeyman; Demetrius Dewsnap, Mr. Ed Shephard; Ichibod Slicks, Chas. Dolliver; Matthew Hale Apostle Paul Caleb Afterall Bowhall, Charles L. Lewis.

Ignorant of Ordinance.

Contractor Thomas Burke, of 905 West Third street, was fined eight dollars in the city court this morning by Judge Runyon for having violated the ordinance which prohibits the use of the fire hydrants without special permission from the authorities. Mr. Burke had been in the habit of watering his horses from the hydrant near his home and had frightened the neighbors through the rumbling of the water pipes in the vicinity. He pleaded ignorance of the ordinance.

Investigating School Affairs.

The Society of Circles on the Square of New Providence township has appointed a committee of nine, to investigate the public school conditions in the township. Although school was opened in September no supplies for the year have yet been received. The investigating committee is trying to discover where the responsibility lays for the delay.

SOCCER TEAM PLANS TO CELEBRATE DAY

Thanksgiving Day will be observed by the members of the Plainfield Association football club. At a meeting of the club last night it was decided to have a turkey dinner on that occasion in addition to celebrating the day in appropriate fashion.

Another coming social event of interest in the club is the annual dance and entertainment which will be held on the night of December 17, in a hall to be decided on later. The committee in charge is President Tom Chamberlain, George Gray, Thomas Cross, William Spaudling, James Jamieson, Andrew Crowley and William Whitehead.

There was a turnout of forty members at the session and three were added to the enrollment. The billiard and pinochle committees reported that the tournaments are progressing satisfactorily.

ARTISTS ARE HEARD AT PRIVATE MUSICAL

The private musicale given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lipsett, 32 Myrtle avenue, last night, was a great success from a musical point of view, although financially it was not all that was expected. The home was comfortably filled with lovers of music and it was the general opinion that the program was all too short.

The affair was arranged by Clifford A. Braider, organist of the Presbyterian church; Miss M. Florence Nicholls, of this city, was the pianst, and Miss Jessie Utter was the accompanist. Miss Edith Rubel, of New York, was the violinist, and Miss Anne Browne, also of New York, was the soprano. All the artists fulfilled the highest expectations of the guests. The work of Miss Rubel and Miss Browne being of a high character. They were obliged to respond to several encores, as also was Miss Nicholls, whose work as a pianist is well known here.

The musicale was given to raise a fund for the purpose of a piano for a struggling Methodist church at Steedsville, Thompkins county, N. Y., but unfortunately the patronage was not large enough to result in any profit. Mrs. Lipsett is planning to give another musicale at her New York home, when she hopes that the desired amount will be realized.

NORTH PLAINFIELD TWP. MAY LICENSE CANINES

North Plainfield's township committeemen are trying to devise ways and means for the adoption of an effective dog tax. At the meeting of that body yesterday the dog question was discussed at length. The present ordinance provides that owners of dogs pay an annual tax of one dollar per canine, but from all that was said and heard at the monthly conclave of the township solons, the ordinance is ineffective, chiefly because no efforts have been made to enforce the law. Now the committee has in view the adoption of an ordinance similar in constructions to the Plainfield law requiring owners to pay a two dollar license.

The speeding of automobiles through the township was also discussed. According to the views of the members the speed law is being violated every day. To enforce the law on this point it was suggested that the committee authorize the appointment of special constables to act as pickets along the highways, for the purpose of timing the machines as they travel over the township roads.

CHILDREN OF MARY'S BAZAAR A SUCCESS.

The bazaar and dance conducted by the Children of Mary of St. Joseph's church in Saengerbund hall last night was a complete success in every detail. One of the interesting features of the affair was a guessing contest for a handsome doll. The rules governing the contest was that the doll would be presented to the person guessing the name given the doll. The honor fell to little Miss Barry, daughter of Charles Barry, of Howard street. Its name was Margaret, the world name of Mother Raymond.

The cake and ice cream booth which was in charge of the Misses Kate McMahon and Justina Smith was freely patronized as was the fancy department which was conducted by Miss Agnes Fitzgerald. Dancing furnished enjoyment during the evening, the bazaar coming to a termination at 11 o'clock.

OPPOSE SEWERAGE PLANT

North Plainfield's Township Committee Hears of Objections.

A PETITION IS PRESENTED.

Mayor Samuel Townsend Makes Plea for the Necessary Permit From Township Authorities.

That North Plainfield will face some strong opposition in its effort to establish a sewage disposal plant in North Plainfield township was manifested yesterday afternoon at the meeting of the North Plainfield township committee at Watchung. The borough was represented by Mayor Townsend and Clerk Frederick J. Martin, while Mayor elect William A. Sanford and Dr. Pennock were on hand to look out for the interests of Dunellen.

The petition of the borough as adopted by the Council in the resolution passed last Friday night was read to the committeemen by Clerk Martin, and on motion of Committeeman Theodore Deuersen the document was ordered filed. It is not likely that the township committee will take any definite action in the matter until a public meeting is held for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the taxpayers on the matter.

Following the presentation of the petition by Clerk Martin Mayor Townsend was given the privilege of the floor. The borough's chief executive made a brief speech to the committee, in which he asked for a prompt decision on the subject.

"We are close neighbors," said the mayor, "the township and borough have always had close and pleasant relations, and I ask you to consider this matter as a friend and neighbor. The borough does not seek to injure you, but we want to do something that will be a big benefit to you in the future. Look at the matter calmly and dispassionately and take the matter up for the best interests of the community at large. The officials of the borough will appreciate a prompt answer."

After Mr. Townsend's address, George Mobus, the towrship clerk, presented a remonstrance from Carrick and Wortendyke, of Jersey City, attorneys for Mrs. Helen Brown, who is the owner of the old Rice estate, in close proximity to the Cramer and Trust farms, which are two of the proposed sites named in the borough's petition. Mrs. Brown, whose property is valued at $40,000, through her attorneys stated that she was prepared to offer legal objection if an attempt is made to establish the plant near her property.

Seymour L. Smith, also addressed the committee, in behalf of the property owners of the Greenbrook section of the township. Mr. Smith, who was formerly a professor in the Brooklyn Institute of Technology, declared that the taxpayers of that district would oppose any move to establish the plant on the Cramer and Trust farms, but added that he believed if satisfactory damages were paid by the borough, there would be little objection to the location of a plant on the Zovolenck farm, which is the extreme western site, and which adjoins Bridgewater township.

Professor Smith, it was learned, represented about $200,000 worth of property at the meeting. In addition to speaking for himself and Mrs. Brown, he also remonstrated for Stephen Palmer, a New York banker, who is a large property holder in that section of the township, Mrs. Harris, Dr. Bunker, of Brooklyn, and Dr. Tuttle, a member of the medical examining board of the Metropolitan Insurance Company. Edward F. Feickert, of the Plainfield Trust Company, is another taxpayer of that district. Robert Fitzsimmons, the former champion pugilist, and the owners of the Conover farm which skirt Greenbrook, it is understood, will also oppose the scheme.

There was little objection forthcoming on the Zovolenck site, but it was rumored at the meeting, that property owners of the Beechwood Height's section of Bound Brook are preparing a remonstrance. It was also stated that the Bound Brook people have the support of President Herbert, of the State Board of Health, who is a resident of the Beechwood Heights district.

Dunellen went on record, through Mayor-elect William A. Sandford, as against the Trust and Cramer farms. "Dunellen is unalterably opposed to the plant being located on either the Cramer or Trust farms, the residents of that borough prefering the most remote site.

"Dunellen has been patient and long suffering," continued Mr. Sanford. "We have endured one plant on our eastern border (referring to the Plainfield beds), and we do not want another one at our back door. Dunellen will vigorously object to all except the remotest site."

"JOY RIDERS" INDICTED

Mc Iver, Kettenring, Mitchell and Macintyre Must Stand Trial.

THEY ALL PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

Two Charges Against Each Defendant—All Released on Bail Until Cases Are Tried.

Hugh McIver, George Mitchell, Walter Kettenring and George M. Macintyre, of this city, who were implicated in an automobile "joy ride" between this city and Metuchen several months ago, were indicted by the grand jury and arraigned in the county court at Elizabeth, today. They all plead not guilty and trial was set down for November 18. Each man was released on $250 bail, which was furnished.

Another indictment was found in this case, it being claimed by one party that the auto was owned by F. L. C. Martin and by another that it was the property of Albert Cramer. This is merely on a technicality.

The charge on which the four men were indicted was that they took the automobile out without the consent of the owner and indulged in a "joy ride" which terminated with the wreck of the machine and injury to the four occupants of the car. They have since lost their licenses permitting them to drive automobiles. V. W. Nash, Jr., and Robert Newton Crane represent the indicted men.

F. L. Newman, who was also a former employe of F. L. C. Martin, and who was indicted on a charge of taking an automobile from the garage without the consent of the owner and indulging in a "joy ride" a few months ago, was also arraigned today. He entered a plea of not guilty and trial was set for November 18.

R. V. Osgoodby, a traveling salesman of Somerville, who was charged with driving an automobile in this city while in an intoxicated condition, was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. He was released in $500 bail for trial next week. He was not represented by counsel. In all of these cases the men have lost their automobile licenses for violation of the State automobile law.

COULD NOT IDENTIFY HIM AS THE THIEF

William Totten, who was arrested on suspicion of being the man who snatched a pocketbook from the hands of Miss Elsie Horne, of 64 Willow avenue, while the latter was on the way to her home from the depot on Wednesday evening, was released from custody this morning.

In an effort to identify the prisoner as the guilty person, Miss Horne, in company with her father, Charles A. Horne, visited borough police headquarters yesterday. She entertained the opinion that Totten was the guilty man, but she was unwilling to swear to it. Consequently Recorder Dolliver set Totten free this morning.

When arrested by Chief Weiss, Totten admitted to having been in the neighborhood at the time of the holdup, but he stoutly denied taking anybody's pocketbook. Totten formerly lived at "Fountain Green," settlement in the mountains, north of Watchung, but he told Chief Weiss he had no home at the present time.

MRS. GEO. STILLGER AGED 68 YRS. DEAD

Mrs. George Stillger, aged sixty eight years, died at her home on Front street, Scotch Plains, at 10 o'clock last night, after an illness of a few days. She was taken Sunday night with a stroke of paralysis, and owing to her advanced age no hope for her recovery was entertained.

Mrs. Stillger was one of the oldest citizens of the Plains, and well-known. She was a member of St. Mary's R. C. church and until a short time ago, was interested and active in the work of the parish. She was always considered a good neighbor, kind and a sympathetic friend. She is survived by a husband and three children, John Stillger, of Brooklyn; George Stillger, of San Francisco, and Mrs. Frederick K. Clark, of Scotch Plains. The funeral services will be held from the late home on Monday morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Joseph's church at 10 o'clock, where a requiem mass will be said for the repose of her soul.

ARREST IN ASSAULT CASE

Philadelphian in Somerville Jail on Suspicion of Committing Mt. Bethel Crime.

VICTIM IS IN A CRITICAL STATE.

Warren Township Offers $500 Reward for Capture of Guilty Person—To Organize Vigilance Committee.

Aroused to a high pitch of excitement over the brutal assault committed on Mrs. Augustus Grange by a burglar while she was alone at her home near Mt. Bethel on Monday evening, the residents and officials of Warren township are doing all in their power to apprehend the desperado. At a meeting of the Warren Township Committee last night a reward of $500 was offered for the capture of Mrs. Grange's assailant.

The news of the attempted robbery and assault flew like wildfire over the country district yesterday afternoon and two small posses of farmers armed with shotguns scoured the woods and mountains until sundown in search of the robber, but their efforts were futile.

A man giving his name as George Ashbey, and his address, Philadelphia, was arrested by Detective Totten yesterday while that official was scouring the countryside in search of a clue. Ashbey was picked up near Mt. Bethel and was locked up in the county jail at Somerville on suspicion to await future developments in the case. He will be held until Mrs. Grange recovers sufficiently to be given an opportunity of identifying him.

In answers to questions put to him by Detective Totten Ashbey said he was a Frenchman and a former textile worker in the Quaker City. He explained his presence on the mountain due to the fact that he was traveling from Philadelphia to New York on foot and got off the main line of travel and became lost there. He denies all knowledge of the assault.

The outcome of the assault on Mrs. Grange will doubtless result in the organization of a county vigilance committee for better protection in the rural districts of the county. In view of the murderous assault committed on aged Mrs. Bussi some time ago, in connection with recent holdups and burglaries, there is a strong sentiment toward the immediate formation of a protection society.

Dr. E. S. Krans, of this city, who reached the bedside of the injured woman at 11 o'clock, or fourteen hours after the outrage was committed, declared today that Mrs. Grange is in a critical condition. As a result of the encounter she sustained several contusions on her head, in addition to a number of cuts and bruises, two blackened eyes and a sprained wrist. It is also probable that her brain was injured. The victim's condition is considered grave, but if no complications should set in, Dr. Krans believes she has a chance of recovery.

As stated in The Daily Press last night robbery was the sole motive for the act. From Dr. Krans, a Daily Press reporter learned the first details of the case. Mrs Grange, who is about fifty-five years of age, was sitting alone in her home when she responded to a knock on at the door. She was met by the stranger, who forced his way into the house and demanded her money. Mrs. Grange refused to accede to the robber's request, and he retaliated by beating her unmercifully. He left the house without getting possession of her purse, which contained about $20, and left his victim bleeding and unconscious on the floor.

Mrs. Grange remained in a semi-conscious state nearly all night, but at dawn she partly recovered her reason and managed to drag herself to a bed in a hall room, where she was discovered by a neighbor at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Grange had not recovered sufficiently yesterday afternoon when the Somerset county detectives called to give the officers of the law any description of her assailant.

Immediately after the discovery of Mrs. Grange, the victim's husband was summoned from New York and he arrived home at 3 o'clock. Mr. Grange is engaged in the manufacture of looking glasses in the metropolis, and of late he has been coming home once a week, owing to the activity in his line of business.

Begin Work on Market.

The Quoin Investment Company yesterday began operations at the old cab company stables, where it is proposed to establish a public market. The whole interior of the building is being removed to allow for an open space and a solid concrete floor will be laid through North avenue to Second street. It is expected that the market will be opened about December 1.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON "BOXER UPRISING"

The members of Camp Bagley, Spanish-American War Veterans, held a social sesion and smoker in their headquarters, the City National Bank building, last night, and the evening was made more enjoyable through an illustrated lecture on "China and the Boxer Uprising," given by Dr. Harold D. Corbusier. the majority of the views were secured by the lecturer, when he was a surgeon with the United States Army in China.

The views were especially good and gave all an excellent idea of the extent of that conflict. The views were shown by Freeholder J. Hervey Doane, who operated his lantern, while Dr. Corbusier delivered the lecture. Afterward the vets enjoyed a social hour, during which refreshments were served and cigars were passed.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL, K.C., DANCE AT TRUELL HALL

Truell Hall was the scene of a highly successful subscription dance, last night, the affair being held under the auspices of Watchung Council, No. 552 Knights of Columbus. The Knights are well known for their faculty of entertaining and they fully sustained this reputation last night. It was one of the best affairs yet given by the council

Palms and ferns were used for decorations in the ballroom, while the Japanese room, attractively decorated, was a favorite retreat for the dancers. About seventy-five couples were present. The music, which was a feature, was furnished by Charles M. Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. The program included two-steps, waltzes, shottishes, the popular Paul Jones and other numbers. Between 11 and 12 o'clock there was an intermission when supper was served.

The committee in charge comprised Arthur A. Cannon, asistant chairman, the chairman being unable to be present; Charles Kling, Daniel Courain, John J. Carty, Frank McInerney, Michael D. O'Keefe and Francis J. Blatz. The affair was so successful that plans are now being considered to hold another dance. There were guests from New York, Newark, Elizabeth, Roselle, Dunellen, Cranford, Somerville, Westfield, Raritan, South Plainfield and this city.

WANTS AUTOISTS TO PAY FOR KILLING CHICKENS

In the opinion of Mayor-elect William A. Sanford, of Dunellen, the owners of chickens should have some means of redress for the wholesale killing of members of the feathered tribe by automobilists. Sanford declared yesterday that he has lost fully a dozen choice chickens during the pass summer which were run over and killed in front of his home by automobile speeders.

"Only today," said the Mayor-elect to a Daily Press reporter, "an automobile killed one of my finest hens, and I was obliged to partake of a chicken dinner against my will."

For the protection of chicken owners Mayor Sanford offers what looks to be a wise solution of the matter. He suggests that a law be passed whereby chicken raisers can recover the market price of all chickens killed by autos from the municipality of State, the money to be forthcoming from the receipts made possible by the collection of automobile tax money.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS WILL ATTEND ANNUAL VESPER.

John J. Hines is chairman of the committee of arrangements from Watchung Council, and the members will march from their rooms to the church in a body and occupy seats reserved for them during the service.

HELD UP ON R. R. TRAIN

Robber Gets Purse from Fellow Passenger at Point of Revolver.

MAKES GOOD HIS ESCAPE.

Jumped from Train at South Plainfield and Disappeared—Police Search for Him.

The Plainfield police received a telephone communication from the officials of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, at South Plainfield, last night, asking them to be on the lookout for a man of certain description, who was seen getting off a through train from the west at South Plainfield about 4:10 in the afternoon. They said that they had received a message from the officials at Newark that the stranger was suspected of having taken a pocketbook containing $100 from another passenger, whose destination was Newark.

According to the information, the stranger was seen to get off the train and he hung about the railroad station for ten or fifteen minutes, when he was noticed walking toward Plainfield. A half-hour later the station agent at South Plainfield got a message informing him that a Newark man, who had been a passenger on the train, had been relieved of his money and watch, and he was almost sure that the stranger who left the train at South Plainfield was the guilty one.

The stranger was last seen standing near Muhlenberg Hospital and was then noticed going through Randolph road. No further trace could be found. He was described as wearing a light suit of clothes and overcoat and a brown soft felt hat, and he was about medium height. He bore an air of general respectability and when he got off the train at South Plainfield it was noticed that he acted as though he had been asleep. He rubbed his eyes and stretched just as though he might have been sleeping for some time.

The name of the passenger who was held up at the point of a revolver was learned this afternoon. It was given as George R. Hendricks, of South Bethlehem, Pa. According to the latest advices Hendricks was enjoying a nap on the train when he was suddenly awakened by the touch of the cold muzzle of a revolver against his cheek. Thoroughly aroused he instantly realized that he was confronting a desperate man.

He was told to "shell out" without making any outcry and the close proximity of the threatening revolver made him comply. As the train neared the South Plainfield station the robber, still covering his victim, backed out of the door and leaped to the ground. Hendricks was too paralyzed with fear to make any move to alarm the authorities until the train was well under way. On his arrival in Newark he told his story and the search for the bold highwayman was begun. Up to this afternoon no traces of the man had been had.

COLLUCI MUST SUPPORT WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Ernest Colluci, who has been a source of annoyance to the Overseer of the Poor Alexander Hamilton Ayers, because of the squabbles with his wife, who with her three children are likely to become public charges, was put under a bond of $250 this morning by City Judge Runyon this morning to furnish seven dollars per week for the support of his family.

Colucci is already under bonds for his appearance at Elizabeth on a charge of improper conduct with Mary Belan, of Dover.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Miss Dorothy Campbell, the British and American golf champion, giving her impressions in the current number of "The American Golfer," has nothing but praise for the women players on this side of the Atlantic. She says, in part:

It is nearly ten years since I first had the pleasure of playing golf with an American woman, and in these ten years I should think that the standard of play had greatly improved over here, just as it has with us.

I do not think that there is any room for improvement in the long game of American women. The drives and brassie shots of Miss Curtis are, when once seen, never forgotten, and she is only one of many; although perhaps no one else quite gets her tremendous length.

They putt well over here, and with great confidence, and there were fewer short putts missed at Merion this month than in any championship at which I have been. The only part of the game which seems to be slightly behind the others is the approach shot. The sole object of an approach is not merely to be somewhere on the green; the players ought to try to be near enough to the hole to have a chance of getting down in one more. On a course like Merion, where comparatively few of the greens are guarded by bunkers, a running approach played with an iron is likely to be more effective than a pitched shot. Among all those who entered for the championship Mrs. Stout seemed to be the best exponent of the short game, although there were many others whose style of play I greatly admired.

Tom Anderson, Jr., the professional who was recently engaged by the Inwood Country Club, paid another visit to the course the other day, and figured in two matches with Eugene McCarthy, a homebred "pro." Anderson won in the morning by a single hole, but in the afternoon McCarthy won by 2 up.

There will be no match between teams of women of the Forest Field Club and the Hackensack Golf Club over the latter's links this autumn. Last week the Hackensack golfers went to Forest Hill and won, whereupon a return match was arranged for this week. The Forest Hill women, however, begged off until spring when they hope to make a better showing.

Adrian H. Larkin has been renominated for president of the Metropolitan Golf Association by the nominating committee, George E. Watson, Walter E. Hodgman and Cornelius J Sullivan. The annual meeting will be held at Delmonico's, on the evening of December 14. The ticket in full follows:

President, Adrian H. Larkin; vice-president, Frederick S. Wheeler; secretary, Wynant D. Vanderpool; treasurer, Mortimer H. Buckner; executive committee, Harry V. Keep, John Reid, Jr., James L. Taylor, John M. Ward and Findlay S. Douglas.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The repairs have been completed to the boiler at the First Baptist church and no further trouble is anticipated.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a social in Vincent chapel this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The Junior Endeavor Society of the Congregational church will hold a regular meeting this afternoon with an attractive program.

The women of the Congregational church will hold a home missionary tea at the home of Mrs. J. M. Whiton, 821 Central avenue, Tuesday afternoon.

The mid-week prayer meeting at the First Baptist church on Wednesday night, November 17, will be in charge of the Young People's Society and afterward the members will hold a business meeting.

Benevolent Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will have an important meeting tonight, when it is expected that some of the State officers will be present.

The Women's Relief Corps, auxiliary to Post, No. 73, G. A. R., held a regular meeting last night. Arrangements are being made for the annual election of officers and installation. It will doubtless be a joint affair with the Post.

BOY PICKS UP $28; GETS 5c REWARD.

Gottlieb Lentz, a small boy, while walking in Elizabeth avenue, Elizabeth, found $28. Gottlieb was dazed.

"Did you find any money?" asked a stranger.

"I did," said Gottlieb.

"Well, I lost it," said the stranger. He proved his claim.

"Here's a nickel for you, my boy," said he on leaving. "Always remember to be honest."

A Record-Unsurpassed
The Mathushek & Son Piano

is the result of many years of study and experience. The production of creators and masters in the art of Piano building. We invite your careful inspection.

Now Just a Word About Ourselves

Frederick Mathushek, the founder of our house, was born at the Palace of Manheim, Germany, June 9, 1814. Before he reached the age of seventeen years he had made several improvements in pianos. In 1840 he came to America, where he devoted his life to the manufacture and improvement of the piano-forte. Unselfishly he has given to the world the benefit of his wonderful inventive genius, for many of his valuable inventions were not patented, but were given for the benefit of his craft and will be found embodied in the best makes of pianos throughout the world.

KILLED, HIS BODY MAIMS FRIEND.

William A. Bennett, a machinist, of 76 Welton street, New Brunswick, is dead and James Mulligan is believed to be dying in St. Peter's Hospital, New Brunswick, as a result of an accident at the plant of the Neverslip Manufacturing Company last night.

Bennett was trying to put a big belt on its shafting when his arm was caught and he was whirled about the shaft. Mulligan, who was the only other man in the room at the time, ran to his assistance and Bennett's body, revolving about the shaft, struck him and fractured his skull and otherwise injured him.

His screams attracted other workmen and the machinery was stopped. One of Bennett's arms had been torn completely off and was found fifteen feet away. He was horribly disfigured. The employes of the factory were so affected that they left work for the night.

Mulligan was hurried to St. Peter's Hospital by Dr. Charles V. Butler.

Transatlantic Record-Breakers.

The transatlantic record-makers of twenty-five years ago are being laid on the self, so to speak. The Umbria and Etruria represent the last of the single-screw vessels and were the largest and most powerful equipped vessels of their time, but they cannot compete in economical operation with the vessel of today with their two, three and four propellers and those having turbine engines.

OPPOSE SEWERAGE PLANT

Mr. Sanford closed by declaring that Dunellen wanted sewerage, and he implored the township committee to consider Dunellen's wants as well as the interests of the township and North Plainfield.

It was the intention of Mayor Townsend to place the matter before the township board of health, but this part of the program was not carried out, owing to the failure of the clerk to arrive until late.

As the question is of vital importance to the taxpayers in the western end of the township it is probable that a public meeting will be held at Greenbrook some time next week in order to give the interested parties an opportunity to voice their sentiments on the question.

It is now reported that the plant will be operated as a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

FIRST M. E. WOMEN HOLD TEA AND SALE

The tea and sale held yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller on Washington avenue, under the auspices af the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, was a great success, both as to attendance and financial results. The affair was held to raise money for the "renovation fund" with which to improve Vincent chapel and a large amount of money was realized as profit.

Mrs. Nelson A. Miller was assisted in receiving the guests by Mrs. L. M. French, Mrs. Charles M. Anderson and Mrs. George H. Whitney. Mrs. J. C. Peck and Mrs. H. A. McGee presided at the tea table and the Misses Bingaman, Edgar and Campbell assisted in serving

Mrs. J. H. Howell was in charge of the fancy articles, Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull the cakes and Mrs. Maurice McGrath the candy, and they were assisted by other members of the society. The women have been engaged for sometime in raising a fund with which to completely renovate Vincent chapel and they have been very successful.

To Give a Vaudeville Show.

Members of the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest had a social evening last night, and incidentally planned for a couple of future events. On Thursday night, December 9, the ladies of the parish will be entertained by the club, and on a date yet to be fixed for next January, a vaudeville entertainment will be presented by the members. The committee in charge of the entertainment is M. Givens, John Kriney, J. R. Harris, R. L. Laramour and William Silgelim.

Rev. Dr. P. F. Mathews, of Philadelphia, will preach at the Shiloh Baptist church, on West Third street, Sunday morning and night.

SOCIAL EVENING SPENT BY TEMPLE BAPTIST L.A.

An enjoyable evening was spent by the Ladies Aid Society of Temple Baptist church last night, the occasion being the annual meeting of the society at which the reports of the year's work were read. These reports showed that the society is in a flourishing condition and its members were warmly congratulated by L. W. Randolph and the pastor, Rev. John W. Musson, for their work.

A musical program in which several members of the society took part was a pleasing feature of the evening's entertainment. After an organ voluntary by W. A. Conger, Scripture reading by Edward Baker, Jr., and prayer by U. B. Crane, the following program was rendered: Piano duet, Mrs. W. Crow and Miss Marie Viebrock; vocal duet, Mrs. C. Quint and D. C. Paterson; song, Miss Lottie Conger.

Following the above selections the roll call was read including active and honorary members. The reports of the missionary work and treasurer were read and the treasurer reported a balance of $159 on hand.

Another piano duet by Mrs. Crow and Miss Viebrock; a solo by Miss Conger and addresses by Mr. Randolph and the pastor followed. Mrs. Valentine Utzinger was presented with a newly made quilt as a mark of appreciation of her work for the society and Mrs. Utzinger responded to the gift in a happy speech. The meeting was one of the most pleasant in the history of the society.

WILLIAM JACKSON PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGE OF ASSAULT

William Jackson, a negro residing in this city, who was charged with assault and battery in which Patrolman Tobias Nolan, was the complainant, was indicted by the grand jury and was arraigned in the county court, today. He entered a plea of not guilty and he will be tried later.

Jackson, it is said, bit Patrolman Nolan's thumb to such an extent that he was under medical attention for three weeks. This occurred while the officer was endeavoring to arrest Jackson for an infraction of the law.

Bowling Tourney at Park Club.

The bowling members of the Park Club met last night at the clubhouse for the first this season and planned to hold a tourney during the winter. It was decided to bowl every Thursday night, beginning at 8:15 o'clock and so many have assured the committee of their intention of engaging in the tourney that there is no doubt as to its success.

Another Wanderlust Victim.

S. P. Debbie, a sixteen-year-old youth, of Scotch Plains, has been reported missing from the home of his parents in that village. It is said that this is not the first time that he has disappeared and probably has a well developed wanderlust.

To Hold Entertainment.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, will give an entertainment and social at their rooms in the Babcock building tomorrow evening to the members and friends. Eight o'clock is the hour set for the festivities to begin.

ERROR ON BALLOTS CAUSES TROUBLE.

Kinney Objects to "One Year," Claiming He Was Elected to Fill Vacancy.

An error on the election ballots used in the Sixth ward, New Brunswick, at the recent election may result in Peter Kinney not being able to take his seat, which will mean that Common Council next year will be a tie politically just as it has been for several months. The ballots stated that he was a candidate for the one-year term instead of the unexpired term.

When Mr. Kinney went to take the oath of office yesterday Clerk James A. Morrison refused to administer it excepting for the unexpired term. Kinney then went to Mayor W. R. Florance with his counsel, Robert Adrian, and took the oath for the unexpired term. Later he took the other oath before City Clerk Morrison and filed a protest against the insertion of the words for the one year term in the oath.

Mr. Kinney will take his seat tonight when Council meets.

PASSAIC FIREBUG MAKES ODD CONFESSION.

Passaic, Nov. 12.—A startling confession was made yesterday by Philip Goldberg, who was arrested here several months ago, charged with setting fire to the stables of Rinzler Brothers, in President street. It is said that he has made known the names of five First ward men who paid him to set fire to their properties.

An insurance concern, through its local agent, is reported to have made a demand upon a First ward merchant to return $12,000 insurance money collected for fire damages to his building three years ago.

BIG CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Largest in the World Grown in Madison.

Madison, Nov. 12.—America now holds the honor of producing the largest chrysanthemum ever known. It was exhibited for the first time Wednesday evening at the show of the American Institute and Chrysanthemum Society of America, and was sixteen inches across. England has always had the lead in this flower before, but its best bloom is only fourteen inches in diameter. The new wonder was raised on the estate of Mrs. D. Willis James, at Madison, by William Duckman. Mr. Duckman hybridized the French chrysanthemum President Loubet (white) with an American seedling of Mary Inglis (an Australian bronzy yellow bloom) and planted the seed two years ago. Last year he took cuttings from the best seedling and grew about a score of plants, all of which produced huge lemon-white blooms, surpassing anything hitherto known in point of size.

Mr. Duckham called his new variety Onunda, after Mrs. James' estate. It was awarded a certificate of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. The judges marked it 94, out of a possible 100.

TEACHERS IN INSTITUTE.

Hunterdon Schoolmarms Gather in Flemington.

Yesterday's session of the Hunterdon County Teachers' Institute was held in the Court House, Flemington. Robert R. Leavitt, of the State Normal School, spoke on "The Natural History of Certain Germs," and John C. Stone, of the State Normal School, talked on "The Purposes of a Problem in Arithmetic." Yesterday afternoon Mr. Leavitt spoke on "What We Know About Some Forms of Infection," and Mr. Stone talked on "Primary Number Work, Drills, etc."

At the close of the afternoon session Norman Landis gave an organ recital in the First Presbyterian church, assisted by Mrs. Arthur F. Foran, soprano.

INDICTS SLAYERS.

The Grand Jury at Elizabeth yesterday brought in an indictment against Hattie Huyck, 16 years old, for strangling her infant with a silken cord. She later pleaded not guilty. She will be defended by Charles Wagner. The girl's father is reported to have attempted suicide in New York because of his daughter's predicament. The case has been before the officials some time.

Herbert Alessi, charged with double murder, was also indicted as was John Allen, better known as "Sailor Jack," accused of stabbing James Carey to death.

Pretty Cranford Wedding.

Miss Pearl Stielow Thorp, daughter of Mrs. William Thorp, of 117 North avenue, West, Cranford, became the bride of Jesse G. Webster, of Asbury Park, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The young couple were married by the Rev. E. E. Pearce in the parsonage of the First M. E. church in Walnut avenue, Cranford. Miss Lillian Thorp, a sister to the bride, was maid of honor, and James Gray, of Maplewood, was best man.

Teets—Jeroloman.

Emmet Dewitt Teets, of Bedminster, and Miss Christine Jeroloman, daughter of Mrs. M. Jeroloman, of Union street, Westfield, were married by the Rev. Dr. Hayes, at the Methodist parsonage, Cranford, at noon yesterday. Mr. Teets is a contractor and recently sold his business in Bedminster. The couple will reside in Westfield.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Realism without sensationalism is the keynote of Daniel Sully's new play, "The Game," which comes to the Plainfield theatre on November 17. The story itself is one of real life. The character of Tim Mayo in which Mr. Sully appears is a living and most picturesque personality in the Western town, where the scenes are laid, and the town really exists under another name in the gold regions of Nevada.

The entire Byrne family, John F., James and Andrew, assume the leading parts in the successful "Eight Bells." Nothing has been left undone to make this production one of the real novelties of the season. It will be seen at the Plainfield theatre matinee and night November 20.

PASTOR WILL TAP A KEG IN CHURCH.

The Rev. Dr. Henry T. Beatty, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Hudson and Sixth streets, Bayonne, will tap a keg in his church and sample the contents at the first meeting of the Men's Club tonight.

"But," said Dr. Beatty, "the keg will contain sweet cider—I'll sample it first myself to make sure. We had two temperance speakers from the Anti-Saloon League in our church last week, and while I can't see any harm in a regular keg going in the church I want to make sure as to what's in it."

"Are you an expert?" Dr. Beatty was asked. "That is, are you sure you could tell if it wasn't cider?"

"I'm sure I can tell if it is,' replied Dr. Beatty.

So the keg is to be there and is to be tapped. There is also to be a barrel of apples for the "boys." They won't eat them from china dishes and won't pare them with silver fruit knives. It's going to be a sort of country store affair—those who have penknives can pare their apples; those who don't can bite through the skins.

The "cider and apples" proposition is exciting considerable talk in the congregation, and while some of the older heads have sat up and taken notice on this new way of getting the men interested they have made no out-and-out objection. But it is stated that these older heads will watch the young men as they go home.

"You can't always tell about cider, you know," said one of these elders.

THEATRES NOT BAD SAYS DR. DOWNEY.

Yesterday afternoon's program at the annual Sunday school institute of the Methodist Episcopal church in St. James' church, Elizabeth, included an address by the Rev. Dr. Lewis on "The Big Boy and the Big Girl," and an address by Miss Josephine Baldwin, of Newark, on "Character Building With Boys and Girls." The Rev. Dr. David G. Downey spoke on "The Right Sort of a School." He urged preachers not to dwell too much on the immorality of the theatre, but to dwell on its force in having a bad influence on the public.

The Rev. Dr. T. I. Coultas, pastor of St. James' church, made a brief address following that of Dr. Downey in which he said that the false logic used in the defense of the better things for which the Methodist church stands has had a bad influence on the thinking young people in the church. "There was much good outside of the church, too," he added.

Mrs. J. Woodbridge Barnes, of Newark, spoke at the morning session, making many suggestions for teaching children in the Sunday schools. The Rev. D. B. F. Randolph, district superintendent, presided at the afternoon session. Devotional exercises, conducted by the Rev. Staley F. Davis, brought the session to a close. The committee in charge of the institute was the Rev. Dr. T. I. Coultas, G. T. Egbert and the Rev. Dr. Randolph.

Mrs. Newed—George, dear, that range we bought last week is no good. We'll have to get another one.

Newed—Why, darling, what's wrong with it? It's one of the best made.

Mrs. Newed—Well, I can't help that. I tried to bake a lemon pie in it this morning and it came out a pudding.

SIAM'S ARMAMENT PLANT.

The King Plans Installation of a Modern Factory.

Consul Albert Halstead sends the following abstract from the Birmingham Dail Post concerning the establishment of an armament plant in Siam, together with a comment:

"Some time since reference was made to the anxiety of the King of Siam to establish armament factories in his country after the European plan. I am now given to understand that this desire has assumed definite shape. It is probable that the king will follow his own example in connection with his reorganized finance and woods and forests departments, and apply to the government of India for the loan of a responsible official in order to initiate his scheme. Where possible, native ingenuity and labor will be requisitioned, but it is also certain that this Anglo-Indian official will desire to have British associates. At all events, the scheme is apparently to be carried into effect, and it may be assumed that it will be under British auspices."

In view of the fact that American factories could probably comply more promptly with the requirements of Siam for armament factories, it seems that, despite the fact that an official from India would naturally show preference to British manufacturers of armament machinery, American manufacturers, by quoting suitable terms and seeking the business immediately, should be able to enter into the competition with considerable chance of success.—Consular Reports.

Harry W. Leek, of 311 East Fifth street, who has been detained at home by illness, is slightly improved.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

"The Sons of Rest" of Paulsboro have organized with Edward Henry, president; Charles Zane, secretary and treasurer.

The first of the winter's series of farmers' institutes in South Jersey will be held at Swedesboro Wednesday and Thursday next.

When Mayor Adamson opened Paulsboro Council meeting Wednesday night he said he wanted everybody to understand that hereafter all persons accusing him of receiving graft will be arrested and brought to justice.

Charles Vanhest has two of the largest hen's eggs ever seen in Glassboro. One measures 7⅞ inches around the long way, 6½ inches around the short way and weighs 3¼ ounces. The other measures 8⅛ inches by 6⅝ inches and weighs four ounces.

Accused of threatening Game Warden Folker, in the discharge of his duties, John Branning and William Muth, both of Philadelphia, were committed to jail in default of a fine of $100 and costs each by Justice of the Peace Schmitz, in Camden Wednesday.

John W. Sine, a Pennsylvania Railroad flagman, had a narrow escape from being killed Wednesday night when he was knocked from a car and injured at Trenton. Sine was standing on top of a box car and was thrown off, and his head struck on the rails. He sustained a laceration of the scalp and slight concussion of the brain.

An investigation of the blaze at Lewis C. Duncan's farm at Westville shows that oil was sprinkled about the boiler and packing-house where the fire started. The authorities believe that it was the work of a firebug. Besides the boiler and packing-house, parts of the greenhouses and about $2,000 worth of greenhouse products were destroyed by the flames.

There will be instituted at St. Rose's church, Haddon Heights, Sunday, a new council of the Knights of Columbus, to be known as Santa Marie Council No. 1443. The blessing of the holy sacrament will be given on the church lawn by Rev. Joseph A. Egan, assisted by several visiting clergy, and the degrees will be conferred in the town hall.

The home of Edward Krause, of 10 Tyler street, Paterson, was badly damaged by fire and water Wednesday afternoon. The fire originated in a bedroom, and the side walls were burning before neighbors gave the alarm. Michael Brett, foreman of the city yards, seized a chemical extinguisher from the hosehouse and did good work, checking the flames.

An otter that weighed seventeen pounds and measured nearly five feet in length was shot Wednesday at Clayton by Otis Coleman and William Lloyd, who refused an offer of $20 for the animal. When the gunners appeared the otter had just swallowed a pickerel eighteen inches long, which had almost choked in attempting to swallow a pike ten inches in length.

Elaborate preparations have been made for the corner-stone laying of the new Third Presbyterian church, which will take place corner of Grand and Prince streets, Paterson, tomorrow afternoon. PARISH MEMORIAL FOR THE DEPARTED RECTOR

In memory of the Rev. Cornelius G. Bristol, son-in-law of Dr. H. H. Lowrie, of Park avenue, who was rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, at Hartford, Conn., for eight years, new choir stalls have been erected in the church. This memorial was set in the church and used for the first time on Sunday, October 10, and the work was completed two weeks later. The special service of blessing was held in connection with the regular morning service on October 31, the eve of All Saints' Day, the hymns and the sermon being made appropriate to the occasion.

Mr. Bristol, after a service of eight years as rector of the church, died in 1901. Announcement was made by the rector of the church last winter that it had been decided by the vestry to ask from friends of Mr. Bristol, contributions to a memorial to him to be erected in the church. Dependence was placed on free will offerings entirely from those who knew the late rector. Later on it was voted by the vestry that the memorial take the form of improvements in the chancel.

All the furniture in the chancel is now arranged symmetrically on each side and produces a very beautiful effect. The wood is chestnut finished in light color which is the case throughout the church. The chancel is now more open than before and the altar more prominent in appearance as it ought to be. On the stone pillar back of the pulpit is placed a brass table etched and with this inscription: "The Choir Stalls in this Chancel are a Memorial to Cornelius Gardner Bristol, Priest, Rector of this Parish 1893-1901. A Faithful Minister of Christ."

Mrs. Bristol, wife of the late rector, who now lives with her father, Dr. H. H. Lowrie, was present at the services on Sunday, October 31.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES TO BE HELD AT SWEDISH CHURCH

The ministers who will preach at these special services will be Rev. H. Gildseth, of Port Richmond, N. Y., tonight; Rev. J. Hollis, of Brooklyn, tomorrow night; Rev. A. L. Anderson, of New York, Sunday morning; Rev. N. W. Nelson, of Jersey City, in the afternoon, and Rev. A. Anderson, of Brooklyn, in the evening. There will be special music at each service.

All Scandinavian people are invited to the services.

John Shirley's Funeral.

Funeral services over the remains of the late John Shirley were conducted at St. Mary's church this morning, where a solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the rector, Rev. Bernard M. Bogan, assisted by Fathers Hogan and Sciola. Albert Mathews, of St. Mary's choir, rendered two solos. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful and included set pieces from the Red Men and Independent Order of Foresters. The bearers were Alexander Lusardi, William Schaefer, Edward Lynch, Robert Parsons, Anthony Martel, Peter McCloskey. Delegations from the lodges of Red Men and Foresters attended in a body. Photographs of the flower covered grave were made just after the interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Got Bad Fall While Drunk.

George R. Nolan, of Madison avenue, is lying on the gridiron in a cell at police headquarters in a partly comatose condition as the result of a fall last night at 8:30, while he was under the influence of liquor on West Front street. He fell heavily on the sidewalk striking his head hard enough to raise a lump as big as a duck's egg. City Physician Lufburrow attended Nolan last night and was called again this morning and made a more thorough examination of the man. Dr. Lufburrow said Nolan was in no danger and would be all right after he recovers from the effects of his over indulgence.

Lecture on Japan.

An interesting talk on Japan was given at Warren chapel last night by Arthur Maclay. Mr. Maclay illustrated his remarks by lantern slides. The speaker told his hearers many incidents of his trip to the Flowery Kingdom and many personal observations he made while there.

Campbell to the Rescue.

Former Police Chief William Campbell, who has probably caught more runaways than any other individual in the city or borough added another "catch" to his string this morning. On Somerset street the horse attached to Harten's delivery wagon became restless while the driver was delivering an order in the house of a customer and started on a jog down the thoroughfare. Campbell happened to be "Johnny-on-the-spot" and he made a dash into the street and captured the fleeing animal.

WOMAN SMOKER LIVED LONG

Mary Frith, Highway Robber, the First of Her Sex to Use Tobacco in England.

Mary Frith, better known as Moll Cutpurse, was a notable figure in old time London life. She had the reputation of being the first woman to smoke tobacco in England.

The length of her days is a disputed point, but it seems certain that she attained the age of over threescore years and ten. It is asserted that constant smoking prolonged her life. A portrait representing her in the act of smoking forms the frontispiece of Middleton's comedy of the "Roaring Girl." She also figures in other plays of the period.

Mary was the daughter of a shoemaker living in the Barbican, and Malone gives 1584 as the date of her birth. She early took to wicked ways and became a noted "highwayman." Among her familiar friends were the notorious Capt. Hind and Richard Hannam. She was an expert swordswoman. Single-handed she robbed on Hounslow Heath. Gen. Fairfax of 200 gold jacobuses, shooting him through the arm and killing two of his horses on which his servants were riding. For the offense she was committed to Newgate, but on paying the general £2,000 she obtained her liberty.

At one time Mary had £3,000 of her own, but by giving money to distressed cavaliers she died comparatively poor. Her death took place in July, 1659, and she was laid to rest in St. Bridget's.

ARE USED TO BEING CROWDED

Passengers on New York Street Car Sit Close Even When It Is Not Necessary.

The woman with a sense of humor smiled. "It is funny," said she, "how content some people are to sit jammed together in the cars."

"But they can't help themselves," protested her companion.

"I know, but I refer to the times when they are not obliged to occupy the same six inches with their next neighbors. When a crowded car begins to thin out, most people expand, but some forget to. I have seen the women who has been shopping squeeze into a seat beside a laborer at the rush hour, and, just as often as not, she continues to tickle his nose with her plumes clear up to Harlem, after the car is half empty, and to rest her bundles on his lime-coated overalls.

"One night, quite late, away uptown on a Broadway car, a young man and young woman sat propped together midway of a long, empty seat. There was not another passenger left in that side of the car. They paid no attention to each other, and I supposed that they were too tired to talk. It was quite a shock to my calculations when the young man got off and left the girl sitting apathetically in the empty seat. I had estimated them as first cousins at the furthest."—New York Press.

Scales for Dyspeptics.

"When I got my last prescription made up the druggist showed me a pair of pocket scales for weighing food," said the sallow complexioned man. "He said he could tell by the medicine I was taking that I would have to be mighty careful about the quantity of food I ate, and he urged me to buy the scales so I could be sure not to overeat. They were the first scales designed especially for dyspeptics I had seen. They cost two dollars. No doubt they could be used for weighing other things, but that druggist offered them only to customers whose digestion was out of order. The scales were small enough to be carried conveniently and they registered rations light enough to starve a canary. I did not buy, but the druggist assured me that many persons who are on a strict diet have provided themselves with pocket scales on which they weigh every bite they eat."

Worst Pest Than Brigands.

On the highways of turbulent Catalonia one might expect that the chief danger to the traveler would be the brigand. By no means! The greatest pests are the small children, who accost one at every turn. Treated with the utmost consideration by their parents—they are never corrected, it is said, in any circumstances whatsoever—they track the foreigner, with the irritating pertinacity of the mosquito. And, like the mosquito, they seek blood, crying:

"I have neither father nor mother! Cince centimos!" And the grubby hands shoot up into one's face.

The Consoling Volume.

There was a backward student at Balliol who, for failure to pass an examination in Greek, was "sent down." His mother went to see the master, Dr. Jowett, and explained to him what an excellent lad her son was. "It is a hard experience for him, this disgrace," said the old lady; "but he will have the consolation of religion, and there is always one book to which he can turn." Jowett eyed her for a moment and then answered: "Yes, madam; the Greek grammar. Good-morning."

Why Mary Recovered.

"John, I don't want you to grieve too long when I am gone."

"I shall have to look sorry for a week or two, Mary, just for the looks of things, but I shall perk up after that and begin to take notice. Don't you think Widow Jinx is a fine lookin' little woman?"—Houston Post.

DAINTY TOUCHES ON TABLE MEAN MUCH.

Effective Garnishing of Dishes More a Matter of Taste Than Money—Flowers or Leaf for Finger Bowl.

Have you ever stopped to wonder how tomatoes would taste if they were not such a pretty red; or if French creams would tempt us if served in the form of hash? It takes a little more trouble to serve a meal in dainty form, but how much better the plainest food tastes? The shining linen and silver, the sprig of green on shining meat platter and the neat rice mold with tomato sauce, all serve to transform the pickup wash-day meal.

Garnishing is more a question of taste and time than money. Through most of the year a few leaves picked from shrubs or trees and tucked in on the edges of a platter of meat or fruit enhance the appearance of the dish, while for the other months parsley can easily be raised in a window box.

Most people will garnish their meats with a few sprigs of green and neglect all other dishes. Fruit looks much more inviting if it is set in a bed of green or has clusters of foliage put among it. As far as possible use the natural foliage. Grape leaves are excellent for large fruits as cantaloupes, and the nasturtium leaves and tendrils are effective on salad that is not set on lettuce hearts.

A touch of color always looks well combined with the green; thus the small sweet peppers or cherry tomatoes should be raised in every garden, even if one has but a small vegetable patch in a city yard.

Carrots, beets, cucumbers, lemons in slices or sections, hard-boiled eggs and the tiny yellow tomatoes all lend themselves to garnishing. Candied fruit is equally effective, but costs more than the average housewife can afford.

Oysters are improved by sections of lemon and sprigs of mint through the ice. Indeed, cracked ice may be used artistically instead of merely as a chiller. Raw oysters or grape fruit may be just as cold to the palate if they have been set in the refrigerator for hours and served without ice, but it certainly will not be so attractive to the eye as when passed in a bed of shaved ice.

A finger bowl should always have a few flowers or a leaf floating on the surface of the water. Rose geranium leaves and lemon verbena are delicious; while a few nasturtium blossoms give a charming touch of color.

Do not think such garnishing is unnecessary for the simple family meal; it adds a refining touch that goes a long way toward making up a scanty menu.

Full Linen Closets.

A systematic housekeeper sees to it that her supply of linen never gets low.

To bring about this much-to-be-desired result she has made it a rule for years to purchase annually a dozen face towels, a pair of sheets, at least one tablecloth, four bath towels and a dozen napkins.

Of course, the amount of linen needed varied greatly with the size of the household, but a little study of the condition of the linen supply will enable each housewife to determine pretty accurately what is necessarily cast aside each year.

The worn tablecloth is cut up into the face towels for the little folks or into napkins for kitchen use.

Arrowroot Biscuit.

Sift together two cupfuls of arrowroot and one cupful of flour. Rub two-thirds of a cupful of butter into the flour and stir gradually a little very rich milk, sufficient to make a stiff dough. Roll out into a thick sheet, beat with the rolling pin, fold, roll out, and beat again, and repeat the rolling and beating for five minutes. Roll out the last time about an inch thick, cut with a round cutter, brush with egg, sprinkle with sugar and bake in a moderate oven with a stronger bottom heat.

Broiled Chicken on Toast.

Broil the usual way, and when done take up in a square tin or dripping pan, butter well, season with pepper and salt and set in the oven for a few minutes. Lay slices of moistened toast on a platter, take the chicken up and lay on the toast. Add to the gravy in the pan part of a cup of cream or rich milk, thicken with a little flour and pour over the chicken.

Polenta Dabs.

Scald a pint of white Indian meal in boiling water. Mix together one tablespoonful of butter, two beaten eggs, two tablespoons of cream and a dash of salt. Stir into the cornmeal, beat well for a few moments and drop from a spoon into the buttered pan. Bake in a moderate over until brown.

Oyster Shell Scraper.

An oyster shell is the very best thing to scrape saucepans and kettles; when once you have used them, you will never return to a knife, spoon or a link dishcloth; they (the oyster shells) are sharp and lend themselves to all corners.—"Little Helps," in the National Magazine.

Savory Cheese Patties.

Butter 12 water biscuits, then put a good layer of cheese over the butter, which should have been spread very thin. Dust with paprika and set in the oven until the cheese melts. Serve very hot.

Colonel John Sneed's Conversations on Domestic Problems

Copyright, 1909, by C. S. Yost.

VI.—The Sunken Rocks of Matrimony

WHEN Colonel Sneed dropped in to say good morning to his daughter, young Mrs. Rollins, he was surprised to find her in tears.

"Why, what's the matter, honey?" he inquired with tender solicitude. "Anything wrong with the baby?"

"No, papa, the baby's all right," she answered, wiping her face and dabbing a little powder on her nose.

"Nothing happened to William, I hope," ventured the colonel, a little puzzled.

Mrs. Rollins straightened up, and a flash came into her eyes.

"Yes, papa, if you must know it, something has happened to Will. He spent five minutes brushing his hair this morning, he put on a red necktie, and he's got a—got a new typewriter."

At this revelation of masculine duplicity the colonel puckered up his lips and drew down his eyebrows to hide the twinkle he couldn't suppress.

"So-ho," he exclaimed, "and that's the way the land lies, is it? And you just put two and two together and made seven out of it, did you? Tut, tut, tut, child; you mustn't let suspicions turn your pretty nose red.

MASCULINE DUPLICITY.

First thing you know you'll have your complexion all ruined, and that would never do. Fact is, honey, you're barkin' up the wrong tree. There's nothin' the matter with Bill. I happen to know that he's got a particular engagement this mornin', and there's good reason why he wants to look a little spruce. There's no petticoats in the deal, my dear, and as to the new typewriter, why, she's old enough to be your mother, and she's got anywhere from three to seven children. I don't remember the exact number she told me, but it was quite a bunch."

"But why," persisted Mrs. Rollins, "did he put on a red necktie?"

"Ah, honey, you've got me there. I never could understand why any man should want to wear a red necktie at any time. But lots of good fellows do, and I've never been able to discover that it had any bad effect on their morals. Seriously, though, little girl, you mustn't get in the habit of puttin' two and two together, as the sayin' goes. Nine cases out of ten they add up wrong, and it's a mighty poor kind of figurin' anyhow.

"I s'pose you've heard about the sea of matrimony, haven't you? Of course you have. But I don't reckon anybody ever told you, not even your old daddy, about the sunken rocks. It's considerable of a sea, you know, and there's lots of ships on it, all kinds of ships, from little catboats to battleships, and some of them go sailin' over smooth water all the time, and some don't more than get out of one storm when another hits 'em. It's such an uncertain sea that it's wonderful how many vessels cross it in safety, but there's lots of wrecks, too, and most of the ships that's lost go to pieces on these sunken rocks. They hide their ugly heads just under the surface, and nobody knows they're there until the boat goes crashin' into 'em. That's the worst part about 'em. If they stood up a little ways so a pilot could see 'em he could steer around 'em, but the sea where they are looks just like it does anywhere else, and there ain't any lighthouse in the neighborhood to warn him.

"NO PETTICOATS IN THE DEAL."

"Now, little girl, your ship's gettin' mighty close to these sunken rocks, and you'd better sheer off before somethin' goes to pieces. I've been navigatin' around on this sea of matrimony a pretty long while, and I've seen enough wrecks to know just about where the suspicion rocks are located. That's the name of 'em—the suspicion rocks—and the biggest and ugliest and meanest one in the bunch is the one they call jealousy. It's the one that's got the sharpest points and cuts the biggest holes in the bottom of the ship, and it's a thunderin' good boat that can get away from it without bein' so badly crippled that the pumps have to be worked all the rest of the trip to keep from goin' down.

"Of course that's all just allegory. First thing you know you'll have your complexion all ruined, and that would never do. Fact is, honey, you're barkin' up the wrong tree. There's nothin' the matter with Bill. I happen to know that he's got a particular engagement this mornin', and there's good reason why he wants to look a little spruce. There's no petticoats in the deal, my dear, and as to the new typewriter, why, she's old enough to be your mother, and she's got anywhere from three to seven children. The dying woman lay propped against a pillow, and her thin face brightened as she saw Philip. No, she wasn't lonely, and, anyway, Ella mustn't miss her school. Oh, yes, they were comfortable enough. Ella didn't mind sleeping on a blanket—over there in the corner. The rent? Why, $4 a month. It was a nice room, only she wished the sun could shine in. She loved the sun. There were a few weeks in June when the sun did shine in, but June was a long way off. She closed her eyes wearily and lay still.

"Well?" asked Philip.

"There's nothing to say," replied Haggleton. "She's going to die. We're all going to die."

"But that child—only eight years old?"

"It's life," said Haggleton.

The next case was farther down the street—an Irish longshoreman about thirty-five, who also was nearing his end—consumption and cancer of the throat. He had been in the hospital, but had come home for his last days. He wanted to be near the wife and the kid—a little fellow of five, playing about, barefoot, on the cold floor.

The sick man lay in a foul back room where there was no window. He knew that he was dying, but he was happy to be home again near the wife and the kid. He was in no pain.

Haggleton beckoned the woman into the front room and questioned her. It was exposure to bad weather that had caused his sickness, not drinking. Did she work herself? Yes; she did cleaning.

As they came away Haggleton discussed this case. What could you expect? There must have been some taint in him. A sound man doesn't get cancer and consumption. He didn't; Philip didn't. This Irishman was evidently unsound.

"Haven't you any pity for an unsound man?" protested Philip.

"What's the use of pity? An unsound man is unsound. He's sure to perish; better he should. The way to improve the race is to prune away the weak and unworthy. That's what poverty does."

"And the weak ought to perish—you really mean that?"

"Certainly, whether they're weak in body or mind."

"My God!" exclaimed Philip. "That's the most brutal talk I ever heard!"

"Brutal, yes, but—think it over. I say the weak and the unworthy ought to perish. It's true when you grow fruits, when you breed animals, isn't it? Then why isn't it true if you want to build up a race of men?"

"Because"—Philip hesitated—"because the greatest authority in the world is against you."

"What authority is that?"

"The authority that says, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.'"

"H'm!" grunted Haggleton and fell into silence.

They had come to a block of better looking tenements and made their way to a four room flat with signs of relative prosperity if not of cleanliness. This was the home of a strong Italian woman who supported her family by taking in washing. The mother explained that her husband had temporarily abandoned her, so she had taken two lady boarders.

The two lady boarders presently appeared, one showing a hand bulkily bandaged and the other a very queer face. It was the girl with the bandaged hand who had stirred Philip's interest. She was a "dipper" at the gold dust factory in which Jenny Moran worked and had contracted tuberculosis of the joints. This had shown itself in her hand, which had swollen to double its size and had just been operated upon at the hospital. She unwrapped the cloth and exposed a sickly, whitish mass with deep red cuts where the knife had gone. The hand looked dead and useless.

Philip whispered to Haggleton that the doctor had told him the disease would probably spread through the girl's body and ultimately kill her. It was clearly a life put in jeopardy by a dangerous trade.

But Haggleton's curiosity was not yet satisfied. He wanted to know what was the matter with the other lady boarder's face. And after some questioning he discovered that she was the victim of a beauty doctor. In spite of her poverty, she had somehow raised $90 and given it to this wretch—sixty for removing a deep frown line in her forehead and thirty for filling in a wrinkle. And the result was that the paraffin injected into the forehead had run together in a lump, so that she seemed to have a perpetual angry boil between her eyes, while the paraffin for the wrinkle had spread under her cheek, making it now red, now purple, according to the weather. She had become a living barometer.

"Now, then," triumphed Haggleton on the floor below, "was I right in saying that the poor are extravagant? Ninety dollars for a beauty doctor when she had no shoes!"

"She was foolish," admitted Philip, "but there are worse things than that."

He turned into a forbidding street that stretched like a sinister canyon [illegible]

"The greatest authority in the world is against you."

ments.

"Do you know who owns this block?" asked Philip.

"Why—er—yes, of course, I own it."

"And it's one of the possessions you needn't be proud of. Every room and corner is poisoned with consumption germs. They call it 'lung block.'"

"'Lung block,'" mused Haggleton. "Well, that's only a name."

Philip entered the first tenement at hand and stopped at two narrow doors that stood side by side halfway down the hall. He opened these doors and looked in. Then he went up another flight and opened two corresponding doors.

"What are you doing?"

"Wait," replied Philip, and he continued his search in the next tenement.

"Ah!" he exclaimed. "I thought so." They were standing in the half lighted hallway of a third floor.

"Look there!" He pointed to the boards under one of the two doors.

"They are wet," said Haggleton. Then he looked closer. "No; it's not water. It—it's red!"

"Open the door," said Philip.

Haggleton obeyed and in spite of himself started back at the stench. "Horrible!" he cried. "What is it?"

"One of the signs," answered Philip, "a thing you can see almost any day in this block."

"But—but where does it come from?"

Philip answered sternly: "From the men and women and children who pay you rent for tainted homes. Sometimes it's sprinkled all along the halls. They have no marble bathrooms, sir, these tenants of yours, when they have hemorrhages!"

CHAPTER VIII.

AFTER THE BALL.

A FEW nights later Philip kept his promise to Jenny Moran and accompanied her to one of the numerous balls that form so important a factor of the social life of the lower east side of New York in winter.

As they entered the hall about 200 couples were doing a slow twostep with set and serious faces, most of the girls chewing gum in time to the measure and many of the young men holding lighted cigars or cigarettes between two fingers, while the other two clasped the lady's hand.

One look at Philip's face showed Jenny that he did not care much for this, and as she cared very little about it herself (what she wanted was to get him alone) she suggested that they go up into the gallery and look on, and, if Philip felt like ordering two glasses of beer, why, that would be very nice. Philip ordered the beer, and they took seats in the gallery.

Presently the music struck up an inviting waltz with a languorous, intensified beat, and Jenny leaned forward with a half sad, half longing expression which, she knew very well, heightened her beauty, especially in profile. Then suddenly she turned to him with a warm, appealing look. "I suppose I must give it all up, mustn't I, Phil?"

She was like a disappointed child, and he felt sorry for her. "You mean dancing? Why, no! There's no harm in dancing."

They danced the next waltz, and as Philip held the lithe young creature and felt her graceful, supple movements he realized vaguely that she was not created for factory toil and a dull tenement life. And Jenny, gliding to the delicious measure, forgot all but one thing—that she was here in Philip's arms.

On their way home Philip tried to have a serious talk with her, but it was not so easy to say just the right thing.

They did not talk much after that, but Philip thought for a long time about this evening, with its apparently trivial happenings, and somehow they filled him with a vague uneasiness.

In the morning he awoke pale and unrefreshed, and when he joined the Moran household after breakfast Haggleton observed that he looked tired.

"It's nothing," said Philip; "I'm not accustomed to balls."

Haggleton went out with Philip. He, too, had slept badly. He had been awakened when Jenny came in, and for more than an hour he had thought about this boy, his son. He did not like the idea of his going out with Jenny Moran.

The old man began by talking about Margaret.

We WANT COMPETITION of the Right Sort, Not the Following Kind!

A Mrs. S—— after selecting her outfit and learning the total cost from our plainly marked price tags, said she preferred to make comparisons elsewhere before ordering, to which we readily agreed, for it's a thing we always URGE!

On getting another store's prices (where they were marked in private signs) she found ours were far less, and SAID so. The salesman promptly dropped to our figures—AND GOT THE ORDER.

Here, where there's but ONE PLAINLY MARKED PRICE ON EVERY ITEM, such an "accommodating" and sudden price drop would be impossible—here, when you read the price tag, you KNOW it's already at lowest point, for ALL prices are made and REMAIN on the SAME UNIFORMLY SMALL PROFIT BASIS. We don't HAVE to run a "leader" here and there for an hour, or a day, to catch trade, as ALL lines are equally good values EVERY day in the year!

All we want is HONEST competition that meet OUR plainly marked prices WITH prices you can READ!

ISN'T THAT FAIR?

IN OLD MONTREAL

GRAY WITH NUNNERIES AND GREEN WITH MEMORIES.

Still the Soul of the City Is French, as the Visitor Instinctively Feels It Should Be—Hero Remembered.

It is not necessary to speak French in Montreal, but it helps, says G. B. Lancaster in the New York Evening Post. The soul of the place is French; the spirit that pulses yet in the gray walls and the narrow streets and the queer little pepperpot gateways that belong to nothing in particular is French. The colonial passed the St. Lawrence boulevard into the east of the city, and here he found the line between French and English cut clean as a die. Never the old, old dwelling houses and pensions straight onto the street, the tiny lattice windows showing ladder stairs and naked rooms and dirt and infinite age, can mean to the English all that they mean to the French. La Salle, Cadillac, Bienville may have helped wear down the curve in those wooden steps. Once, before his day of shame, Vaudreuil, might have laughed at the children playing in that gutter as the passer-by laughs now. The sweet eyes of Helen, De Champlain's wife, looked down those crooked vistas when France's day was high.

There is a sharp tragedy round the name of this Helen. The island bought by Champlain when he wedded her lies out in the stream, sullen yet with its old forts and blockhouses. Here, 160 years since, a French general burned the golden lilies and the tricolor banners of France that they might not fall into English hands.

Montreal is gray with nunneries and green with memories; but it is also red and virile with blood poured out. One marvels that grass grows on the Champ de Mars. For ashes of Indians burnt at the stake have strewed it, the sweat of tortured men have dripped on it, the bent knees of the early Jesuits have worn it down to the flint.

Against the swell of grass, the dusty track below, and the stone houses in sunlight, the colonial shut his eyes for a space. And his fancy followed Paul de Maisonneuve up that slope at the head of his keen-faced men; round in a rushing swing to the right, and across the Place d'Armes, where the Iroquois met them. The taint of blood and black powder and dust and heated men struck on the air again as once near three hundred years ago; the very day was quick with lust and hate and daring, red man and white rocked together and went down together under the tossing plumes; Indian yells and low French curses jarred. Here Montreal was won for France. And here, 120 years later, it was lost for France on a bloodless silent day, when France's soldiers laid down their arms before the British.

But Paul de Maisonneuve yet guards the earth he won. He guards it with the banner flung out in his hand and his hat thrust back from his eager face and his whole body instinct with that life which does not pass with the flesh. Through the changes that the years bring Paul de Maisonneuve yet guards his own.

And beneath the statue, beside the other statues that cluster its base is written in the name of English and French:

"The citizens of Montreal grateful."

Farther east, beyond the Jaques Cartier market, that on certain days pulses with French chatter and smells of onions and cabbage, stands a little low white house with green shutters and the plaster flaking off. It was and still is the core of old Montreal. Its very atmosphere is misty with age. From the dim vaults where the windows slit into the deep walls look no more than half-healed wounds, vague memories unwind themsleves; memories of tragedy, of glory, of stately entertainments of keen business transactions of bitter sorrow, of war plots, of strategy and of simple, kindly life and undaunted courage.

Acre of Grain from a Single Seed.

Great interest has been manifested by the farmers of Russia over recent experiments in their country regarding the production of grain. It has been shown that a single seed can produce over an acre of grain. The method is to plant each grain in a conical pit 11 to 17 inches deep and 42 inches wide. After every three weeks the sprouting grain is covered with a layer of earth. This process is repeated ten times. The result is that each grain planted in the inverted apex of the conical pit gives a stalk with blades. Under these blades is a thickening of the stock, which is called the "bushing knots." The result of the first covering will be three stalks, and at the tenth covering there will be over fifty thousand. By a system of transplanting the grain is then raised in great quantities from the one seed.

An Anatomical Location.

McMurf met Pleader, the lawyer, not long ago. "Ah," said he, "you're just the man I've been looking for for a week. I went over to your office, but found you'd moved."

"Yes, I'm a block around the corner now," said Pleader. "A dentist has my old place."

"So?" ventured McMurf; "then after this when we want our teeth pulled we'll have to go where we used to get our legs pulled."

Enchiladas Not Very Well Known in the North—Directions for Its Preparation.

Boil six large red chilis until tender, pour off water, take out core and seeds and rub through colander with spoon, adding a little water from time to time until separated from skins. Heat a large tablespoonful of lard in granite pan until smoking hot; then throw in two sections of garlic (which are to be taken out when chili is done) and pour in the chili, adding a teaspoon of Spanish sage rubbed until fine. Salt and pepper to taste and let cook slowly; chop two onions very fine, season, sprinkle with Spanish sage and let stand in vinegar. Grate a quarter pound Edam cheese. Now make the tortillas as follows: Work a large cold boiled potato, a large teaspoon of lard and a teaspoon of salt into about a pint of flour, add water until dough is consistency of light bread dough and knead thoroughly. Divide into balls about size of an egg and roll very thin; spread one at a time on a smooth hot stove. They should brown quickly and be turned over and over until light brown and placed between a cloth. All being ready, dip a tortilla in chili, spread on a plate, spread a teaspoon each of onion and cheese, add two olives and a tablespoon of chili and roll the tortilla. As each tortilla is made place on platter and sprinkle onion and cheese. After all are made pour on remaining chili and garnish with olives and cheese.

GOOD LEMON SQUEEZER.

Stationary lemon squeezer. The cut lemon is placed over the glass grooves and the crank is turned to exert a pressure.

Fried Cucumbers.

For this dish select cucumbers a little older than those to be eaten raw, but do not use any that have hard seeds. Cut off the ends to remove the bitter, then peel lengthwise. Slice across in one-third inch slices if large, lengthwise if small. Dip first in egg, then in fine bread crumbs. Set in a cool place for one hour. Have ready some lard heated until it just begins to smoke; it is now at the boiling point. (Test by dropping in a bit of the soft part of bread; if the lard is ready the bread will begin to color immediately. If the lard smokes too long it will burn.) When certain the lard is boiling lay in the slices of cucumber. In about three minutes turn them. In about ten minutes more, when tender, remove to a brown paper in the mouth of the oven. When dry, serve on an open platter.

Baked Potatoes.

Do not have the oven too hot for baked potatoes. If done in a moderate oven for a longer time they will cook more evenly.

Pricking the small ends of a potato with a fork before putting in the oven will keep the skin from bursting.

A German cook noted for her baked potatoes, washes them carefully, dries them, and then rubs the skin with a greased paper and bakes in the usual way.

A pleasant variety of baked potato is to peel them, rub them over with a greased paper dipped in butter and bake in the ordinary way.

Macaroni with Meat.

Chop about a pound of meat from the round, shoulder or neck with meat chopper, brown in a little fat, season and cover with boiling water and cook about an hour. Break a quarter package of macaroni into inch pieces and boil rapidly in plenty of salted water from 20 to 30 minutes. When done drain off the water and add the meat with its juices and enough milk to a little more than cover. Thicken with heaping tablespoonful of flour and boil about a minute.

Good Quick Bread.

To a cake of compressed yeast dissolved in two cups of milk or water (or both in any proportion) and one tablespoon of olive oil, add enough flour sifted with a small tablespoon of salt and two or three of sugar, to make a stiff dough. Put in a clean dish and rub a little lard over the top. Set aside for two or three hours, then mold in loaves and let rise an hour more. Bake in slow oven about one hour. This makes four loaves.

The Italian Polenta.

One of the greatest dishes of the Italians is "polenta." They often serve it to guests, but it is nothing more than cornmeal mush, one of the dishes of our forefathers, yet always one of the best in the winter.

OLD SCHOOLHOUSE SOLD

Piscataway Township Disposes of Maple Grove and Raritan Landing Bldgs.

OUTLIVED THEIR USEFULNESS.

John Cumberson, a Charter Pupil, Relates a Prank in Which He Figured Thirty-eight Years Ago.

Two old educational landmarks of Piscataway township, the Maple Grove and Raritan Landing school houses, have outlived their usefulness and have given way to more modern institutes of learning. Both structures have been sold, the Maple Grove school, which is situated on Clinton avenue just outside of the city limits, to J. Martin, an adjoining property holder. The price paid for the building was $675. J. Lillian, of New Brunswick, was the purchaser of the Raritan Landing school. The receipts from the sales of the pair of landmarks will be utilized by the township school board for educational purposes.

With the close of the June session the Maple Grove school completed its career. Its former pupils are now being educated at the new brick school house, located corner of Foster and New Brunswick avenues. It also provides for the children of Kerwin's corner, who were formerly obliged to go all the way to New Market school.

Like all district schools the old Maple Grove institution of learning had its bright sides of school life. John Cumberson, of Foster avenue, who was one of the charter pupils of the school when it opened its doors nearly two-score of years ago, was in a reminiscent mood when he talked of the passing of the old school to a Daily Press reporter yesterday.

He related incidents of the "ghost scare" which halted school for a week when he was a boy of nine years of age. Cumberson smiled broadly when he mentioned the fact that the pupils received an extra week's vacation as a result of the fear on the part of the teacher, Miss Matilda Farr (now dead) which resulted in her refusal to resume her duties until the supposed spooks were put out of commission.

"It was like this,' said Cumberson, "Ben Elliott, who is now living in Kansas, and myself thought we would scare our teacher. There was a spelling bee on hand one night, and according to our plans, we hid in the closet while the spelling match was going on.

"In the closet," continued Cumberland, "Miss Farr kept her coak. Elliott and I procured a quantity of white wearing apparel belonging to the members of our families and uniformed ourselves accordingly. We were aware that after the spelling match was over she would go to the closet for her cloak.

"Our plans worked in tiptop style. She came for her cloak, but when she opened the door and beheld Elliott and me attired in our spook uniforms, she fell to the floor in a faint. Elliott and I ran out into the schoolroom which was only dimly lighted and scared all of the men folks. They all took to their heels and left our teacher alone.

"Well, Elliott and I were so scared that we cut the joke short and disposed of our spook attire and went to the assistance of our teacher. She soon recovered and we escorted her to her boarding house between Samptown and New Market. That was on a Tuesday and there wasn't any more school 'till the next Monday because Miss Farr refused to enter the school again until the trustees got rid of the spooks.

"That was the biggest joke I ever participated in," remarked Cumberson, as he ended his yarn to the reporter.

FOR WHITE PLAGUE WORK

Dr. Frederick J. Hughes to Have Charge of Tuberculosis Camp.

WILLIAM C. KINNEY TALKS.

Hospital's President Tells of Plans For the Crusade Here Against Dreaded Disease.

Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, of Somerset street, who has made a thorough and exhaustive study of tuberculosis, will be the physician in charge of the "camp" for the treatment of the disease which has been erected near Muhlenberg Hospital, and a graduate nurse will devote her whole time to the care and attention of the work.

This work for those suffering from tuberculosis and consumption, will be inaugurated this winter. William C. Kinney, president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, in discussing the work said:

"Heretofore the by-laws of the Muhlenberg Hospital have not allowed us to treat consumptives, but this rule has been modified lately and we are now at liberty to do so and are making arrangements to that end with the Tuberculosis League of Plainfield. The League is erecting a suitable building for this purpose on ground loaned by the hospital. It is hoped that the building will be ready to receive patients the first of December. This building is largely experimental and will accommodate but eight patients. At the request and expense of the League the hospital will take and care for these patients for six months, at the end of which time, a permanent decision will be reached as to the future sharing of work and expense.

"I think that the paramount value of open air treatment has been thoroughly demonstrated, this will be followed, supplemented by nourishing food and cheerful surroundings. The general control and management will be by the hospital under the direction of the Superintendent, Miss Josephine Hughes.

"A graduate nurse will devote her whole time to the care and attention of the Tuberculosis 'camp.'

"I wish to say that the Hospital Board of Managers is in entire sympathy with the aims and purposes of the League, and sincerely hopes that at the end of the six months, sufficient money will be forthcoming to carry on the work as planned; that people will be aroused to the great importance of it, and enable it to be enlarged accordingly, and thus more fully meet the needs of the community."

OPERA SINGER ENGAGED TO A GERMAN PRINCE

Plainfielders are interested in the reported engagement, of Miss Josephine Schafer, an opera queen who formerly resided with her parents on Liberty street. At the present time she is appearing in Berlin and her prospective husband is said to be Prince Gustav, of Lippe, Germany. The prince, it is said, is one of the prominent figures, in the German Empire, and is a former member of the Reichstag. He is credited with being wealthy, and is an advisor to Kaiser Wilhelm on war department matters. Prince Gustav resides on a beautiful country place at Detmold, Lippe.

Miss Schaefer's success in the operatic world has been marked by rapid strides. Fifteen years ago while a resident of this city, she appeared at local concerts and entertainments, and the rich quality of her voice attracted the attention of musical critics.

Her first step in the operatic world was made when she sought an introduction to Mme. Nordica, who was appearing at the time in New York. The prima donna took an interest in Miss Schaefer and assisted her in her efforts to secure a musical education. Later Miss Schaefer prepared herself for the stage before noted instructors of France, Germany and Italy.

With her education completed Miss Schaefer returned to America and affiliated herself with the Metropolitan Opera Company. For the past three seasons she has been in Berlin, appearing in Italian opera. She has a rich soprano voice of great range. At the beginning of the present German season Miss Schaefer is reported to have signed a contract calling for $25,000.

CAMPANARI TO SING HERE MONDAY NIGHT

By an arrangement of the order in which the artists engaged by Joseph McIntyre for his chamber concerts appear here, Guiseppi Campanari, the incomparable baritone, late of the Metropolitan forces, will be heard here at a song recital on Monday evening at the auditorium of the High School.

Aside from the appearance here of this great artist, Mr. McIntyre has provided another surprise for his patrons by bringing to Plainfield Arthur Lichstein, a violinist, who has won signal honors at St. Petersburg, his home city, as well as at other European capitols. Mr. Lichstein and Mr. McIntyre will be heard in the second movement of Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata and later in the evening the young Russian violinist will render the Fantasie from Faust. He is heralded as a great artist and Monday evening's audience will have the distinction of being the first in this country to pass judgment upon him.

Of course, the fame of Campanari is too extensive to be recounted here. It is only necessary to add that in his elaborate repertoire for Monday evening is included the "Toreador Song" from Carmen, which is said to be his masterpiece. Campanari is down for three groups of four songs each and included are songs dating as far back as the Sixteenth Century, together with many of the more modern and newer gems.

The program for Monday evening follows:

Song (old Italian): (a), Handel (1683) Ah! Mis Cor; (b), Passiello (1741) Cor Nel pin; (c), Falconieri (1500) Villanelle, gavotta; (d), Mozart (1788), serenade from "Don Juan," violin and piano;

LeMatty was hurled to the street by the force of the collision but he escaped without a scratch.

LeMattey was unable to ascertain the number of the auto, as the party continued on their journey without stopping. LeMattey figures the damage to his rig, and the injuries to his horse, to be about $100.

FREEHOLDERS INSPECT UNION COUNTY ROADS

Before the first of December the work of building the four new county roads will be finished. This was ascertained yesterday by the members of the County Road Committee of the Board of Freeholders, who, accompanied by Director Benjamin King and County Engineer J. L. Bauer, made a tour of inspection. All the new roads were visited and were found to be in satisfactory shape.

The roads are Jefferson avenue, between Union county and Middlesex county at Plainfield! Edgar road, between Elizabeth and Rahway; Walnut avenue in Cranford and Terrill road in Fanwood. Two sections of Edgar road are being built.

Contractors informed the committeemen yesterday that all the roads, with the exception of Terrill road, are about complete. All they need is a little repairing here and there.

The new roads are all built with experimental material and were constructed with the idea of doing away with the dust nuisance as much as possible. Jefferson avenue, Terrill road and Walnut avenue have been constructed with amiesite, while Edgar road is built with asphaltum. County Engineer Bauer said last night that he is very much pleased with the appearance of the roads, and thinks that they will be durable and stand the heavy traffic. The members of the committee, he said, are entirely satisfied with the work done.

SOMERSET COUNCIL, NO. 104, HAS SOCIAL AND DANCE

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., entertained their friends at a box social and dance last night in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall. There was a fine company present, many members of other councils with their wives and sweethearts and one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season in fraternal circles was the result.

P. H. Latourette opened the entertainment with a characteristic speech in which he welcomed the guests and told of the object of the association on this particular occasion. He told of the illness of Brother Vail of Dunellen and of the efforts of Somerset Council to help him. He announced that the packages of good things brought by the members and their friends would be auctioned and the proceeds devoted to relieving the pressing necessities of Mr. Vail. A parlor organ was auctioned also and the amount realized was highly gratifying to the members.

A good vaudeville program was much enjoyed and after the supper a dance finished up the evening's enjoyment. It was one of the most homelike affairs ever held in Jr. O. U. A. M. hall and shows how Somerset Council is growing in popularity and membership.

Several new members will be added to Somerset Council at its next regular meeting.

HAD FINE TIME CELEBRATING TWENTY-SECOND BIRTHDAY.

A very pleasant evening was passed last Saturday at Mrs. Baker's, of Fifth street, to help Peter Sauers celebrate his twenty-second birthday. Dancing, games and singing combined to make the evening pass so pleasantly that the call to supper, which was served at 12 o'clock, was heard before the guests were aware of the lateness of the hour.

The supper room was very prettily decorated in red, white and blue, with large bouquets of cut flowers.

Mr. Sauer's friends came from Bridgeport, Brooklyn, West Dunellen, Bound Brook, Summit, Newark and Plainfield.

CAN FLY BRITISH FLAG

State Department Says Police Had no Authority to Order it Down.

CLERGYMAN GIVES HIS VIEWS.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson Deplores Incident—Considers It a Narrow and Bigoted Bit of Business.

That the police were unwarranted in ordering Edmund L. Mackenzie to haul down the Union Jack from the big flag pole on his estate in Fanwood township on the occasion of the King's birthday, Tuesday, is the news that comes from Washington. At the time, when asked for an explanation it was given out by the police that Mr. Mackenzie's action was a violation of the law.

The New York Herald wired the facts to Washington and as a result this dispatch was published in its issue this morning:

"Officials of the State Department tonight said the Plainfield police had no authority to order the British flag down and that any Englishman residing at Plainfield or elsewhere in the United States could display his flag as often as he pleased."

On Wednesday, a communication from Mr. Mackenzie to this paper, asking for information regarding the alleged law that prohibited the display of the British flag, was published and then sent to the Attorney General of the United States for an opinion. No answer has yet been received to this query. Nevertheless, it may safely be said according to local legal lights that there is no such law and the action of the police was entirely unwarranted.

An interesting and timely letter was received yesterday from Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church. The clergyman is a Canadian but has declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States. His letter follows:

Editor, The Daily Press:

This flag incident of November 9, which by the way is not an isolated incident, provides all the essentials of a comic opera, worthy of the efforts of the famous English collaborateurs Gilbert and Sullivan. Behold the uniformed representatives of the department of public safety descending upon the Union Jack rampant.

According to your statement of yesterday, if there is a law governing this question it is a law which no one seems to know anything about, and has to be dug up from the archives to be brought into service. For the sake of the good taste, of a liberal and enlightened community such as this, don't you think that someone ought to encourage our bluecoats to "forget it" and not respond too earnestly to the hysteria of some complaining citizen who wrongly supposes loyalty to be evidenced by prejudice? This hauling down of the British Jack properly peaked by the American ensign is not only of doubtful lawfulness, but seems to me to be putting the clock back about one hundred and thirty-three years.

If I know anything about flag etiquette, Mr. Edmund Mackenzie is absolutely correct, that international courtesy requires only that the national ensign shall fly at the masthead, when a flag of another nation floats at the gaff, or below on the mast.

If the enterprising objector will sail down the St. Lawrence river he will notice all through the French provinces of Canada the "Tri-color" floating at numerous intervals along the route. Why does not the government of Canada get busy and send an armed force to pull down these ensigns of France? Canada does not worry a little bit. She recognizes the wholesome virtue in this subject of King Edward who remembers his lineage.

If you will cross the border to some of the large cities in Canada, Toronto, for instance, you will find especially on American holidays, that the American ensign is by no means unknown and by no means lacking in that respect accorded the flag of a close eighbor, and friendly nation. At the time of the Spanish American war, though living in Canada I, myself, wore a little American badge in my button hole. Some years ago travelling in England with a party of Americans we landed at Shanklin in the Isle of Wight. The most conspicuous object which met our eye was "Old Glory" flying from the masthead before an hotel on the sea wall in honor of its many American guests.

Fod goodness sake, Mr. Editor, don't allow the intelligence, the sanity, and good taste of the thousands of sensible people in this progressive community to be set at ridicule by the overheated imagination of some few, whose citizenship represents a very narrow idea. JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

Ackerman a Safe Leader.

In the candidacy of Senator Ackerman for majority leader of the upper branch of the incoming Legislature there is not only a fair tribute to the party claims of Union county, but the recognition of a worthy and alert Republican. Most of the senior members of the Senate have been thus honored, and the logical course of the majority is to raise Ackerman to this post in a natural advance to the Presidency in 1911, particularly as the Republicans of Union expect to return him to the Senate. Senator Ackerman's conservatism is one of his chief qualifications, and there will be need of such a temper in the deliberations of the next Senate, if present signs of party turmoil are to be considered.—New York Press.

THIS YEAR'S CRANBERRY CROP BREAKS RECORD.

Burlington, Nov. 13.—The cranberry crop this year promises to be the largest yield ever known in this State, and, in fact, throughout the country. The market receipts during October have been phenomenally large, but November is always the month when the great influx of this fruit comes to the marketing points.

The estimated crop of cranberries for the present year, according to one of the best authorities in New York, is 1,675,000 bushels. The largest previous crop was last year, when the actual receipts totaled 1,175,000. Actual receipts nearly always greatly exceed the estimated crop. For instance, last year the estimate given out at about this time was only 900,000 bushels.

In 1904 the estimate was for a 1,000,000-bushel crop, but the yield the last of November was 1,225,000 bushels. A phenomenal crop is also foreshadowed by the prevailing wholesale price, which is $5.50 to $5.75 a 100-quart barrel of Cape Cod early blacks. Fancy large varieties of cranberries rarely exceed $6.75 a barrel.

REV. N. A. MERRITT, JR., TO ACCEPT THE CALL.

The Rev. N. A. Merritt, Jr., pastor of the First Baptist church, Rahway, will formally resign as pastor at the morning service tomorrow, having accepted the call to the First Baptist church, New Brunswick. It is expected that he will assume his new duties in December. He will receive a salary of $2,500.

The Rev. N. A. Merritt, Jr., is the son of N. A. Merritt, a Newark hat manufacturer. He is 32 years old and unmarried. He came to Rahway eight years ago. During his pastorate he succeeded in disposing of the old church and built a handsome new church at the corner of Ssterbrook and Elm streets. At the last election the Rev. Merrittt was nominated by Republicans and indorsed by Democrats as member of the Board of Education in the Third ward.

BEARS WORRY THE SUSSEX CO. FARMER.

Newton, Nov. 13.—Bear tracks measuring six and a half inches across were discovered yesterday morning in a cornfield owned by Victor Compton near Beemerville, and several torn-down shocks of corn showed where the animal had feasted. A number of hunters with dogs have started after the bear.

This is the second one found in the county within the last few days, the first being shot by Freeholder James H. Baldwin, of Newton, near Round Pond, only a few miles south of where the traces of one were seen yesterday. It is believed that they have wandered from Pike Co., Pa., as none have been found in the county for several years back.

HORSES LOST IN FIRE.

A barn owned by Thomas Robertson, in Westfield avenue, Rahway, together with a house owned and occupied by Edward Lake, 53 Westfield avenue, and which stood but a few inches from the barn, were entirely destroyed by fire shortly before midnight Thursday night, together with two horses. Almost all of Lake's household effects were burned.

The fire was the work of an incendiary, the barn having three times during the past two years been set on fire.

A Dull Looking Church.

In some communities one or more churches present evidence of badly painted exteriors. The beautiful finish and coloring of the L. & M. Paint distinguishes a church painted with it. The L. & M. Paint is Metalic Zinc Oxide combined with White Lead, and wears like gold. A liberal quantity of L. & M. Paint is given to every church whenever they paint. This has been done throughout the United States during past 35 years. More churches have been painted with L. & M. Paint than with any other. Sold by Woolston & Buckle, Plainfield; H. C. Meyer, Scotch Plains; Edw. Pennock, Dunellen.

The Mathushek & Son Piano

is the result of many years of study and experience. The production of creators and masters in the art of Piano building. We invite your careful inspection.

Now Just a Word About Ourselves

Frederick Mathushek, the founder of our house, was born at the Palace of Manheim, Germany, June 9, 1814. Before he reached the age of seventeen years he had made several improvements in pianos. In 1840 he came to America, where he devoted his life to the manufacture and improvement of the piano-forte. Unselfishly he has given to the world the benefit of his wonderful inventive genius, for many of his valuable inventions were not patented, but were given for the benefit of his craft and will be found embodied in the best makes of pianos throughout the world.

GOLF.

Dorothy Campbell, the woman champion of Great Britain and the United States, made the best performance in the invitation tournament at the Englewood Golf Club Thursday in honor of the visiting golfers. She was first in the eighteen hole stroke competition with 90, although it was an utterly strange course, and in the afternoon, with H. V. Keep for partner, Miss Campbell won the mixed foursome handicap. There was also a team match with the Great Britain players, won from the home combination by three matches to two.

Miss Campbell and Miss Julia R. Mix had a good match. The former lost the first two holes, but by remarkably steady work thereafter the vistor managed to reach the turn one up, going out in 46 to 48 for the Englewood girl. The latter had the match square with a 5 at the eleventh, whereupon a succession of halves followed until Miss Campbell broke the deadlock with a capital 3 at the fifteenth. A little later Miss Mix paid her opponent back by bringing off a fifty-foot put from the edge of the sixteenth green for a 4 and squaring the match.

A drive and a cleek got Miss Campbell's ball within ten feet of the pin at the seventeenth and she then supplemented this feat by bringing off the put for a brilliant 3. Now dormie Miss Campbell threw away her advantage by half topping her drive to the home hole, so that Miss Mix, making no mistakes, won the hole in 3 to 4. That left the pair all square and made an extra hole necessary. Both drove good balls. Miss Campbell's being the longer by some fifteen yards. A brook guards the green and Miss Mix decided to play short. Miss Campbell was going to do likewise, but her caddie, a courageous little chap, told her to go for it. Acting on his advice the Scotch girl took her cleek and hit as fine a ball as has been seen at Englewood in many a day. Away flew the rubber bore as straight as an arrow, over the burn by a safe margin and continuing to the green finally came to rest some twelve feet short of the cup. Miss Mix got into the brook on her third and picked up.

SEVEN MEN INJURED WHEN AUTO SKIDDED.

Camden, Nov. 13.—Seven men were injured, one seriously, here yesterday, when a big touring automobile crashed into the supports of a railroad bridge. All of the occupants were thrown out, but, with the exception of William Buck, twenty-two years old, none was seriously hurt.

Buck landed on his head, and sustained fractures of the skull and jaw and other injuries. He is in a critical condition at a hospital. The automobile was being driven by Charles Hurley, son of the president of the Camden Board of Trade, and as the car passed under the bridge one of the tires was punctured by broken glass, causing the machine to skid.

STATE ASYLUM INMATE DYING FROM HURTS.

Henry D. Krusen, a Trenton letter carrier, who went insane over religion and told a lot of people that he had killed five men, is now dying at the State Hospital for the Insane, Trenton, where he was recently removed for treatment.

The authorities are investigating to ascertain if he has been misused by attendants. He has several broken ribs and other hurts, but the nurses insist that he sustained these by falling. Krusen was for a number of years Trenton's only negro letter carrier and he was formerly prominent throughout the State in the church and lodge circles of his race.

INTEREST 4 PER CENT.

Plainfield, N. J., November 13, 1909.

AN APOLOGY DUE.

In the interests of justice and fair play, we suggest that the Mayor or the police department make public apology to Edmund L. Mackenzie for the unwarranted and unfortunate flag incident, the story of which is told on the first page of this issue. Mr. Mackenzie is a highly respected resident and when he displayed the Union Jack on his premises on the occasion of the King's birthday, as a mark of respect to a friendly nation in times of peace, he acted clearly within his rights. It was not the business of the Plainfield police to enter Fanwood township to enforce unwarranted authority. We are too big and broad a community to belittle ourselves and merit the ridicule of others by such nonsensical actions. Certainly an apology is due the aggrieved Englishman. It is a duty the city owes him.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

An unusual feature of the new play, "The Game," in which Daniel Sully comes to the Plainfield theatre on November 17, is the happy blending of pathos, humor and dramatic strength which the author has woven into his plot. As one critic aptly wrote regarding the play, "'The Game' might be termed a comedy were it not for the unusual strength of its dramatic climaxes, while on the other hand the sparkling wit and laughable comedy situations prevent its being classed strictly as a serious drama."

John F. Byrne, of "Eight Bells" fame, is the inventor and patentee of all the stage mechanism used in the presentation of this amusing comedy, which will be at the Plainfield theatre, matinee and night, November 20. It is the most novel and intricate used by any road company. The Brothers Byrne stand at the head of their profession in this peculiar line of work and bring a strong company of specialty people with them, most of them well known in the special line of business.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The Hippodrome continues to attract record audiences to the three big spectacles, "A Trip to Japan," "The Ballet of Jewels" and "Inside the Earth." The big playhouse begins the ninth week of its most prosperous season on Monday next. Superb scenic features, a gorgeous ballet in which each coryphee represents a glittering jewel and wherein every precious gem known to the lapidary is represented in wonders of the costumer's art; lively melodies, hundreds of pretty girls and a tribe of bronze Maori warriors from New Zealand are features in a list of attractions such as would furnish material for half a dozen shows. Among the wonders of the scenic investiture may be mentioned the actual departure of a giant ocean liner from the dock; the Mikado's garden in Tokio with the fete of chrysanthemums in progress; the U. S. battleship fleet on the move; the palace in the centre of the earth and the waterfall of living women and the sensational finale when an army of silver clad soldiers, men and women, march into the water disappearing from view.

HELIGOLAND WELL FORTIFIED.

Heligoland guards the entrance to Germany's two greatest ports, and is probably that one of her possessions which she regards with most complacence, as having been obtained from England for the asking, says the London Mail.

But although Germany obtained this beautiful and useful island so easily and cheaply, she does not hold it the less dear for that. She is fortifying it—has indeed fortified it—after modern ideas, so that it will indeed be a formidable obstacle in the way of any power threatening the approaches to Hamburg and Bremen.

What, however, will strike an impartial observer most forcibly in the contemplation of Heligoland today is the marvelous way in which it has become completely Germanized in the short space of nine years.

Under German rule, however, Heligoland has prospered, has been made to feel that its circumstances could not fail to be bettered by its inclusion in the mighty German Empire; and although the conditions of individual freedom are certainly far less easy than they were, there are no signs that the people resent this change.

The comfort, yes, prosperity, exhibited by the islanders is very marked, especially in comparison with the islands of the Netherlands, which, like Heligoland, gain their livelihood by fishing and the money spent by visitors during the summer. There are no beggars here and no appearance of either poverty or squalor. All, men, women and children, are well dressed and appear to be well fed, also to have an air of independence that sits very well upon them.

This is shown also by the great number of large, well-built fishing boats lying upon the strand and anchored between the two well-built piers, a number out of all proportion to the tiny population of 4,000. Fishing is a really prosperous industry here, the fishermen's gains ranging between five and ten shillings a day each, and in the summer, when, as most seaside visitors know, coastal fishing is suspended by the working of natural laws, which draw the fish off into deeper water. Their numbers average 30,000, and where on each they are all bestowed seems a mystery, although no doubt it is easy of solution to the trained caterer for the wants of seaside visitors.

There must be something extremely fascinating in a place which without any natural advantages, such as are possessed by Jersey and Guernsey and the Isle of Man, for instance, can draw so large a concourse of people to face an open sea journey of thirty miles in comparatively small steamers, if they can come from Cuxhaven, while if the whole journey is made along the Elbe from Hamburg it takes from seven to eight hours.

All the amusements and recreations, have such as the modest Kurhaus affords, belong to the sea. There are no gardens of recreation grounds and the one pier, as distinguished from the unfinished breakwater, is just a pier and nothing more; there is not even any efficient shelter upon it. And the walks are severely restricted to a few hundred yards, unless the visitor be energetic enough to climb a great many steps up to the summit of the red rocks. There he will find a magnificent view over the North Sea on every side, but he will also find it well, especially if a stranger, to read most carefully the notices which abound, to refrain from carrying a camera or making notes of however innocent a nature. Neglect of these simple precautions is certain to land him in serious difficulties, from which, if he is an Englander, he will find it difficult to extricate himself, even with much loss of time, money and temper.

For it cannot be too widely known that the doctrine of British citizenship in the sense that it was once understood is now entirely inverted. Should the visitor to foreign lands or even the United States imagine that the statement of his being an Englishman is likely to help him in any difficulty with the authorities, and act upon that idea, he will receive such a lesson as will last him the remainder of his life.

It is perhaps hardly necessary to say that the notices I refer to above are for the purpose of warning every one not entitled to an entry away from the fortifications, and that the infringement of any of these prohibitions is unthinkable without the penalty immediately following. The German military and naval organization is nothing if not thorough, and has no more use for magnanimity than it had for carelessness.

AS A WOMAN SAW LINCOLN.

He was in the red room, and his towering, slightly stooping form as he leaned against the grand piano that faced the door appeared of heroic mold, writes Edna Dean Proctor in The National Magazine. Speaking with us pleasantly, he made no allusion to the disastrous news, but it was soon evident that, while he stood there with courteous greetings, he was almost oblivious of his surroundings, and that heart and soul were lost in contemplation of the country's peril. It was my first view of him, and I have never forgotten the infinite dignity of his presence that evening and the melancholy, far-off look in his eyes—a dignity and elevation quite beyond and above what any mere manly beauty could give. As I watched him I thought no words could better describe him than these. "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief."

There was little conversation, but one of the party remarked: "I hope, Mr. President, you are able to sleep, notwithstanding your heavy burdens."

At that moment General ———, "just from the front," was ushered into the room—a short, stout man in uniform, with a blustering, pompous manner as if he thought the whole army was centered in himself. He heard the remark and immediately added in a bold, confident tone, "I presume, Mr. President, you sleep as much as the private soldiers on the Rappahannock."

Mr. Lincoln looked down upon him with a loftiness which was almost scorn, and said slowly and distinctly, and with indescribable pathos:

"For that matter, sir, I would gladly change places with the poorest soldier in the ranks!" and turned away with the far-off look in his eyes.

There was silence in the room. Every one was impressed with the beautiful solemnity of the moment. Even the pompous general felt it, for without a word he retreated and was seen no more.

We soon made our own adieus, but the glimpse we had had of the great President was so sad and tender that the brief interview has remained a treasured memory.

SPANISH ETIQUETTE.

From what we saw, and from what happened to us, I made up a page of Spanish etiquette, says a writer in Outing. It is probably not correct, but I offer it as the result of our experiences. Other people may have had different impressions. If you are of the female sex, never wear a short skirt, a sailor or English walking hat, unless you are willing to have people stare at you, and sometimes call after you. If you have red hair dye it, or be prepared to be saluted as "Rubia." Never bow to a man unless he lifts his hat first.

If you are a man, you may dress as an Englishman, an operatic tenor or a chorus singer from Carmen, without exciting remark. Never wear glasses; if you are blind, take a dog on a string. When you sit down at the table, or arise, always bow and say, "Zuenas," this is imperative. You may jostle people without apology, but never speak to any one without saying "your grace," be he noble, friend, or beggar. "Will your grace do me the favor to bring me coffee at 1 o'clock tomorrow?" would strike an American bellboy with dismay. But it is the literal translation of the Spanish request.

Never tell a beggar to clear out, but say that you have left your purse at home, and that you will remember him tomorrow; or, gently murmur that God will reward him, whereat he will smile, thank you and depart.

These same beggars, which spring up on every side, seem to have a code of etiquette we could not fathom. After two or three days, there were a few who begged only from me, two or three others who besought Jean. Evidently we were understood to be the patrons of certain beggars who, out of a crowd of medicants, were the only ones to approach us, who would take their dole with thanks, or if we said "tomorrow," would, smilingly, back away at once.

A trip into Spain ought to mean more than sketches of life, as we saw it in a single city. Yet it was our pleasure to linger on in Madrid—with the exception of three days spent in Toledo and the Escorial—for the whole of our two months' holiday, and to return direct to Paris without seeing any of the southern country so beloved by other tourists. So, can any one marvel that, to us, Spain means Madrid, the city of marvelous contrasts.

ANCIENT NUMANTIA.

Scientific Excavation Lays Bare Remains of Oldest Roman Camp.

The Cologne Gazette publishes an account of some remarkable excavations made at Numantia by Professor Schulten. His discoveries comprise both the remains of the city of Numantia itself and also of three superimposed Roman camps on the hill of Castillejo, including the camp of the Roman Consul Mancinus, whose army suffered in 137 B. C., one of the worst disasters in Roman military history.

The camp is nearly identical, says the New York Sun, with the present village of Reneiblas, from five to six kilometres east of Numantia, a position which agrees with the description of Appian of the armed camp erected by Pulvius Nobilior in 153 B. C. The camp covers some forty hectares, and it lies on the slope or a long hill facing Numantia, whence the Romans could overlook the whole Numantian plain and the enemy's town without themselves being seen.

The location of the Roman camp was facilitated by the fact that the fortifications are still above the general level of the ground and are generally well preserved, a fact which is ascribed to the absence of trees. From a neighboring hill the whole line of fortifications can be seen, running in straight lines without regard for the inequalities of the soil.

The gate apertures, flanked by powerful towers and covered by transverse walls at a distance, can plainly be seen. The walls are two and a half meters thick and extend for about five kilometers.

The barrack walls are partly constructed of large blocks of stone, some being as big as two metres long by one metre high, the material used being easily-worked limestone found near the camp. The camp is described as the oldest Roman camp in existence, and its remains as being of unexampled importance for students of Roman military history.

The excavations are proceeding rapidly. Already several barracks have been uncovered and every day brings some relic of importance, the iron finds being particularly well preserved owing to the dryness of the climate. It is said, however, that the funds supplied by the Kaiser, the Ministry of Cults and the Archeological Institute are exhausted and that more money will be needed to complete the excavations.

MILLIONS OF ONIONS.

Fourteen million bushels of onions were raised in the United States last year and so great was the demand that fourteen hundred thousand bushels more were imported from Spain, Egypt, Bermuda and the South Sea Islands, asserts a writer in Van Norden Magazine. The value of America's crop was $10,000,000, and the Department of Agriculture believes that of 1909 should be worth twice as much. It has just issued a bulletin on the subject as a gentle reminder to the average farmer and truck grower that they are overlooking the onion—as if any one could do such a thing.

For many centuries this vegetable thrived only in the valleys and lowlands, but improved agricultural methods have made it possible to raise it with profits on the hilltops. The Bermuda variety is being grown with tremendous success in all of the Southern States, especially along the Gulf Coast.

Each succeeding year brings new ideas as to marketing, and the danger of having the fruit rot in transit is fast becoming a thing of the past. Onion raising is the most important industry around Laredo and Cotulla, Texas.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of the late Mrs. George Stilliger, who died at her home Thursday night, will be held from the house at 9 o'clock Monday morning and from St. Joseph's church, Plainfield, at 10 o'clock.

The weekly prayer meeting of the Methodist church, will be held in the church tonight. Rev. Mr. Hollingshead will lead the meeting, the subject being a discussion of the third chapter of John.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U. meeting, 3:30, followed at 4 o'clock by the vesper service.

The trolley service was badly crippled during the early morning hours yesterday, owing to a break in the wires near Leland avenue.

Invitations are out for the second dance of the Bachelors' Club, which will be held in Excelsior hall Tuesday night, November 30.

Westfield avenue is being covered with a light covering of crushed stone on both sides of the trolley tracks.

Mrs. Samuel Taynor, of Front street, has returned from a visit with out of town friends.

Mrs. W. R. Buckley was the guest yesterday of friends in Brooklyn.

LeRoy Day spent yesterday with friends in Newark.

tolled, and flags flew half-mast, when memorial services were being held throughout the city for the death of the dear old Queen Victoria, the flag of the city hall of New York alone refused to do respect. Doubtless the gentleman who at that time occupied the big chair at the city hall estimated his act as highly appropiate, and thoroughly American, but I do not know of a newspaper in New York city which did not join in a denunciation of the action of the Mayor, and the repudiation of that humiliation which an act of narrow bigotry had placed upon the city and to the nation at the time.

Does the intelligence of Plainfield wish to follow that example?

Thanking you for the courtesy of this space, believe me to be,

Very truly yours,
E. VICARS STEVENSON.

A CLAY-WORKERS BOON.

Novel Method of Measuring Plasticity Discovered.

An explanation of what appears to be a satisfactory method by which workers in clay can accurately ascertain the plasticity of any given clay has just been published by the Geological Survey in a bulletin (No. 388) prepared by H. E. Ashley.

Heretofore an accurate judgment as to the qualities of a particular clay could be formed only after long and costly experiments. Clays, apparently similar in nearly all respects, were found in actual manufacturing to give results very different from those expected; and of late years it has become increasingly important to devise some test by which their qualities could be quickly and easily determined in advance of expensive installations.

Mr. Ashley, acting for the Geological Survey, under an appropriation by Congress for the investigation of the structural materials of the United States, has discovered that the degree to which certain dyes, of which malachite green seems to be the most satisfactory, are absorbed by a given clay furnishes a very satisfactory index of its plasticity, which of course, is the most important of all its qualities.

Adsorption is the property by which dyes and other substances are extracted from solution and incorporated into the thing dyed. It differs from absorption, which is incorporation of a liquid as it stands, irrespective of what it holds in solution. Adsorption is especially characteristic of the peculiar substances known as colloids, which form the bulk of clays, and on which their plasticity is believed to depend. The amount of dye, therefore, which a given amount of clay will adsorb from a standard dye solution indicates pretty accurately the proportion of colloids that the clay contains.

Tests by Mr. Ashley of most of the well-known commercial clays with a standard malachite green solution have shown that their adsorption of the coloring of the dye corresponds very closely indeed with their actual known plasticities. As tests with malachite green give expected results where the plasticity is already known, it is inferred that they will prove equally accurate in determining the plasticity where this has not yet been ascertained. The bulletin can be had free by applying to the director of the United States Geological Survey at Washington, D. C. Its nature is highly technical.

Mrs. Homer Butts, of Highwood, who has been visiting Miss L. A. Billett, of West Second street, has returned home.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Salem County Board of Freeholders has decided to build a State road in the borough of Elmer.

Miss Pauline, daughter of C. A. Brown, of Woodbury, tripped over a telephone wire, and falling, fractured her left elbow.

While playing soldier, the little son of Mrs. Mary Baker, of Williamstown, was stabbed with a sharp knife which was being used as a sword by a playmate, but was not seriously injured.

John W. Sine, the Pennsylvania Railroad flagman, who was injured by being knocked from a car in the Coalport yards early last Wednesday night, died Thursday in St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton.

Stricken with apoplexy while watching the industrial parade in Camden Wednesday afternoon, Henry Huhn, seventy-two years old, of 609 South Fourth street, died Thursday. He was a veteran of the Civil War and is survived by two daughters.

Oscar Thomas, foreman of a gang of linemen employed by the Bell Telephone Company, early Thursday evening was struck by a falling pole while at Gloucester City and is suffering from concussion of the spine. He was taken to his home, 608 Clinton street, that city.

Almost constantly in tears since her conviction for manslaughter Tuesday, Mrs. Louise Wood, slayer of her husband, is in a hysterical condition and is in the care of a physician in the Camden county jail. She will in all probability be sentenced Monday.

Before Judge Black, in the Circuit Court session in Paterson Thursday, the jury in the case of Minnie Heller, of Garfield, against the Public Service Corporation, for damages for an injury which she sustained in falling from a car, rendered a verdict in favor of the company.

By the will of Lewis Eckel, admitted to probate by the surrogate of Camden county Thursday, $100 of the $20,000 estate is bequeathed to the Camden Home for Friendless Children, to which institution Mr. Eckel was a generous contributor during his lifetime. The balance of the estate goes to his children.

Struck by a trolley car while at Third and Pearl streets, Camden, Thursday night, nine-year-old Chas. Stratton, of 609 North Fourth street, was saved from mangling by the fender. He was thrown to the pavement, and at the West Jersey Homeopathic Hospital it was stated that he probably has a fracture of the skull. His condition is serious.

Clinging to the belief that the body of the man found in the woods at Watsontown last Sunday is that of Charles Neibel, fugitive wife slayer, Prosecutor Scovel, of Camden, yesterday assigned Detective Smith to make a complete investigation in order that the mystery may be cleared. Some persons who know Neibel are sure that the body is not his.

Pushed by older boys from the high steps of Cooper School, Camden, Thursday, Horace Burrell, thirteen-year-old son of William B. M. Burrell, sustained a broken ankle. Complaints that smaller boys of the school have been subjected to unduly rough treatment by older lads lately have been made to a number of parents, who will ask for an investigation by the Board of Education.

Word has just been received in Trenton of the drowning in England of George Smith, who was well known in Trenton. He was walking along a canal bank on a foggy night, when he fell into the stream and was drowned. Smith spent some time in Trenton last summer as the guest of his sister and brother, Mrs. William Biddulph, of 655 North Clinton avenue, and Herbert Smith, of 308 Norway avenue.

Atlantic City girls should be taught to cook before they are given swimming lessons in public schools, according to a decision of the Board of Education, which refused to consider a proposition to make a swimming tank one of the features of the new grammar school building. Heads of the board claim that thorough courses in cooking would make the girls more useful as housemakers than skill in the water.

Becoming bewildered at the railroad crossing at Palmyra Station, Lillian Rumbold, fifty-five years old, of 1718 Westmoreland street, Philadelphia, was struck by a rapidly-moving freight train. Hurried to Cooper Hospital, Camden, she was found to have sustained a broken arm and many lacerations and bruises, besides severe shock. While her condition is serious the doctors believe she will recover.

When Alexander Bogus, an East Trenton man, was arraigned in Central Police Court, Trenton, Thursday, on a charge of beating his wife, Magistrate Harris declared, "If I had the legal right—and I certainly wish I had—I would take you out in the yard and horsewhip you until you pleaded for mercy." The magistrate then said he would like to send Bogus to jail for life, and that he was sorry because he could only hold the prisoner for the grand jury.

Judge Endicott and a jury in the Camden Circuit Court Thursday heard testimony in the $5,000 damage suit of Hiram G. Hallinger against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, he claiming that property owned by him has depreciated to that extent in value by reason of the shutting off of Mickle street by the elevated railroad. The defense contends that the road is built on land owned by the company and that the line was authorized by city ordinances. The case was not concluded.

Failure of officials of the Atlantic City and Suburban Traction Company to carry out an agreement to pay $30,000 as its share of the paving of the Shore road from Absecon to Pleasantville may nullify the whole project. Irate residents who caused the indictment of the railway officials two years ago for failure to keep the heavily traveled road in condition threaten to make another complaint to the courts, and it is believed that the orders of County Judge Higbee to the grand jury Thursday forbidding final adjournment was made to give the protesting property owners an opportunity to be heard later.

FORT VISITS STATE HOME FOR GIRLS.

Following out his announced plan of visiting the State institutions before he wrote his message for the coming Legislature, Governor Fort Thursday, accompanied by Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., visited the New Jersey State Home for Girls at Trenton. After a rigid inspection he expressed himself as vastly pleased with the condition of the institution.

Mrs. Elizabeth V. H. Mansell, superintendent of the home, did not have any notice of the coming of the Governor.

When he arrived at the home, he was taken around immediately by Mrs. Mansell. The girls were assembled in the auditorium and sang for him. The Governor made a short speech to these wards of the State, saying he was impressed with the cleanliness and order of the institution. One thing he remarked as strange, the absence of the usual institutional odor, which always seems to permeate penalty and correctional, and even charitable institutions. Mrs. Mansell said that this was the pride of the home, that no one could detect the usual institutional odor, and she declared that it was the great work of the girls keeping the place immaculately clean which was responsible for this.

BLOOMFIELD ELKS MAY GET THE BAXTER HOUSE.

Following the sale Thursday of the Baxter house in Park place, Bloomfield, it is probable that the building will be converted into a home for the Bloomfield Lodge of Elks. The house is one of the town's old landmarks, and was for many years conducted as a boarding-house by the late Samuel H. Baxter. It was sold by the estate Thursday to Bloomfield parties, who will dispose of it to the Elks.

The proposition to buy will be submitted to the Elks at its meeting next Thursday night when, it is understood, the offer of the purchasers, without much doubt, will be approved. Thursday's purchase was made by members of the Elks' lodge.

The property is in the residential section, facing the park, with a frontage of ninety-three feet on Park place and a depth of 200 feet. The price is understood to have been $11,000.

DEATH OF ULIANO RECALLS TRAGEDY.

Theodore Uliano died Thursday at New Providence from cerebral hemorrhage. Uliano three years ago received great notoriety for being accused of the murder of his wife. Mrs. Uliano's body was found one and a half miles from her home near Elkwood avenue by a party of hunters. Her body was almost consumed by a forest fire that had swept through the woods a few days before. There was enough left of the body to permit of identification.

It was found out that Uliano and his wife had previously quarreled over the sale of some property, and feeling ran very high between them. Uliano was arrested and committed to the county jail on the charge of murder. The county and local authorities bent every effort to fasten the crime upon him, but positive proof was lacking. Since then he had lived a secluded life until death overtook him.

MARONE GOES TO JAIL.

Accused of Attempt to Defraud the Parret Co.

Ralph Marone, a Hoboken rag shipper, who was convicted some months ago of conspiracy to defraud the Parret Manufacturing Company, of Elizabeth, out of large shipments worth $100,000, was surrendered by his bondsmen yesterday. He will now serve his eighteen months' term in State prison. Marone is said to be short of funds and unable to carry on the fight. His counsel had already appealed for a writ of error.

WILL OPEN NEW HOSPITAL.

Bayonne to Celebrate Event on Thanksgiving Day.

With elaborate ceremonies the big addition to the Bayonne Hospital will be formally opened Thanksgiving Day. The new building is of brick and three stories in height, and adjoins the old frame structure.

The funds for the construction of the new building are the result of a generous response on the part of the public a year ago to donate one-half a day's pay to the project.

Backache pains come from sick kidneys,

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,

Plainfield people endorse this:

Mrs. E. Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says:

About three years ago I was suffering severely from kidney trouble. There were dull, heavy pains in my back and in the top of my head. I also had dizzy spells and I was subject to chills. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and I began their use. They promptly drove away my trouble and I have had no symptom of a return since."

The Battle

By

Cleveland Moffett

Copyright, 1909, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

"She looks to me like a fine girl," he approved, "but if I know anything about women she's got a bit of spirit in her, and—you'd better cut out anybody else."

"You mean Jenny," said Philip, who started to explain the situation as well as he could without revealing Jenny's previous life, but Haggleton interrupted him: "I know about that. I have lived sixty years with my eyes wide open. It's not so hard to guess as you think, young man."

"Then you must approve of my doing what I can to help her?"

"Does it help her much to dance with her?" replied Haggleton dryly.

"If other people had felt their responsibility toward her as I do, she wouldn't be where she is today."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Haggleton.

"You control the New York Midland, don't you?"

"Why, I—I suppose so," answered Haggleton, surprised at this sudden turn.

"Well, the New York Midland killed her husband at one of its grade crossings. The law commands you to put gates at these crossings, but you laugh at the law, and every year you kill hundreds of innocent citizens as you killed her husband. Then you refused to pay her a cent of damages, and as she was a poor woman she couldn't press the suit. So she was left without a dollar in the world, and she had a little baby, and—well, the end of it was she went to the bad."

"I didn't know that," said Haggleton.

"That's the sick helper," said Moran.

"There's a good deal you rich men don't know and don't want to know. I tell you, Jenny Moran would be a good woman today if she'd had a fair chance. And, if you think I'm going to turn my back on her as your criminal railroad did, then you're very much mistaken."

One morning, a day or two after the millionaire's second tour with Philip among his tenements, a boy arrived from the bakery to tell Moran that he was to take charge of the night shift and must report that evening at 6. Moran sent him back with word that he could bring the assistant he had already spoken about if he were needed, and the answer came shortly afterward by the same carrier that he must not fail to do so. The helper had "completely given out." It was typhoid beyond a doubt.

Having warned Haggleton to take a good rest in the afternoon, the baker disappeared, as usual. The millionaire, with the beginning of his new career before him and anticipating busy days to come, decided to pay another visit of inspection to his tenements, but this time alone. Philip was known and welcomed wherever he went, but the owner of all this shameful property earning blood money had the strange experience of having doors slammed in his face and of being ordered out of his own houses by his own janitors, who looked upon him with darkest suspicion. Yet wherever he went he could not help seeing that conditions, bad as they were in themselves, were aggravated at least 50 per cent by the shiftlessness, the neglect, of his tenants. Haggleton was beginning to formulate his own plans of tenement reform. He would keep them to himself until the proper moment came to lay them before his son. At least they would be practical.

By 1 he was back home and at Jenny's suggestion lay down to get some sleep. By 5 Moran came in and, after another tirade against capital, bade him prepare to accompany him.

The plumbing in the bakeshop was all defective, Moran explained as they made their way to the place, the traps to sink and stall pipes being out of order, so that the water was in danger of contamination.

"Not the water you use in making bread?" questioned Haggleton.

"That's the only water we have," replied Moran; "it's the only water John J. gives us."

"Haggleton? What has he to do with it?"

"Just a little—he owns the property."

They stopped before a six story tenement on Market street.

"Careful, now," cautioned Moran. "Hold on to the railing. It's steep."

He led the way down into a deep hole under the street, the iron steps slanting like a ladder and slippery with mud and ice. Haggleton followed cautiously and found himself in a long, low basement lighted here and there by flaring gas jets. As the door opened he felt a hot, foul breath as from a sour and moldy cavern. The air was full of white dust, the walls were damp and greenish white, bare bricks showing in places where the plaster had fallen off, and the wooden floor was sifted over with a mealy mixture of flour and dirt.

It was about 6 o'clock, and already two men were preparing for the night's work, stripping off filthy clothing down to the undershirts and throwing the garments upon convenient flour barrels. The men were pallid and hollow eyed. One, in a red shirt, coughed constantly; the other chewed tobacco.

As Haggleton's eyes became accustomed to the dust and the uncertain light he discovered a grayish figure lying on a pile of bags behind a steaming vat. It was a man asleep, his head resting on a sack of flour.

"That's the sick helper," said Moran.

"The one who has typhoid fever?"

"We don't know what kind of fever it is."

"But he ought not to be here. He ought not to be sleeping on that sack of flour. You won't use the flour, will you?"

Moran laughed. "The flour he's sleeping on? Sure, we'll use it. We don't mind a little thing like that."

Haggleton took off his coat and prepared to work.

"I'll start you at something easy," said Moran—"down here."

They went to the ovens, where the "third hand" was taking out a batch of finished loaves, about 150 of them ranged along in yellow circles on the hot brick floor. He stood at the iron door, thrusting in a long handled, flat wooden shovel, on which by a quick movement he would slide two or three of the crackling loaves and then draw them out.

"Now," said Moran to Haggleton, "as he takes 'em out on the peel you put 'em in these boxes." He pointed to a pile of wooden trays. "When you get a box full brush 'em over with the stuff in that can. It's potato water, to give 'em a good color."

Moran illustrated this operation once and then left the old man to continue it, which he did to the best of his ability. Occasionally the "third hand" would lay down his peel and stop to cough. Then he would spit on the floor and go back to his work.

"Now run 'em up to the shop," ordered Moran when they had finished—"there, on that dumb waiter. A boy 'll take 'em off."

"You're a pretty fair helper," chuckled Moran; "ought to be worth $6 a week."

"More than that," replied Haggleton. "Where did you get the potato water I put on those loaves? I mean the water, not the potatoes."

"There, at the sink. Yes, the one with no trap to it—the typhoid fever sink. You're thinking it won't do people any good to eat that bread. Maybe not. Huh! Now you can do some kneading."

They went to a long trough where the tobacco chewer was in hand to hand conflict with a great mass of dough, three or four hundred pounds, that seemed to writhe and quiver in his arms like a live creature.

"You watch him awhile and then do the rest," said Moran.

Haggleton watched the "second hand" and presently took his turn at the trough and struggled with the dough. For twenty minutes he turned the sticky, sodden mass over and over upon itself, kneading it and crushing it down and tearing it apart until his whole body ached.

"That'll do," relented Moran finally. "What are those brown stains in the trough?" asked Haggleton.

Moran examined the stains and frowned. "That fool has been dribbling tobacco juice in the dough again. Petro," he said sharply, "look there! Haven't I told you to spit on the floor if you have to spit?"

"We'll make a baker of you yet, Jackson," grinned the foreman. "Before the loaves go into the oven we brush 'em over with eggs to get a nice brown. You can do that. Here's the can and brush, and the eggs are in that box. Break half a dozen in the can and go ahead."

Haggleton obeyed, but presently came back to Moran, holding the can at arm's length and wrinkling his nose with little sniffs. "These eggs are bad."

"Are, eh? Well, what do you expect for 30 cents a hundred?"

"I didn't think you would use bad eggs," said the old man.

"You're not here to think, Mr. Jackson. I told you what to do. Now do it."

So the night advanced, and Haggleton worked with scarcely a pause. He rolled barrels and dragged bags as fresh flour was needed; he carried coke for the fires and split wood; he helped at the sponging tubs; he sifted flour; he bent over the kneading trough; he carried boxes; he drew water at the sink; he worked the dumb waiter; he stood by at the ovens, and he never complained. At 10 o'clock he thought his strength had failed him; he was sore all over and sick and weak, but he forced himself to keep on.

At midnight he asked for a few minutes' rest, but Moran shook his head; he must do his work; another batch of loaves was ready—ready for the eggs. The eggs. His stomach at last revolted, and he had a violent fit of vomiting.

"Knocked out, eh?" said Moran. "Lie down there."

The old man lay down on some bags of flour. He groaned, and for a long time he did not move.

Presently Moran came over to him.

"It always makes a new man sick. You'll get used to it."

"I hope not," said Haggleton. "Are there many bakeshops like this in New York?"

"Dozens, and some worse."

"Not worse than this?"

"Huh!" retorted Moran. "I'd like to show you one on Allen street, dogs and chickens all about, and—hey, Petro," he called, "roll that barrel here."

Petro rolled over a barrel filled with crumbs of sour bread and moldy dough and sweepings from the floor.

"See that?" continued Moran. "We let it go as garbage, but there are bakers who use it. Yes, sir; they soak it in stuff that takes away the smell, then they dry it and put in currants and molasses and bake it into cakes. And heaven knows who eats 'em."

"That's an outrage!"

Moran leaned toward him with a gleam of hatred. "I'll tell you another outrage, Mr. Jackson—it's when a landlord takes big rent for a rotten cellar like this and won't fix the plumbing. No wonder we're sick. I worked in a cellar bakeshop on Hester street where the plumbing was so bad we got a back flow from the sewer every time it rained hard, and the whole floor was—well, I'll cut out the rest."

"Great Scott!" muttered Haggleton, "but all this must be against the law!"

Moran laughed harshly. "That's fine to talk about law. Why aren't the laws enforced against trusts and railroads? Because somebody has mighty good grafting reasons for not enforcing them. It's the same here."

"H'm!" said Haggleton. "How many bakeshops are there in New York?"

"Twenty-five hundred or so. There must be 15,000 bakers in New York, easy."

Haggleton went on quietly, "You say there's a lot of sickness among them?"

"Sickness!" burst out Moran. "Of course there's a lot of sickness! There's rheumatism and asthma and fever and consumption. That's the worst—consumption." He paused, and a grim smile spread over his thin face.

"Go on," said Haggleton.

"You know bread is spongy stuff and takes up anything near it—germs and dirt and bad water. Well, we make the bread, but they eat it—the millionaires!"

"Not this bread!"

"How do you know who eats this bread? How do you know who makes the bread you eat? A quarter of a million loaves and cakes are made every day in New York by sick bakers—that's putting it low—and somebody eats 'em, germs and all. Well?"

"The germs are killed in the baking."

"The heat in the middle of a good sized loaf is away under 200, and it takes 212 to make sure of killing germs. I read how a London doctor tried it and found thirteen different kinds of microbes in a loaf that had been baked! Yes, sir, found 'em alive and kicking!"

Haggleton's face took on such a look of purpose and resourcefulness that Moran marveled and said in jest, "I suppose you're going to show us how to run these bakeshops?"

"Yes," said Haggleton, with a snap of decision, "I think I am."

CHAPTER IX.

HAGGLETON TAKES COMMAND.

MORAN jeered at Haggleton when he announced his determination to throw up the job. The millionaire, however, had selected Sunday morning to make an announcement of importance.

"You asked me that first night," he said to Moran, "if I was going to show you how to run these bakeshops, and I told you that I was. Well, I am going to do it. Listen, all of you. I am going to take you in with me."

"Not me," said Gentle.

"I am going to listen to what he has to say," was Philip's answer.

Haggleton saw that he had won a victory—he had succeeded in interesting Philip.

"If you're not in a hurry, Moran," he remarked as they finished breakfast, "I'd like to ask some questions. Does your boss make much out of his business?"

Moran shook his head. "When he's paid rent and wages there's just enough left to take care of his family—in a tenement."

"What's the rent of that basement?"

"Thirty dollars."

"Suppose I offered him the basement rent free and guaranteed as much business as he does now. Do you think he'd go into a scheme I've got?"

"Ye-es."

"Well, there's money in these bakeshops—money for all of us. What kind of a man is your boss anyway?"

"Italian—once a ragpicker."

"H'm! Can he be manager?"

"He can if he wants to," growled Moran, "but you've got to show him first."

"I'll show him right."

"Huh!" grunted Moran. "What do you know about running a bakeshop?"

Haggleton smiled. "What do you pay for flour?" he asked.

"Six or seven dollars a barrel."

"Whom do you buy it from?"

"Jobbers."

Haggleton looked at him steadily, his eyes showing half pity, half contempt. "No wonder you people are poor! You—you don't know any more about business than children in the street."

Haggleton asked more questions, going into details of the breadmaking industry, wages, methods of work, cost of equipment, etc., moving rapidly from point to point, until presently he came upon one fact of master importance—that there was a machine for kneading dough, a machine run by electricity which would do the work of six men and turn out better bread than could be made by hand.

"Ah," exclaimed the old man, "now we're getting at it! I'd like to see that machine."

"You'll have to go uptown to a big bakeshop."

"None down here?"

Moran scowled. "A machine like that costs $650."

Haggleton looked pleased. "Good! Now, how many bakeshops are there near yours, say within two or three blocks?"

"Eleven."

"That's enough. We'll make a combination with six or eight; we'll sell them flour for less than they pay the jobbers and"—

"How will you do that?" interrupted Gentle.

"We'll get it by the carload direct from the mills. Then we'll have one of those machines and do all the kneading for the combination. We save on wages and materials; we do a bigger business because we sell better bread, so we make money both ways."

"It's a regular trust," said Gentle.

"Yes," admitted Haggleton, "it's a bakeshop trust."

"What capital have you got?" asked Philip.

"Ever hear of promoters?" asked the millionaire tersely. "Well, I am promoting this. The bakers need that machine; the manufacturer is perfectly willing to supply it on terms that guarantee him his money, even if he has to wait for it. A chattel mortgage given by the members of the trust I am about to organize will be good security unless I am much mistaken. I could use $300 to advantage right now."

"Three hundred dollars!" sniffed Moran. "What can you do with that?"

Haggleton bared his teeth like an old wolf. "With $300 you can get a grip on Manhattan Island and—never let go, if you know how."

Philip was deeply impressed. He was stimulated, yet vaguely alarmed. Haggleton was awakening in him qualities of mind and vague longings that had lain dormant thus far and that he recognized now with some uneasiness. He had sometimes wondered if he possessed business ability, but had given the matter little thought, feeling sure that his work lay in quite another field. So it was with strangely mixed motives that he exclaimed impulsively:

"With $300 you can get a grip on Manhattan Island."

"I can furnish the $300!"

Haggleton suppressed the feeling of exultation that rose within him as he recognized himself in his son. He quietly said, "That will hasten things somewhat."

In the morning Philip was to buy one of these kneading machines, paying $100 down, the balance being arranged for in successive monthly payments, secured by a chattel mortgage. He—Haggleton—would get the bakers to be jointly responsible here with them.

Then Philip must find a bakeshop with electric street connections for the machine. Did Moran know of one? Yes, in Catharine street. Good! They must get the boss there into the combination, show him all the advantages and, if necessary, give him a bonus. The kneading machine must be set up there. It wouldn't cost this man a cent, as the combination would assume all expenses.

The rest would be easy. Six other bakers must agree to buy from the combination thirty or forty barrels of flour a week, or whatever quantity they usually bought, on the express stipulation that they got it at 10 per cent off the jobber's price. And they must make themselves responsible for this amount of flour, so many carloads, by signing a joint note payable to the mill owners in thirty days.

Philip thought that the mill owners might refuse to accept such a note, but Haggleton was sure the thing could be accomplished.

"How can one machine knead the dough from half a dozen bakeshops?" reflected Philip.

"That's easy," said Haggleton; "we'll have a horse and truck."

THE OLD PIANO
—IN—THE OLD HOME

In the old days, when grandmother was a girl, when there were none but square pianos made and only a limited number of makers, each instrument was the handiwork of the men whose name it bore. They built their pianos with their own hands, personally selecting each bit of material, taking a pride in their work, mindful of every little detail that is necessary to make a perfect instrument.

MASTERS IN THEIR PROFESSION

In the old days, when grandmother was a girl, as far back as 1839, stood the makers of the

A Hallet & Davis in the home is an evidence of refined taste.

The Hallet & Davis costs little more than most pianos; it is worth many times the difference. Its 70 years of preferment is surely a safe guide.

A Minister's View of Life Insurance

"I am a profound believer in life insurance for all classes and conditions of men and women. Next to the duty of securing salvation in the world to come is the duty of men to secure life insurance in the world that is here and now. Next to a good hope for eternity is the comfort which comes to a man from knowing that he has made provision, by life insurance, for his old age and for the support of his family in the event of his own death. To do so seems to me a religious obligation, an obligation often as binding upon women as upon men."—Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, of Calvary Baptist Church, New York.

LEAL'S BOYS DEFEATED BY PINGRY'S ELEVEN

Pingry School's blue and white waved triumphantly over the maroon of Leal's school on the gridiron yesterday afternoon on Cricket Field when the Elizabethans won a 5 to 0 victory after a gallant fight by the local schoolboys. Leal's eleven contested with two handicaps. The lol cals were outweighed by a big margin, and were also minus the services of Dallis and Leggett.

There was no scoring in the first half although the whistle blew when the ball was on Leal's five yard line. At this period there was a fifteen minute wrangle between Referee Smith and Timekeeper Smith over the time allowance.

J. Jewett kicked off for Leal's but the visitors secured possession of the ball and by a series of rushes and forward pass plays the ball was pushed down to Leal's 20 yard line. There, Best, Pingry's right end, made a brilliant double pass around the Leal's end which carried the ball to the five yard line, with ten seconds to play. At this juncture the argument took place and the half ended.

Blatz and Chaffe were big factors for Pringry in the final half and it was due to this pair's fast work that Pingry secured its touchdown. Bonnell kicked off for the visitors. Chaffe got in the game right at the start. Getting possession of the ball he made a run to Leal's 55 yard line. Brown punted to the 30 yard line and then the visitors inaugurated a series of mass plays which eventually resulted in the visitors score.

Twenty yards from Leal's goal, Chaffe and Blatz started their plunging tractics. First it was the blonde haired Chaffe and then the wiry Blatz. Leal's guards were unable to withstand the onslaughts of this pair and finally Blatz ploughed through the entire local team for the touchdown. Carr failed in an attempt to kick a goal.

The vistors made a hard attempt to increase the score but the splendid defensive work of the locals prevented more scoring. Driscoll was the star for Leal's. His superb tackling brought forth continuous cheers from his school mates.

Starkweather also shone. His brilliant tackle of Chaffe, when the latter was heading for the local goal, prevented a score. The line-up:

MANX CATS RARE.

Believed That They Are Altogether Extinct Now.

More than fifty years ago the real Manx cat was becoming very rare in the Isle of Man, owing to interbreeding with common cats from the mainland; but the pure breed was easily distinguished by the great length of its hind legs, because, although the natives used to cut out the tails the hybrid kittens soon after birth, in order to sell them as "Manx cats," they could not artificially imitate the long hind limbs. These gave to the real Manx cat more the appearance of a hare than a rabbit, especially when sitting upright; and its sand-colored fur increased the likeness, insomuch that my correspondent, who was going out shooting one morning soon after he had joined his regiment in the island, was about to fire at what he thought to be a hare sitting on its hind legs, when a sentry at the gate calleu out, "That's our cat, sir!"

Subsequently he procured a real Manx cat and brought it to England with him, but it soon died, as I believe almost always happened with the original Manx cats when they were brought from the island. Whether any pure Manx cats exist at the present day I do not know, but I should say not, from the fact that the animal figured as a "Manx" in "Living Animals of the World" is a tabby-marked creature with hind legs of the ordinary length. A tailless cat is not, however, necessarily a Manx. It is worth noting that 100 years ago the Manx cat was known in England as the "Cornish cat," and it was in Devonshire that an enthusiastic cat fancier some years ago found a previously unknown colony of "bunny cats," which are exactly like the Abyssinian cats of our cat shops and have fur closely resembling that of the Manx cat or rabbit. It is not impossible, perhaps, that in some isolated corner of Cornwall or Devonshire the pure-bred Cornish or Manx cat may still exist.—County Queries and Notes.

HIGH SCHOOL MINSTRELS GREAT SHOW TONIGHT

A crowded house is expected tonight at the high school auditorium to witness the minstrels given by the High School minstreal troupe. Samuel B. Howe, of the faculty, has coached the boys in the preparations for this entertainment and a successful performance is assured.

Two sketches are to be the features of the show, one by Sewell and Ramsey, and another by Doane and Riffert. The former will appear in an original Romeo and Juliette, travesty while the latter will present a scream entitled "Can you beat the Dutch?" The chorus of thirty voices selected from the glee club will give the usual good account of themselves. The proceeds of the show will be devoted to the institution's athletic association.

HID IN BED AFTER STABBING AFFRAY.

Perth Amboy, Nov. 13.—Alexander Torok is in jail, held without bail, to await the result of a stab wound he inflicted on Joseph Oras Thursday on Smith street. The knife entered his shoulder twice and penetrated a lung. Dr. Charles I. Silk, the attending physician, is of the opinion that Torok will recover. The motive for the assault was a quarrel three weeks ago, in which Oras claims to have been beaten by Torok.

After Oras made the attack Thursday he ran and eluded a crowd of pursuers for more than a mile. He was caught by Rudolph Kish, hidden in a folding bed in a house at 652 Cortland street. Oras did not know the people living in the house and said he went in because the front door was open.

FORT BEATS TAFT IN PROCLAMATION

Although it is customary for the Governor of New Jersey to await the outcoming of the Thanksgiving Day proclamation of the President of the United States, Governor Fort has this year written his and it has gone to the printer and will be mailed shortly.

For some reason this usual proclamation of the president has not been printed, and there is no hint when it will make its appearance. Heretofore the document has been before the people at least three weeks before Thanksgiving day. It is customary to name the last Thursday in November, but the president can name any day he pleases.

Governor Fort waited as long as he thought he ought for the president to make the first salutation to the people, and then he wroe his message. For the first time in the history of New Jersey this forthcoming message does not mention the president's message, because there is no presidential message of thanksgiving to the people. Of course, should President Taft send out his procalamation before Monday, the message of Governor Fort will likely be recalled and mention of the fact made.. But at present the governor of New Jersey is on the job with the call for Thanksgiving and prayer, and the President of the United States is strangely silent.

LESSON FOR A CABMAN.

Philadelphian Learns How Efficient N. Y. Government Is.

At least one man in Philadelphia says that if the New York city government is looking for somebody to say a good word about it he's willing to help out.

Not long ago the Philadelphian was in Manhattan and in one of those spurts of recklessness in which the traveling Quaker occasionally indulges he took a cab to the station when he left.

When he got out the cabman contemptuously refused the regular fare, which the Philadelphian happened to know was fifty cents, and demanded $1.30 instead. His passenger protested, but the cabman had found out he was in a hurry and stood out for the sum named.

The Philadelphian called a policeman, who had become opportunely visible, and stated the situation. The policeman said it was a plain case of extortion and if the Quaker would say the word they'd both take a ride with cabby to the station and have the thing over. The man from Philadelphia considered.

"No," he said, "I've got to make this train. Now I am going to pay this man what he has demanded. I will take his number and yours. You are a witness that I have paid him the illegal fare, aren't you? Well, I'll attend to the rest."

Cabby by this time would gladly have taken the fifty cents to which he was entitled, but he had to take what he had demanded instead. The Philadelphian caught his train and went home. Within a few days he wrote to the Mayor of New York giving an account of the affair.

He promptly received an acknowledgement of the letter, with the assurance that it would be referred to the proper department. The following day he received from that department a letter saying that his complaint had been received and would be acted on at once. Inside of a few days he received a third communication, inclosing eighty cents and the information that the cabman's license had been revoked. To this were added the thanks of the department and the assurance that if every victim of a similar gouge would follow the Philadelphian's example the New York cabby would become a chastened creature.—New York Sun.

PLANTING FOREST TREES.

The State of Pennsylvania has started one enterprise of which Maryland should take notice, says the Baltimore American. The Quaker State has made a practical beginning in the matter of forest restoration that will surely atract very wide interest.

Two years ago, in Tioga County, a nursery for forest trees was started. Only about 46,000 trees were ready for transplanting this spring, but there will be 1,000,000 others ready for transfer to various State reserves by the fall of the present year, and afterward a large annual supply.

The majority of the trees that are being put into forest reservations this spring are white pine, the finest of all timber trees, and which, though once abundant in the Keystone State, have been practically exterminaed, as in every other of the Eastern States.

The State nursery will supply many varieties of trees, however, so that soils peculiarly adapted to a particular variety of tree may be utilized. There are now forest reservations in many Pennsylvania counties. Maryland also has a few such reservations, but why should there not be a special forestry area set apart in every Maryland county?

The subject of Rev. C. L. Goodrich's sermon at the Congregatonal church tomorrow night will be "Let Her Drive.'

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TALK

Prof. H. S. Hering Makes Address on "The Science of Salvation."

HE EXPLAINS THE BELIEF.

Marked Attention Is Paid to Lecturer at the Hartridge School Auditorium.

Herman S. Hering, professor of Christian Science, delivered a lecture Saturday night in the Hartridge Auditorium. A fairly large audience was on hand to hear Prof. Hering and they listened with profound attention to his erudite exposition of the fundamentals of the cult. Carrington Hening, of Orange, introduced the speaker, who said incidently:

In addressing an intelligent audience upon the subject of "Christian Science: the Science of Salvation," it is well, first of all, to reach a mutual understanding as to the meaning of the terms. Science means exact, systematized, and demonstrable knowledge of facts, laws and causes, while according to Smoth's Bible Dictionary salvation means "deliverance from temporal evils and earthly destruction," in other words deliverance from evil. Hence "The Science of Salvation" means in substance that demonstrable knowledge which affords deliverance from evil.

St. Paul admonishes us to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. This Scriptural command means far more than the common belief that salvation is assured by simply having belief or faith in Jesus as the Son of God. Such saving faith is vitally necessary, but it is only the beginning of our salvation—its spiritual basis.

Then must follow the working out of our deliverance from evil, our separation from sin, from the bondage of this world, from limitation, failure, sickness, disease, death.

In working out our salvation we must first see that salvation or deliverance from evil is a mental process, takes place in mind; that it is a transformation through Mind and that it is both ethical and philosophical.

The Bible declares that "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

Christian Science teaches that matter and material existence are phenomena or mortal mind, a concept of existence obtained through the physical senses, a misapprehension of reality held by human consciousness when uninstructed by Science, an appearance instead of an actuality. It is simply an imitation or counterfeit.

Now it is not the appearance but only the original that has power, intelligence and substance. The manifestation of growth, action or being in matter is but a material concept of spiritual facts.

When we recognize God as the only Mind, the only cause, Truth is reflected in consciousness and existence is harmonious. When we believe causation to be material or in mortal mind, we put out trust and dependence in a shadow, a false belief, and existence so-called, is discordant, liable to disease, disaster, death. In order to work out our salvation we therefore need to understand causation.

The ordinary human concept of mind is that which thinks, feels or wills, the intellect, or the activity of the brain. Christian Science reveals the fact that Mind is divine Principle, the infinite Life, Truth, Love, omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, the all-inclusive, eternal, unchanging, all-wise being, the only cause and creator.

Christian Science makes it clear that material existence is not the manifestation of this divine Mind, but the phenomenon of the counterfeit, called mortal mind.

It is this false concept of existence that does all the wrong thinking; that believes in sin, disease and death; that claims there is life and intelligence in matter.

The difference between the method of healing through mental suggestion, or hypnotism, and that of divine Mind, the Christ healing, must be clearly seen.

When the effort is made to heal by suggestion, the operator endeavors by means of hypnotism to make the patient believe that he is not sick. He attempts to change the belief but the cause of disease remains and in time manifests itself even in worse forms. The patient is no better off, he has not risen in the scale of being, he has no more manhood, or moral courage, and does not know any more about God and His Christ than before.

The true Christian Scientists reflects the divine Mind, stands on the basis of God, man and the universe as Spirit and spiritual, as Love and its manifestation, as Mind and its ideas—perfect and harmonious.

MRS. LAWRENCE MYERS DEAD IN 78TH YEAR

The sudden death of Mrs. Lawrence Myers at her home, Sunnyside, East Front street, late yesterday afternoon came as a great shock to her many friends. Although Mrs. Myers had not regained her entire strength since she suffered a stroke of apoplexy several years ago, she continued in perfect health until within a few hours of her death.

Mrs. Myers was born at Plattsburg, N. Y., August 23, 1832, and was therefore in her seventy-eghth year. She was a daughter of Rev. Frederick Halsey, the first pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that city. In 1858 she married Lawrence Myers, Jr., and they came to New York to live. In 1866 they moved to Plainfield, where Mrs. Myers has made her home ever since.

Of her three children, Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead, Lucy Platt Myers and Frederick Halsey Myers, Mrs. Mead alone survives her. Mrs. Myers was a devoted member and supporter of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and one of the founders of the McCall Auxiliary of this city. She was interested in all good work here and the world over, including Home and Foreign missions, Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. work and many other educational and charitable institutions. Her beautiful character, warm sympathies and universal interest in all mankind and especially in her wide circle of friends and relatives won for her the love and admiration of all. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock from her late home.

MRS. MARIA NOBLE, AGED 82 YEARS, DEAD

Mrs. Maria Noble, aged eighty-two years, widow of the late Orman Noble, died at the home of her son, Morton C. Noble, at Newark, early Saturday morning, after an illness of several months, from a complication of diseases, the end being hastened by a stroke several weeks ago, since which time no hopes have been entertained for her recovery. She was one of the oldest residents of Scotch Plains and had been identified with the town for many years.

Mrs. Noble was the oldest member of the Baptist church, being identified with the historic church for sixty years past, and until a few years ago an active worker in the church and its several societies. Since the death of her husband Mrs. Noble has made her home with her two sons, Morton C. Noble, of Newark, and William B. Noble, of Scotch Plains.

Funeral services will be held at the Scotch Plains Baptist church tomorrow morning at 11:15. Interment will be made in the family plot in the Baptist cemetery.

JOSEPH G. ROBINSON JOINS THE BENEDICTS.

Cupid invaded the ranks of the local fire department about three weeks ago but the fact did not become known until today when Joseph G. Robinson surprised his associates by announcing that he was married on Saturday, October 23. The bride is Miss Nancy Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ackerman, of West Third street. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage of the Central Methodist church, Jersey City, the nuptial knot being tied by the pastor, the Rev. H. E. Spencer.

On their wedding day Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left ostensibly on a trip to New York, and it was while they were in the metropolis, that they decided to get married. The secret was kept intact until today. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will reside at 308 East Front street.

Martin Is Quoit Champion.

Charles Martin, of the local Y. M. C. A., was the winner of the State championship title for quoit pitching on Saturday afternoon and returned home with the silver cup, which is emblematic of the championship. Before winning the State championship Martin also annexed the championship of Camp Wayawanda, by defeating Albert Winne, of Orange, in two contests, the scores being 21 to 13 and 21 to 18.

Just Trying Us Out.

William Hosie, a Scotchman, who has been in this country only three months, drank too many high balls Saturday night and created a disturbance at Proctor's theatre. He was sorry about it this morning and promised the judge to behave better in the future if allowed to go. Judge Runyon gave him a chance to make good.

KNIGHTS ATTEND SERVICE

Watchung Council Listen to Eloquent Sermon at St. Mary's Church.

EXERCISES ARE ELABORATE.

Rev. Father Bogan Celebrant—Rev. Father Dillon Preacher—Splendid Musical Program.

A half hour before beginning the religious exercises at St. Mary's church last evening, every pew was occupied excepting those of the middle aisle reserved for the Knights of Columbus and parish and visiting societies of men. The occasion of the gathering was the annual vesper services at which knights attended in uniform. At eight o'clock the procession of men from the parish assembly hall, entered the church. The members of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, marched to the entrance of sacristy and acted as guard of honor to the clerical officers of the vesper service.

The celebrant, Rev. B. M. Bogan, deacon; Rev. Edward J. Dunphy, subdeacon; Rev. Daniel Hogan, master of ceremonies; Rev. Vincent Sciolla, with a chancel choir of thirty boys, left the sacristy, chanting the processional, "Onward Christian Soldiers," and entered the sanctuary between the lines of assembled knights whose drawn swords formed an arch for the procession. A splendid musical program was rendered by the choir, under the direction of Miss Mary A. Swett, the soloists being Miss Mary Lannon and Mr. Campbell.

The sermon was preached by Rev. John Dillon, of Elizabeth. He said in part:
